FUSION RATIFIED BY REPUBLICANS

Rough Session of Committee Ends in Indorsing the Whole Ticket.

BULL MOOSE ALSO IN LINE

Progressive Action Favoring the Fusion Nominations Marked by Great Harmony.

WHITMAN REJECTS A BOLT

Democratic Leaders Report to Murphy That They Favor Gaynor as Candidate for Mayor.

At a riotous meeting of their City Designating Committee, held at the Murray Hill Lyceum, Third Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, last night, the Republicans voted to indorse the city ticket nominated by the Fusion Committee of 107. The ticket is John Purroy Mitchel for Mayor, William A. Prendergast for Controller, and George McAneny for President of the Board of Aldermen.

The convention was one of the most disorderly ever seen in the city. Several attempts were made to stampede it for District Attorney Charles S. Whitman, and when the Whitman supporters saw they were beaten they tried to nominate Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss for Mayor. Mitchel received 895 votes out of the 1,500 in the committee and Moss 169. The Fusion city ticket, upon motion of County Chairman Samuel S. Koenig, was then indorsed throughout unanimously.

Frederick C. Tanner, leader of the Twenty-fifth District, nominated Mr. Mitchel, and the nomination was seconded by Assistant District Attorney Clarke. Albert Ottinger, leader of the Fifteenth District, nominated Mr. Moss, and the nomination was seconded by Abram S. Gilbert. Mr. Gilbert, in an impassioned speech, tried to stampede the gathering for Mr. Whitman, but, while the mention of the District Attorney's name produced the wildest enthusiasm, Mr. Mitchel got the votes. Mr. Mitchel got very little applause, the Republicans evidently feeling that they had to swallow the ticket for the benefit of the party.

The Fusion ticket was not indorsed until after midnight, and then only after a fight that lasted from shortly before 9 o'clock until nearly 12 o'clock upon the question of adjournment.

The Whitman forces wanted the Designating Committee to delay action until next Monday, but County Chairman Koenig had made up his mind to force the issue last night. Mr. Koenig won his point by a vote of 617 to 458.

The fight of last night was between the forces led by County Chairman Samuel S. Koenig, who wanted the organization to support Fusion, and the dissatisfied element bound to nominate Distric Attorney Whitman for Mayor. During the afternoon the Executive Committe of the County Committee held a session at which the Fusion forces were about evenly divided until Frederick C. Tanner, leader from Mr. Whitman's own district, the Twenty-fifth, called the District Attorney on the long distance telephone at Bretton Woods. Mr. Whitman said that under no circumstances would he head a ticket against Fusion. That changed the situation and thirty of the thirty-one members decided in favor of supporting the Fusion ticket.

The one member who held out was Joseph Levenson, leader of the Second District. When he saw that he was beaten Mr. Levenson decided to take the fight into the convention and try to force an adjournment. Most of the Brooklyn and all of the Bronx delegates were with him, and Mr. Koenig had all he could do to keep his men in line.

The delegates showed plainly that they were about evenly divided for Whitman. Speeches were made by both sides, amid the utmost confusion. Most of the time the speakers could not be heard above the babel of noise.

Trouble Starts Early.

The Chairman, John S. McKeon, called the meeting to order at 8:45 o'clock. There were 2,100 delegates in the hall, which had a seating capacity of only 1,300. Owing to the proportional representation, based upon the last Gubernatorial vote, there were only 1,500 votes in the committee. Trouble started right away when Abram S. Gilbert, who was a candidate for the Supreme Court last year, jumped to the platform and said he represented a large number of Republicans who were not willing to lie down and die.

The Kings County members were on their feet at once and shouted approval. Many from New York County joined them, and it looked as if the Whitman stampede was under way.

"I speak for those Republican voters who are not willing to present their emblem to any faction of the Democratic Party," shouted Mr. Gilbert.

"That's the stuff!" and "We want Whitman!" came the cries from all over the hall. Mr. Gilbert went on:

"I say, gentlemen, speaking for that mass of men, that 180,000 Republicans in the City of New York constitute a force to be reckoned with. The time has come when that 180,000 men must show themselves to be men and not to be scavengers of this town. I speak for those men who are opposed to the suggestion of this self-constituted committee, of whom nobody knoweth, who undertake to tell us that we must take a candidate for Mayor selected by them because the Bull Moose outfit say they want him." (Cries of "No!")

"Are we to help the Bull Moose outfit to keep them alive? [Cries of "No."] I believe in non-partisanship in municipal affairs, and those back of me do. But we take this position: Partisanship is just as much to destroy the other fellow's organization as to build up your own. I say and those with me say that this talk of non-partisanship

FLIER WRECKED, 2 KILLED.

Oriental Limited on Great Northern Afire After Derailment.

Special to The New York Times.

GRAND RAPIDS, N. D., Aug. 19.—Two persons were killed, another was fatally hurt and twenty or thirty others were slightly injured as the result of the derailment of the Great Northern's Oriental limited train, westbound, at Crary, seventy miles west of here, late to-night.

The engine, mail car, baggage car, smoker and two day coaches left the rails. The smoker rammed its way through a grain elevator.

The wreckage caught fire and several persons were thought to have lost their lives, but only two bodies were found beneath the wreckage.

Relief trains, carrying doctors and nurses, were sent from Devil's Lake, Lakota, and Grand Forks.

TRAIN KILLS NEW YORKERS.

Edward Asmuth and Trained Nurse Struck at Adirondack Crossing.

SARRANAC LAKE, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Edward Asmuth, twenty-five, of New York, was instantly killed, and Miss Amy Maud Grubb, a trained nurse, twenty-four, also of New York, received injuries from which she died two hours later when the carriage in which they were riding was struck to-day by an engine attached to a Delaware & Hudson train at a crossing on the road to Lake Colby.

TRAIN HOLD-UP IN CITY.

Bandits Get Booty After Shooting Two at Portland, Ore.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 19.—The Soo-Spokane train, eastbound for Minneapolis and St. Paul, was held up within the Portland city limits late to-night. Two persons were shot.

The robbers escaped with valuables.

OBJECT TO JACK JOHNSON.

English Vaudeville Artists May Prevent His Appearance in London.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Wednesday, Aug. 20.—Jack Johnson is billed to appear at a London vaudeville house next week.

According to The Times, the Vaudeville Artists' Federation is likely to take effective measures to prevent what is regarded as a degradation of the music halls.

PROHIBITS X-RAY SKIRTS.

Mayor of Portland Orders Arrest of Every Woman Wearing One.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 19.—Mayor Albee to-day ordered Police Chief Clark to have every woman arrested who wore an "X-ray" dress on the streets. The Mayor said the order must go into effect immediately.

The action of the Mayor followed his observations during a trip in the downtown district.

The question whether a gown is really an "X-ray" or otherwise objectionable is to be left to the judgment of the policeman who views it.

Chief Clark was told that it made no difference who the woman was who wore an objectionable gown. She must be taken into custody.

MAKE LOW AN ARBITRATOR.

Ex-Mayor Agrees to be One of the Judges in Railroad Controversy.

President Seth Low of the Civic Federation was selected yesterday as a member of the board which will arbitrate the differences between the trainmen and conductors of the Eastern railroad and the companies. The selection was made by the four arbitrators already selected, two by the employes and two by the railroad companies. The sixth arbitrator necessary to complete the board was decided on, but his name was withheld pending his acceptance of the place.

The four arbitrators in telling about Mr. Low's selection, said that he had agreed to serve on the board at great personal sacrifice.

Mr. Low was an active member of the committee which urged the Newlands amendment to the Erdman act. This amendment was passed in modified form and signed in time to avert a strike of the trainmen and conductors.

The time limit for the appointment of the fifth and sixth members of the Arbitration Board, it was thought, expired at midnight of Monday, but it is held by persons interested that the Sundays are not counted. Taking this view of the requirements of the law, the four arbitrators have two days more in which to complete the board. If by that time the sixth arbitrator has not been appointed, the duty of appoining him will fall on the Board of Mediation and Conciliation. The acceptance of Mr. Low is looked upon with great favor by the trainmen and conductors.

WHITNEY KIPP DROWNED.

New Yorker's Chum, R. W. Snow, Saved by Bellboy 17 Years Old.

Special to The New York Times.

POTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 19.—Whitney Kipp, 28 years old, of New York City was drowned at Wallis Sands at 12:45 P. M. to-day, when a canoe in which he and R. W. Snow of Washington were riding the surf tipped over. His wife, standing on the beach, saw him die. Through Walter Pickett, 17 years old, of Waltham, Mass., a bellboy in the Ocean Wave House, Snow's life was saved.

Pickett, who was on the beach in a bathing costume, ran through the surf. He is an expert swimmer. In a few minutes he had Snow by the hair. He dragged Snow within reach of others who had waded out.

Turning Snow over to the others, Pickett swam toward Kipp. Meantime lifesavers put out in a surf boat. Kipp was seen hanging to the canoe. The bellboy was approaching him with a powerful overhand stroke, pushing a small plank in front of him. But when Pickett was within ten feet Kipp threw up his hands and sank.

GLYNN TO ASSUME AGGRESSIVE NOW

Will Issue Statement Warning All State Functionaries That He Is Acting Governor.

SULZER REMAINS DEFIANT

Answers Carmody Opinion by Changing Combination of Safe in Executive Chamber.

NO LEGISLATIVE QUORUM

Contempt Proceedings Against Sarecky and Colwell—Brackett and Richards Counsel to Impeachers.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 19.—Fortified by the opinion of Attorney General Carmody declaring him the official head of the State Government, whom all department heads must recognize, Acting Governor Martin H. Glynn has prepared and will issue to-morrow a statement, virtually amounting to a proclamation, in which he will announce that he has taken the reins of administration and that all persons in the State service not conforming to the new order at the Capitol henceforth will be looked upon as usurpers or officials unfaithful to their oaths of office.

Mr. Sulzer to-night was still in control of the Executive Chamber and the privy seal of the Governor's office. His reply to the opinion of the Attorney General was to have the combination of the safe in the Executive Chamber changed. The requisition for the performance of this work read that it was "expert and urgent."

Acting Governor Glynn will not seek to interfere with Mr. Sulzer in his desire to occupy the "seat of the visible government." But the policy pursued by the Acting Governor and his friends is calculated to make Mr. Sulzer's occupancy of the Executive Chamber an empty honor and his title as head of the State Government an empty title.

The Board of Trustees of Public Buildings will meet to-morrow to designate a suite of rooms on the third floor in the Capitol as the Executive Chamber. This done, the clerks and other employes in the Executive department will be notified that they must report to Acting Governor Glynn if they expect to be paid for their services. Mr. Glynn is being recognized by the Controller's office as Acting Governor, and in this sense holds the pursestrings when it comes to spending the funds of the State appropriated for the maintenance of the Governor's department. From employes connected with the office of the Chief Executive it was gleaned today that they would be pleased with the change. There are those who predict a stampede of clerks from the old Executive offices to the new as soon as the order is issued.

Moves by Glynn and Sulzer.

Most of Acting Gov. Glynn's time during the day was taken up by private conferences with Senators Wagner and Frawley, Speaker Smith, and other Democratic leaders, who were said to be advising him in the formulation of a definite programme. Mr. Glynn performed no official function apart from sending a telegram to E. A. Conger, District Attorney of Dutchess County, enjoining him to use every effort to cause to be detained "all persons now in custody in Canada, in connection with the escape from Matteawan of Harry K. Thaw."

In acknowledging this telegram, Mr. Conger advised the Acting Governor that he had solicited the co-operation of Attorney General Carmody.

Mr. Sulzer's day was uneventful, except for his appointment as Governor of a new commission to ascertain the mental condition of Antonio Africano, confined in the Auburn State Prison under sentence of death. The Commissioners designated are Dr. James V. May of the State Hospital Commission, Dr. Charles W. Pilgrim, Superintendent of the Hudson River Hospital, and Dr. R. F. C. Kieb, Superintendent of the Matteawan State Hospital. Africano is now under reprieve until Sept. 22, as the result of a report finding him insane, based upon an examination last June by Dr. May and Dr. Pilgrim.

Special significance attaches to this action from the fact that, however the commission may find, it might open the door to court proceedings to test the validity of Mr. Sulzer's act.

No Quorum in Either House.

The Legislature reconvened to-day, pursuant to a resolution adopted last week. There was not a quorum in either house. In the Senate no business was transacted beyond approval of the minutes of last week's meeting. In the Assembly resolutions were introduced providing for the immediate arrest and punishment for contempt of Louis A. Sarecky and Frederick L. Colwell, who declined to answer questions before the Frawley Committee regarding the Sulzer campaign fund and Mr. Sulzer's stock transactions. Mr. Sarecky was Mr. Sulzer's confidential clerk; since his refusal to enlighten the Frawley investigators he has been appointed to a $4,000 position through Mr. Sulzer. Mr. Colwell was Mr. Sulzer's agent in the speculative market.

Mr. Sarecky, who has spent most of his time recently at the Capitol, left for New York Friday night. Friends said to-night that he would return tomorrow. There is curiosity at the Capitol as to whether Sarecky will change his attitude and give the committee the information it seeks in order to avoid being imprisoned for contempt.

It was announced by Aaron J. Levy, the majority leader of the Assembly, at the session this afternoon that the Judiciary Committee would meet to-morrow to take steps to arrest James C. Garrison, assistant to John A. Hennessy, the Governor's political adviser. Mr. Garrison, who recently charged that four members of the Assembly had been induced to vote for the resolution impeaching Gov. Sulzer by the payment of money, was at the Capitol to-day and declared that he had no fear that anything more than a little temporary inconvenience would result from his being haled before the bar of the Assembly. The legislative leaders were positive in declaring this afternoon that while there might be a lull, they would go through with the punishment both of the recalcitrant witnesses and of Mr. Garrison also, provided the bribery charge should be definitely traced to him.

Apparently no legislative business is to be conducted at the Capitol this week. Both houses will meet again to-morrow, but no quorum is expected. The designation of party candidates to places on the primary ballot during the present week, it was stated to-day, was keeping a majority of the members at home. When the Legislature adjourns to-morrow a recess of ten days probably will

OWEN TURNS CRITIC OF CURRENCY BILL

Expresses Doubt in Senate Committee Meeting About Regional Reserves Plan.

NONE TO DEFEND MEASURE

Talk Is Growing of Temporary Currency Reform—Radicals Against All Legislation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—At a meeting of the Democratic members of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency this afternoon an unexpected situation developed when the Administration measure, known as the Owen-Glass bill, appeared to have not a friend in its support. From Senator Owen of Oklahoma, Chairman of the committee, and one of the bill's co-authors, members got the impression that he no longer advocated a regional reserve system, which is the essence of the bill that bears his name. In still more definite terms Mr. Owen intimated that he would favor omitting from the bill the provision compelling national banks, on pain of forfeiting their charters, to become members of the proposed regional reserve associations.

After the meeting Mr. Owen was as insistent as ever that there must be currency legislation at this session. But Senators who had heard his statements in committee were at a loss to know what sort of legislation he had in view. As one Senator expressed it, if the provisions were omitted with which Mr. Owen was willing to dispense, nothing would remain but a wreck.

The Chairman of the committee admitted frankly after the meeting that he was inclined to think there was much force in the objections raised by the banks to the provision compelling them to subscribe to the capital stock of the regional reserve associations. He pointed out that the omission of the offensive paragraph would at one stroke demolish the argument of the banks for their right to control the proposed system.

Owen Drops Regional Provisions.

As to his present attitude on regional reserves, Mr. Owen was less communicative. He did not deny that he had been understood correctly as no longer supporting the regional system, but laughingly refused to say just what he did advocate. Before the subject of regional reserves was specifically called to his attention he said that, aside from the proposed omission of the compulsory membership clause, he did not wish to discuss amendments that might be recommended by the committee. He explained that the majority of the committee had just begun seriously the study of the subject, and that as they were committed to no measure it would not be fair to forecast what conclusion they might reach.

Opposition in the caucus of House Democrats to the Owen-Glass bill will certainly be measurably increased by reports of the complete lack of crystalized support for the measure in the Senate Committee.

It is possible that the general opposition to currency legislation explains Mr. Owen's course. It is suggested that in seeming to leave the so-called Administration measure to its own devices he hopes to induce the Democratic members of the committee to a more willing study of the general subject of currency reform. Mr. Owen may be trying to lure his colleagues with the prospect of unlimited amendment in the hope of finally winning them over to the bill for which he is at least partly responsible.

The course he is now urging upon Democrats of the committee is susceptible of this explanation. He wants the majority of the committee to meet every day for a full and free discussion of currency on a broad basis. He realizes that the Democratic opponents of his bill have no definite objections to it as such, and he may feel that informal conference across the committee table will give him an advantage with his more definite views over the unformulated reluctance of his colleagues to proceed to a revision of the currency. Once the Democrats of the committee are agreed, Mr. Owen will ask for a party caucus.

The meeting this afternoon was attended by many Democrats of the committee; Mr. O'Gorman of New York, however, was absent. The most bitter opponent of legislation now is Mr. Hitchcock of Nebraska. With him are more or less aligned Mr. O'Gorman and Mr. Reed of Missouri. While Mr. Reed and Mr. O'Gorman are far less outspoken than Mr. Hitchcock, it is understood that the three incline with more or less agreement toward a temporary amendment and extension of the Aldrich-Vreeland act. While they are not committed to it, their general attitude leads them toward supporting the bill recently introduced by Senator Lea of Tennessee amending that measure so as to put its provisions within easier reach of the smaller banks of rural communities, both State and national.

Radicals Oppose Legislation Now.

Mr. Lea is not a member of the Banking and Currency Committee, but his enthusiastic support of everything radical has given him a position of some strength with the younger Senators. The three committee members opposing currency legislation at this session are all of the advanced wing of the Democratic Party. Mr. O'Gorman, at a party caucus in March, made the motion that overthrew Mr. Bacon as party leader. Mr. Hitchcock takes an advanced position, while Mr. Reed is a radical of the extreme type. But the significance of this classification is obscured by Mr. Owen's record on most subjects as one of the wildest radicals in the Senate.

The Committee on Banking and Currency is composed of seven Democrats and five Republicans. A shift of one Democrat is enough to prevent affirmative action and a favorable report, while the opposition of three Democrats seems to put a favorable report out of the question unless the President finds some way of reaching them. It was rumored to-day that some of the three dissenting Senators might yield their places on the committee to Senators more in sympathy with the Administration's programme, but no basis for the rumor could be found.

COMPANIONS NOT ARRESTED

Follow Thaw to Sherbrooke After Being Freed at Coaticook—Many Messages Reach Thaw.

Special to The New York Times.

SHERBROOKE, Quebec, Aug. 19.—Harry K. Thaw, whose flight from the New York State Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Matteawan ended this morning with his arrest at Coaticook, a few miles within the Canadian border, has already engaged counsel and is marshaling all the resources he can command for a battle in the Dominion courts for freedom. His two companions are here under surveillance. Soon after his arrest, and at the request of Dr. W. L. Shurtleff, his counsel, he was arraigned for a hearing before Justice of the Peace Dupuis of Coaticook, who ordered that he be transferred to the jail at Sherbrooke pending a hearing here on an application for his release on a writ of habeas corpus.

To-morrow morning at 10 o'clock he will be taken before Judge Globensky of the Superior Court, and there Dr. Shurtleff will make the formal application for the writ. It will be alleged on behalf of Thaw that, according to the complaint on which he is held, the only charge against him is that of breaking away from the asylum at Matteawan, which Dr. Shurtleff will contend is not an extraditable offense, as the Canadian law does not say that it is an offense to escape from an asylum.

Should this fail Dr. Shurtleff will attack the form of commitment, which, according to him, is so irregular that the court cannot help but quash the proceedings against Thaw.

Dodged Extradition Commissioner.

The fact that Thaw is coming up tomorrow morning before Judge Globensky in the Superior Court on a writ of habeas corpus instead of before Judge Mulvina, the extradition Commissioner in Sherbrooke, has an important bearing on future aspects of the case. If Thaw appeared before the extradition Commissioner to-morrow he could only be held for fifteen days at the outside. By appearing in the Superior Court on a writ of habeas corpus prepared by his attorney he can fight off judgment for months if necessary.

This choice of habeas corpus proceedings is regarded as a clever stroke on the part of Thaw's attorney, who is well versed in the art of dodging the Canadian law in so far as it concerns American fugitives evading the extradition act.

Although he was animated and very talkative while on the way to the Justices' court, Thaw could not be induced to go into the details of his escape from Matteawan. He did say, however, and he seemed to believe it, that he would regain his freedom tomorrow.

Thaw received many telegrams during the afternoon and evening and several times was called on the long-distance telephone. Some of the messages thus received came from relatives and friends; others were from newspapers offering various sums of money for his own story of his escape. These offers, according to Gov. Laforce of the jail, Thaw refused to consider.

Thaw Meets the Reporters.

Through the courtesy of Gov. La Force THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent obtained a few moments' conversation with Thaw this evening. At 9 o'clock Thaw was excitedly pacing up and down his quarters in the hospital ward of the jail when word was sent up that several newspaper men wanted to see him. He gladly descended to the office below.

"Delighted to see you gentlemen," he exclaimed with a smile, and insisted upon distributing a handful of cigars among the group.

"Mr. Thaw, we would like you to tell us where you were going at the moment of your arrest this morning?" was the first question asked of him.

"I am not giving out any information just now," he said, smilingly. "But I don't mind telling you that ultimately I intended to go to my home in Pittsburgh."

Then Thaw caught sight of the cameras carried by some of the newspaper men. He protested at once.

"Listen to me, gentlemen," he half shouted. "Don't take any photographs to-night. If you do I'll see that you can't photograph me to-morrow morning when I got to the Court House. I won't talk to the press at all to-night unless you promise to put down your cameras. Please me to this extent to-night, and I'll see that you get me good to-morrow."

He was in a highly agitated state, and only when he was assured that no photographs would be taken did he consent to talk with the reporters at all.

Calls Evelyn's Talk Foolish.

In the course of his talk Thaw permitted it to be inferred that he had intended to remain in Canada for a short time only.

"There have been several interviews published with your wife, who asserts that you escaped in order to have vengeance upon her," he was told.

"I will give out nothing at present in regard to such foolish statements," Thaw replied. "They don't trouble me at all. I have obtained the services of Col. Fraser here in Sherbrooke and am guided entirely by his advice in not giving out any information on that particular subject."

Just at that moment the Sheriff called up the Governor of the jail and told him on no account to let any one interview Thaw. So the conversation was reluctantly cut short. Thaw seemed decidedly loath to leave the reporters, however, and hastily told the Governor that he was not giving out any information.

"I am just having a friendly chat with them," he remarked.

Thaw appeared to be in a highly excited condition, and bore unmistakable signs of having undergone a fatiguing journey. He wore a coarse blue serge suit, which was covered with dust, and a much-battered soft felt hat.

From his cell in the county jail tonight, Thaw sent out to the newspaper men a statement under this caption, typewritten, in capitals:

"No one has contended that for two years nearly that Thaw has been in the Tombs he has been insane. There is no evidence of delusion in the slightest degree on his part. Is it anything crazy to take a pistol to defend yourself against a man who calls you a — — —, and threatens to kill you before morning?"

The statement itself was a printed synopsis of the District Attorney's speech—or purported to be such—to the jury at Thaw's second trial, Jan. 30, 1908, for the murder of Stanford White. At the end of the printed synopsis was a statement by Mr. Shurtleff. It read as follows:

"Mr. Thaw has requested me to thank the people for their kindness and strong feeling of fair play. The remarks of Attorney Jerome, the prosecuting attorney, who contended that Thaw was not insane, but shot in defense of his family honor, will naturally be appreciated by Canadians."

To-night Dr. Shurtleff, after dining Thaw's two companions at the leading hotel, took them back with him to his home in Coaticook, where they will be cared for at Thaw's expense until a decision has been reached in the case.

Has Ticket to Detroit.

Two officials of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa, it is reported here to-night, are on their way to Sherbrooke to investigate the movement to have Thaw deported as a defective.

In this connection it is reported here that Thaw has in his possession a railroad ticket to Detroit. It has not been possible to confirm this, but if it is a fact, legal authorities say, it will insure his release to-morrow on the ground that he is simply an alien in transit through the Dominion.

The grounds upon which his return may be sought are these:

First—Through deportation proceedings under that section of the Dominion law which reads as follows:

> No immigrant shall be permitted to land in Canada who is feeble-minded, an idiot, or epileptic, or who is insane, or who has had an attack of insanity within five years; nor shall any immigrant be so landed who is deaf and dumb or blind or infirm unless he belongs to a family accompanying him or already in Canada which gives security satisfactory to the Minister and in conformity with the regulations in that behalf for his permanent support if admitted to Canada.

Second—Through extradition proceedings, instituted by the State of New York and conducted by the proper Federal authorities of the United States, on a warrant for his arrest charging him with bribery.

Thaw cannot be extradited on the warrant already issued in New York for his arrest on a charge of conspiracy, in the opinion of the authorities, because existent treaties between the United States and Great Britain deal only with that brand of conspiracy relating to revolt against the master of a ship on the high seas.

There is, of course, a possibility that Canada will not deport him and will decline to honor an extradition requisition issued by the United States. To these possibilities the wealthy slayer of Stanford White addressed his attention and that of his counsel to-night, preparatory to the hearing set for to-morrow.

The crowds that hung at Thaw's heels at Coaticook were puny in comparison with the throngs that greeted him on his arrival here. Most of Sherbrooke's 18,000 inhabitants swarmed to the station and drowned the rumbling of the train with a mighty cheer as the flier came to a stop. Thaw stepped briskly to the platform, a Deputy leading and a Deputy following, and paused for a moment to gaze at the throng. They almost overwhelmed him with a good-natured welcome. They had expected, apparently, to see him wearing handcuffs. When they saw his wrists were free of irons they cheered again and ran forward to shake his hands. In the ensuing rush he and his guards had to fight their way to the automobile waiting to take him to the jail.

"Let him go," the crowd shouted again and again.

Thaw smiled and bowed in return.

Mr. Shurtleff accompanied his client from Coaticook. At the jail Thaw got from Coaticook. At the jail Thaw was ted to smoke and allowed to send out for his supper. He also ordered a new suit of clothes and fresh linen in preparation for his appearance in court to-morrow.

Story of Thaw's Capture.

Thaw was in the last few miles of his flight from the States when he was recognized as the fugitive slayer of Stanford White. He was recognized because he called attention to himself by talking in a voice that could be heard above the noise of the train, and by asking questions as to his whereabouts and the course that lay ahead of him.

He was then on a Maine Central train that was making its way north through New Hampshire, and due to cross the Canadian border into Quebec just above the little town called Beecher Falls. He was riding in the smoking car with two companions, one tall and heavy in build, and one very slim, with an Irish cast of features. The three probably boarded the train at Portland, Me.

Sitting across the aisle from Thaw and his companions, and deep in his newspaper, was Deputy Sheriff Burleigh H. Kelsea of Coos County, the northernmost of the New Hampshire counties, and the one into which the train had passed. Kelsea had boarded the train at Lancaster, and was bound for his home in Colebrook.

His attention was first attracted to the group across the aisle, when he heard the three speculating as to the county seat of the county through which the train was making its way north. None of them seemed to know, and Kelsea saw one of them lean forward, tap the shoulder of the man sitting in front of him, and heard him ask for information. The man thus questioned said he wasn't sure and suggested that they put the matter up to the man across the aisle.

"He's a Sheriff," was the introduction given with a wave of the hand.

Newspaper Picture Identified Him.

And then Thaw got up and crossed to Kelsea's side, knowing at the time that he was approaching a Sheriff. The question about the county seat was repeated, but the deputy of Coos County fumbled with his answer, so puzzled was he by the face of the man who stood looking down on him with one hand resting lighting on his shoulder. Perhaps it was something in the furtive expression of the eyes—Kelsea cannot remember—but he stared and stared, for he knew he had seen that face before somewhere. He was really a little uncomfortable about it, and as he groped in his mind to arrest the fugitive recollection just beyond his reach his glance fell upon the newspaper that lay unfolded across his lap—the newspaper he had put down when the stranger approached him.

There on the page before him was a photographic reproduction of the man standing at his side. That was where he had seen the face before. Kelsea did not have to scan the big type headlines to know he had been approached by Harry K. Thaw.

He tried hard to think of some casual remark to make as he glanced from the face of the photograph to the face of the man, but he could not. He just stared at the stranger, and the stranger, who, in silence, had been taking all this in, eyed him curiously, speculatively. It was the stranger who broke the silence.

"You don't know who I am, do you?"

The question was put so calmly that Kelsea's own excitement subsided, and he answered coolly:

"I think I could give a good guess."

"Who am I?"

"You're Thaw—Harry K. Thaw."

And Harry Thaw actually smiled. He seemed to feel a certain complacence in the recognition of himself and his importance in this out-of-the-way place.

"Yes, I am Thaw," he said, and then went on argumentatively. "But you

WRITS CHARGE CONSPIRACY

These May Be Changed to Bribery Indictments if Extradition Is Necessary.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Aug. 19.—Harry K. Thaw will not remain long on Canadian soil if the immigration authorities here can prevent it. With this object in view the immigration branch of the Interior Department dispatched two of its immigration Inspectors to Sherbrooke this afternoon. The Inspectors are Dave Reynolds and T. B. Williams, both experienced and well versed in the Canadian laws.

The Inspectors will be on hand at Sherbrooke when Thaw is taken into court, and Thaw will be deported from Canada at once if they can get possession of him. Should his habeas corpus proceeding fail there is hardly a chance that he can escape the meshes of the Canadian immigration law, and he will be deported as an undesirable citizen on the ground that he has been the inmate of an asylum.

It is open to the Canadian officials to deport Thaw at any point on the international boundary. They may take him to the line either on the border of New Hampshire, Vermont, or New York. If they travel to the west of Lake Champlain Thaw will be put into the State of New York, but the intention of the Immigration Department in this respect is not known.

Thaw probably will not be arraigned for extradition on the demand of the American authorities because deportation is an easier and less expensive method of returning him to the United States. It is likely that United States Immigration Inspector Clark will ask for deportation should extradition proceedings be asked and refused, then Thaw would be taken in hand by the Canadian Inspectors and deported without any further ceremony. Should the extradition proceedings be granted deportation still could be resorted to and the situation simplified.

Deportation is Simple.

The ceremony of deporting Thaw will be brief and simple. Inspector Reynolds will ask him if he has been an inmate of an asylum for the insane. This question being answered, Thaw will be taken in charge and sent across the border. His companions also will be subjected to the same examination by the Inspectors, and if they are in Canada in contravention of the immigration law their deportation will follow.

The immigration authorities here have the utmost confidence that Thaw will be outside of Canada by noon to-morrow by the exercise of the deportation provision of the Canadian Immigration Law and without recourse to extradition proceedings. Under the law Thaw would have the right to appeal against a deportation order if he had not been an inmate of an asylum for the insane. If the of an asylum for the insane. If the proceedings were taken on the ground of moral turpitude, Thaw could fight and his stay in Canada might be lengthened indefinitely, but under existing conditions there seems no way in which he can avoid deportation. If necessary, Inspector Reynolds will obtain a medical certificate to the effect that Thaw is insane, and upon receipt of this evidence deportation proceedings will not be stayed.

It is believed here that the American officials in charge of the Thaw case will be glad to avail themselves of the quicker and simpler means afforded by the Canadian deportation regulations, and get him across the international border at the earliest possible moment, rather than trust to the longer and more difficult proceedings following a formal application for extradition.

Police Ready to Act.

It is possible that Thaw and his friends may attempt to obtain their release to-morrow on the ground that their summary arrest and detention is without authority. Should such a plea succeed there still would be the greater obstacle to be overcome upon the arrival of the immigration officers. The inspectors will be in Sherbrooke to-night and will be on hand as soon as Thaw makes his appearance in the morning. In the event of the immigration men meeting with resistance they are empowered to call in to their aid the Sherbrooke police.

The Canadian Department of Justice holds that Thaw and his companions can not be extradited for conspiracy. This again points to the likelihood of recourse to deportation.

The Canadian law says that idiots, imbeciles, insane people, or erstwhile criminals shall not enter the country, and if they do succeed in eluding the officers of the immigration department they shall be deported forthwith.

There is an exception, however, and it is interesting to note that the negro pugilist, Jack Johnson, recently managed to pass through Canada under the clause providing that no one of the prohibited class who enters Canada carrying through transportation to another country shall have his progress impeded.

Information received here does not say whether Thaw has taken the precaution to obtain such transportation.

Objections to deportation proceedings rarely have succeeded as prohibited immigrants have not, under the act, the opportunity of resisting the Inspectors of the Immigration Department.

CONGER OFF FOR CANADA.

Carries Conspiracy Warrants for Thaw and His Companions.

Special to The New York Times.

MATTEAWAN, Aug. 19.—News of the arrest of Harry K. Thaw was received here first by Dr. Raymond T. J. Kieb, Superintendent of the Matteawan State Hospital, in a telephone communication yesterday morning at 9:50 o'clock. The message came from Hector Verrett, an attorney of Coaticook, Stanstead County, Quebec.

Dr. Kieb at first was unable to understand the name of his informant, and suspected that Thaw himself had sent the message through a friend as a ruse to throw the authorities off his trail.

Immediately after having received the communication from Mr. Verrett, Dr. Kieb asked that full information concerning Thaws's arrest be sent to him by telegraph.

Through the day, Dr. Kieb received information from newspaper men. At 12:30 o'clock, when he was informed of the identification of Thaw, he telegraphed the county authorities of Sherbrooke to arrest any men who might be with Thaw.

Meanwhile Dr. John B. Riley, Superintendent of the State Prison Department, who had arrived at the asylum to begin his investigation of Thaw's escape, telegraphed to the United States Consul at Sherbrooke to take the matter in hand.

Dr. Kieb still was doubtful as to the certainty of the identification of Thaw until he received the following telegram from Coaticook at 2:45 o'clock:

> I claim the reward offered for the arrest of Harry K. Thaw. I am also awaiting instructions as promised. Please send these instructions to my lawyer, Hector Verett.
> B. H. KELSEA,
> Deputy Sheriff of Colebrook, N. H.

Soon after Dr. Kieb received the telegram, District Attorney Edward A. Conger reached the asylum bearing a message from Acting Gov. Martin H. Glynn instructing him to make every effort to have Thaw and his companions detained in Canada for return to New York.

Conger Starts for Canada.

Mr. Conger, Sheriff Fred Hornbeck, and ex-District Attorney John E. Mack left Poughkeepsie to-night for Sherbrooke, by way of Montreal, with the hope of getting possession of Thaw and returning him either to the Dutchess County Jail or to the Matteawan Asylum. The Dutchess County officials are armed with a warrant charging conspiracy. It was issued by Supreme Court Justice Morschauser. If it is found that Thaw cannot be extradited on the conspiracy charge, a new warrant, charging bribery, will be applied for and an attempt made to extradite the fugitive on this charge.

When Dr. Kieb and Mr. Conger learned that the Canadian authorities might deport Thaw, they got in touch with the Canadian immigration officials at Sherbrooke and Coaticook and requested that Thaw be dropped off at Rouse's Point. Once back within the boundary of New York State, Mr. Conger said he would have Thaw safely lodged in Matteawan within twenty-four hours. While the Superintendent of Matteawan and the District Attorney were trying to reach the Canadian immigration officers by wire, Dr. Riley sent telegrams to Charles N. Daniels, United States Consul at Sherbrooke, Quebec, and to John J. Foster, United States Consul General at Ottawa. Both were asked to request the Canadian authorities to hold Thaw and his associates for extradition. Consul General Foster was advised that Rouse's Point would be a convenient place for the Canadian immigration officers to carry out any orders of deportation.

It was nearly 6 o'clock before a reply was received from either of the United States Consuls. Mr. Daniels was the first to inform the State and county officials at the asylum that Thaw actually was in jail at Sherbrooke and that he was contemplating habeas corpus proceedings.

Riley Praises Kieb.

Supt. Riley began his investigation of Thaw's escape by questioning members of the hospital staff and several of the keepers. He remained at the hospital until 5 o'clock, and before he started for Albany he issued the following statement:

> Without reflection in any way upon former Superintendents of Matteawan State Hospital, I do not hesitate to say that in my opinion the institution was never so ably managed as it has been since Dr. Kieb was placed in charge. The improvement in additions became immediately apparent when he assumed office; employes and inmates at once realized that the Superintendent while a strict disciplinarian was fair, just, and impartial toward all. The one exception being that the courts interfered and required that Harry K. Thaw be shown special privileges. His escape was undoubtedly due to this unwise interference with the internal management of the institution. Had he been subject to the regulations it would have been impossible for him to have completed the arrangements by which automobiles were to be in waiting at the time agreed upon. Even then his escape would have been impossible had it not been for the gross negligence or worse of an employe, who had been counted as one entirely worthy of the confidence of the Superintendent.
> Judge Tompkins on April 5, prior to Dr. Kieb's appointment, granted an order directing the Superintendent of Prisons, and the Superintendent of the hospital to permit four different persons "to confer privately with said Thaw in some room to be assigned by the authorities for that purpose, not oftener, however, than one day in each week, and for not longer than two hours on any one occasion." An appeal was taken by the Attorney General on April 22 from this order, and the Attorney General advised the Superintendent that such appeal suspended the order, and the Superintendent acting upon such advice refused to allow private interviews with Thaw, whereupon his attorneys on May 27 secured an order from Justice Jenks directing the Superintendent to "obey the provisions of the said order of April 5, 1913, until the determination of this motion." As the appeal has not yet been decided this order still remains in force.
> Hospital Overcrowded.
> In reference to the selection of Dr. Kieb as Superintendent, I may say that Dr. Austin Flint informed me that Dr. Amos T. Baker would accept the appointment of Superintendent and would serve a few months until the chaotic conditions then prevailing could be overcome. I have no reason to question Dr. Flint's judgment regarding Dr. Baker's capacity, but I felt that such an arrangement would not only be unbusinesslike, but that it would also be unfair to Dr. Kieb, whom Dr. Flint urged to be made assistant, with a view to succeeding Dr. Baker as Superintendent when he resigned. The result has shown that I made no mistake in selecting Dr. Kieb for Superintendent. Notwithstanding the fact that the capacity of Matteawan is 617, there are in the institution to-day 857 insane criminals confined therein. The corridors of the institution are converted into dormitories, and the crowded conditions make the management of the institution very difficult, indeed.
> Certain newspapers, because of this escape, have sought to create the impression that the hospitals for the criminal insane and State prison were in a demoralized condition. Thaw's escape shows nothing of the kind. His being in the yard for exercise was perfectly proper. He escaped because a single employe out of the 183 employes at Matteawan failed to perform his duty.

NEW HAMPSHIRE DOUBTFUL.

State Laws Favor Thaw, but Authorities Are Against Him.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 19.—There is no statute in New Hampshire which provides for the extradition of lunatics. According to attorneys here, the only opportunity the officials of New York have to get Thaw back into the jurisdiction of their State is by preferring criminal charges against him, such as that of conspiracy. Even then a legal fight could be made in his behalf on the ground that as an insane person he was not capable of being party to a conspiracy.

Recently an insane murderer who escaped from the State Hospital here was captured in Pennsylvania and extradited. He had previously been found guilty of murder, however, and later was adjudged insane. Attorneys here point out that Thaw has been adjudged not guilty because of his mental condition, and that, therefore, the same conditions would not apply.

Attorney General James P. Tuttle said to-night that he could not say what would be done in case Thaw was returned to New Hampshire from Canada, but he added:

"You can rest assured, New Hampshire will go the limit to get him back into responsible hands."

CANADIAN LAW IS PLAIN.

Sweeping Provisions for Deporting All Undesirable Aliens.

The Canadian immigration law under which it seems likely that Harry K. Thaw will be dealt with, when he is produced in court to-day are simple to the last degree. The law vests in the Commissioner of Immigration almost unlimited descretion to deport any person, not a Canadian, whom he may consider undesirable. Moreover, from his decision there is practically no appeal.

For instance, the Commissioner of Immigration and his agents while acting under his instructions are, so far as is known, the sole persons in Anglo Saxon jurisdiction against whom a writ of habeas corpus is ineffectual.

The Canadian Immigration law contains this sweeping provision:

> No Court and no Judge or officer thereof shall have jurisdiction to review, quash, reverse, restrain, or otherwise interfere with any proceeding, decision, or order of the Minister (of the Interior) or of any Board of Inquiry or officer in charge and made or given under the authority and in accordance with the provisions of this act relating to the detention or deportation of any rejected immigrant, passenger, or other person upon any ground whatsoever, unless such person is a Canadian citizen or has Canadian domicile.

In other words, the alien has no standing whatever in court against the officer who orders his rejection, if the officer has based his rejection upon any one of the broad prohibitions of the immigration law. For instance, not so very long ago a Frenchwoman, whose past the authorities had reason to believe was open to suspicion, was ordered detained pending deportation under a provision of the Canadian law very similar to our own. The immigrant had many powerful friends. Almost immediately a lawyer appeared with a writ of habeas corpus directed against the Commissioner of Immigration, who, in answer, pointed to Section 23 of the immigration law quoted above.

"You may as well tear that writ up," suggested the Commissioner. The lawyer examined the section and his face fell.

"I suppose I must," he said. "I didn't know you had all that behind you." And the woman was deported without more ado.

There is one exception to the general rule under which almost anybody who is undesirable can be excluded. That is the provision under which Jack Johnson, the prizefighter, out under bail pending an appeal against the Chicago decision sentencing him to prison for violation of the Mann White Slavery act, was able to travel unmolested through Canada and take a steamship for France. The law provides for the deportation of any undesirable who has gone into Canada "otherwise than by continuous journey from the country, of which he is a native or naturalized citizen, and upon a through ticket purchased in that country, or prepared in Canada."

So far as is known, however, Thaw has no steamship or other ticket which would bring him under this provision.

Emma Goldman, who rarely has trouble about going where she pleases in the United States, can bear witness to the simplicity and effectuality of Canada's exclusion of persons whose record or opinions the authorities do not approve. Miss Goldman was on a lecturing tour of the West, the benefits of which she purposed extending to such Canadian cities as it might be profitable to visit. The Canadians heard that the woman Anarchist was coming. At the frontier she met Bruce Walker, Assistant Superintendent of Immigration, from Winnipeg, silk-hatted, frock-coated, and immaculate, who introduced himself. Miss Goldman expressed her appreciation of the kindness which gave her an official welcome and her pleasure at meeting the Commissioner.

"That's all right, Miss Goldman," said the polite Superintendent, "but I am not going to let you in."

"And why not?" demanded the Anarchist lecturer. "Isn't this a free country?"

"I'm afraid it would not be for long if we let you in," responded the suave Mr. Walker.

And she stayed out, to the keen regret of the officials of our own immigration service, who, had she once gone outside, would probably never have admitted her again.

THAW WIRES TO O'MARA.

Asks Advice and Is Told to Hire Best Legal Talent.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 19.—It is probable that Roger O'Mara, guardian of Harry K. Thaw and former superintendent of Pittsburgh's police, will leave here soon for Canada to look after certain interests of his ward. O'Mara received a telegram to-day from Thaw as follows:

"Am under arrest. Advise."

Mr. O'Mara sent a long telegram in reply. He told Thaw to hire the best legal talent; not to worry and to feel assured that everything possible was being done.

O'Mara denied that Thaw had wired to Pittsburgh to-day for a large sum of money and stated that Thaw did not need money at this time. He said, however, that Thaw might have sent such a request to his mother at Cresson, Penn.

WIFE CALLS HIM A MANIAC.

If They Let Him Go, What He Does Will Be on Their Heads, Evelyn Says

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw when told of the news of her husband's arrest said:

"If they let him go, what he does will be on their own heads. I cannot imagine the authorities of any country or city allowing Thaw to be at large. He is a menace to society and a dangerous maniac."

Attention was called to Thaw's probable plan to sail for Europe. Mrs. Thaw seemed genuinely distressed, and exclaimed:

"Do you think he means to harm the baby? If he sails I shall cable and have the baby brought over on the next steamer."

COULD RETURN THAW ON BRIBERY CHARGE

But Washington Expects Canada Will Prefer to Deport Him as a Defective.

CONSPIRACY CASE FALLS

State Warrant Based on That Charge Will Not Hold Under Our Treaty with Great Britain.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—In the opinion of Government officials there is ample treaty authority for the extradition of Harry K. Thaw from Canada to New York State. The complicated situation affecting the Governorship at Albany makes it doubtful, however, that Thaw's extradition could be obtained without delay, as the first step in the proceedings would be a request from the Governor of New York that the United States Government request the British and Canadian authorities to surrender Thaw to American officers.

John Bassett Moore, counselor of the State Department, spent considerable time to-day in looking up the treaty provisions and precedents in similar cases. It is clear that if an attempt is made to get Thaw back into the State of New York by extradition the business must be undertaken through the State Department acting directly with Great Britain.

An examination of all the extradition treaties back as far as that of 1842, which is the basic extradition treaty, fails to discover any crime for which Thaw could be accused as a means of extraditing him except that of bribery. This appears in Article 1 of the supplemental treaty of 1905, where bribery and offenses against the bankruptcy laws of both countries are mentioned. Bribery is defined to be "the offering, giving or receiving of bribes where made criminal by the laws of both countries."

Would Have To Justify Demand.

In case Thaw should be held under the charge of bribery it would be necessary for the New York State authorities to produce evidence before the State Department that would justify the demand for the delivery of the body of Thaw to the Federal authorities, who in turn would give him up to the New York authorities. There also would be a hearing on the facts before the Canadian authorities; Thaw would be privileged to be represented by counsel, and the hearing would be conducted very much as a trial, with every right of the prisoner fully protected by the court.

The first step in such extradition proceedings would be the application of the Governor of New York to the President of the United States for a request to be made on the British Government for Thaw. The procedure would then be conducted through the State Department and the British Embassy in the United States, the British Embassy dealing directly with the Canadian Government. The Canadian authorities have the right to pass finally on extradition cases after all the facts have been heard before the local court or a Commissioner and reported to the Government council.

Thaw, meantime, could be admitted to bail and enjoy his liberty pending the ultimate determination of the case. It is believed that the proceedings might be drawn out over a good deal of time and involve many complicated processes of law.

Can't Hold Him for Conspiracy.

The idea of apprehending Thaw under the charge of conspiracy was examined by Counsellor Moore, with the result that it was concluded that the crime of conspiracy as it is stated in the extradition treaty of 1889 applies only to what is generally called mutiny on the high seas. In the revised statutes of the United States this crime is usually called revolt. The English law calls it mutiny. It is clear, therefore, that Thaw has not committed the crime intended to be described by the word "conspiracy" in the treaty of 1889.

The most obvious way in which the fugitive from Matteawan could be recommitted to the New York asylum would be by deporting him under the Canadian immigration laws.

The Canadian statutes provide that any person who has been confined in any asylum for the insane within five years from the time when he is apprehended shall not be admitted into the Dominion. In the matter of deportation the Canadian authorities are under no restraint of treaties or laws other than their own. They can choose the route by which the objectionable person shall be sent out of the country and may put him over the boundary line at any point they may select. For whatever may happen after that they are not responsible.

New Hampshire May Get Him.

It would do Thaw no good to show that he is not at this time insane or that he had recovered from any mental or physical condition or disease. The Canadian authorities would be bound only by the records showing that he had been confined at Matteawan within the period of time mentioned in their statutes.

To take Thaw deliberately to the New York State line in order to deport him, however, would be a voluntary act of excessive desire to act in comity with another country which could hardly be expected of the Canadian authorities.

Coaticoke, where Thaw is held, is seventy-five miles from Rouse's Point, N. Y., the nearest place in the State where he could be delivered to the State authorities. But by railroad it is fully 150 miles between the two places, as all the roads in that section run north and south, rather than east and west.

It is only a few miles over the Grand Trunk Railway southward to the international boundary in New Hampshire, and it is the reasonable expectation that if deportation is decided on Thaw will be taken back to the United States at that point rather than by the extraordinary course of taking him to Rouse's Point, which would be obviously for the purpose of giving him up to be reincarcerated in an insane asylum.

Right of an Insane Traveler.

There is nothing in any of the treaties between the United States and Great Britain, however, which makes it unlawful for even an insane person who observes good behavior to travel through either country from the other if his intended and avowed destination is a country foreign to both. This is a law point which Thaw's lawyers will not be slow to make use of, and probably it will be the one by which the case ultimately will be settled, as Thaw's contention is said to be that he intended to sail from Quebec for Europe. He is not a criminal or an immigrant. Having entered Canada as a traveler destined for a country across the Atlantic, he may be adjudged to have rights which are paramount to all the direct and indirect means proposed to get him back into the jurisdiction of New York. Jack Johnson went to Canada after jumping his bail in Chicago, but the Dominion authorities declined to arrest him, as he had a through ticket from the United States to Europe via Quebec.

When asked if he had determined which Governor of New York to recognize in the Thaw extradition proceedings, if they should be begun, Counsellor Moore smiled and begged to be excused from giving a professional opinion on every legal question that might be involved in the case.

THAW CAPTURED PLANS A FIGHT

don't want me. You couldn't do anything with me. I was acquitted of that murder, and they can't extradite me."

Then Thought of the Reward.

The Deputy Sheriff of Coos County did some pretty fast thinking in the next few moments. He had read of the reward offered, he could make a shrewd guess at the approach to an international reputation that would be won by the man who halted the flight of Harry Thaw, and then and there he resolved mentally that he, himself, would land Thaw in captivity. All this buzzed in his mind as he assented outwardly to Thaw's interpretation of the law by saying:

"No, I guess not. Where are you going?"

Then Thaw said he was going to Canada, which was obvious enough, and that he was going to cross the water, which Kelsea had guessed. And Kelsea gathered from what he had overheard that Thaw would leave the Maine Central to cross the country to the Grand Trunk Railroad, either at Beecher Falls, which is on the New Hampshire side of the Canadian boundary, or a mile or so further on at Hereford, which is on the Quebec side.

Kelsea himself had pressing business in Colebrook, which at a late hour the train was then approaching, and he knew he would have to get off. He did get off, and so, apparently for the purpose of getting an automobile to pick up the Thaw party further along the route, did one of Thaw's companions.

Kelsea hurried to his home, finished up his own business, and made his own arrangements for a high-powered motor car. He routed out L. W. Barbour of Colebrook as chauffeur and took with him for advice and the fun of the chase a Colebrook lawyer by the name of Walter Drew.

Within an hour the pursuing automobile was tearing along the State road bound for the Canadian border. In the small hours of the morning Kelsea passed through Beecher Falls and learned that the man he was after had not alighted there. He pushed on to Hereford and there picked up the trail.

Abandoned at Night by Driver.

At Hereford Kelsea learned that Thaw and his companions had found a liveryman and pushed on into the Canadian woods, bound toward Coaticook and the Grand Trunk. They had driven some five miles when the liveryman became suspicious that his fares were not all that they should be. He did not like this night ride, which savored so much of flight, and one or two things he overheard in Thaw's excited chatter aroused distrust. There, on a dark and lonesome road, the rig was halted and the driver announced that he was going back to Hereford. The two fares seemed happy to be rid of him, they paid his charges without dispute and went on afoot.

This tramp lasted until they came to a farmhouse. They banged on the door, brought forth the drowsy farmer, showed him enough money to make him open his eyes, and then engaged his horse and wagon, with himself as driver.

Where was the next village?

St. Hermenigilde de Garford?

They would pay him $9 for the job. The Quebec farmer was content, and a little later Thaw and his companion were lodged in their rooms in Cadieux's Hotel, the only inn in the village of St. Hermenigilde de Garford, two miles from Coaticook, the next objective of the flight.

Into the village at 4 o'clock in the morning swept an automobile, bringing the Deputy Sheriff of Coos County, N. H. Kelsea made sure his man was in the hotel asleep, and then he sped on to Coaticook, routed out the village constable, and returned to the inn.

Then Denied He Was Thaw.

At 6 o'clock this morning, Kelsea, stepping close behind the still bewildered constable, walked into the kitchen at Cadieux's and confronted the fugitive, who had been rejoined by the companion that had left the train at Colebrook back in New Hampshire. And though Kelsea, the man to whom he had admitted his identity the night before in the train, was eyeing him contentedly, Thaw shook his head positively.

"Why, I'm not Thaw," he said, with an excellent simulation of candor. "Look here, Mr. Constable, I'll bet you $10 I'm not Harry Thaw."

But, backed by the inescapable Kelsea, the Coaticook constable was not to be shaken off that way, and with all due dispatch Thaw and his two attendants were taken by motor to the Coaticook lock-up, Thaw to be put under lock and key and the two men to be kept under the eyes of the authorities. Meanwhile the news of the capture was sent over the wires to Matteawan and to Ottawa.

Thaw seesawed between frank admissions and stout denials that he was the fugitive from the asylum, but the certainty of the Canadian officials was rendered doubly certain when he sent off telegrams, one to his mother and one to Roger O'Mara, the Pittsburgh detective who has done so many jobs for Harry Thaw.

Thaw's first readiness to talk in good French to any one that questioned him—and half the residents of Coaticook wanted to do that—came to a sudden stop after he had asked for a lawyer and been entrusted to the care of Dr. W. L. Shurtleff. He and his lawyer talked behind closed doors for more than an hour, when he was taken to the office of Justice of the Peace Dupuis.

Amazed at Charge Against Him.

There formal complaint and request that he be held was made by Kelsea, represented by Hector Verret, Kings Counsel of Coaticook. This was the astonishing charge:

"That Harry Thaw was legally convicted and confined for life and unlawfully escaped from the penitentiary."

Thaw was agnast at this, but the Justice of the Peace did not propose to suffer any obstacles to the swift and certain recapture of the fugitive. The proceedings were of the briefest. Thaw was not allowed to enter a plea, but was ordered committed without bail to the Sherbrooke Jail for a hearing to-morrow morning.

Thaw seemed utterly discouraged as he was led back to the village lock-up to await the 2:30 train for Sherbrooke. Each successive event of the day seemed to make him more and more nervous, and soon he was so upset that all those hovering about him nodded their heads and said he must be crazy.

He refused to eat anything and the doctor who examined him announced gravely that he was suffering from excitement. Later, when he was taken to the station, his appetite came back to him and he partook of a hard-boiled egg and two sandwiches, to the intense interest of the greater part of the population of Coaticook.

Thaw's two friends occupy a peculiar position here. Neither to the officials nor to others have they revealed their identity, and they are not under arrest. They are simply being kept within reach. If they tried to take their departure they would probably find something happening to them and they seem to know that and are surly about it. They followed Thaw from Coaticook to Sherbrooke.

One of the men is five feet ten inches in height and weighs 185 pounds. He is wearing a blue suit and a peaked cap. His eyes are blue and his face is heavy and of Germanic type. He does not appear to be at all acquainted with the country. The other man is of lighter build, weighing only 145 pounds. His height also is five feet ten inches. He wears a gray suit and a coarse straw hat, and looks to be of Irish extraction. He says he has friends in Toronto.

Constable's Report of the Arrest.

Here is Constable Boudeau's formal report on the arrest:

"On information furnished by Sheriff B. H. Kelsea of Colebrook, N. H., I arrested a man supposed to be Harry K. Thaw. The suspect is about 35 years of age, brown complexion. He wears a bluish suit and derby hat. He was taken into custody at 5 o'clock this morning. When arrested he did not say anything except that he was not Harry K. Thaw.

"He was brought to Coaticook and will be removed to Sherbrooke, Quebec, the chief jail of the district, to be held there pending further developments in the case. When told he was arrested under suspicion of being Harry K. Thaw he looked to be nervous, but became cool immediately, and replied he was not the man wanted. He offered to bet $10 he was not Thaw. The suspect speaks fluent French with a Parisian accent.

"Thaw arrived with a team from the boundary."

Telegrams Seem to Reassure Her and She Is Smiling When She Arrives at Elmhurst.

Special to The New York Times.

CRESSON, Penn., Aug. 19.—Gayly chatting with her woman traveling companion, smiling and laughing, although she undoubtedly knew that her son, Harry, was under arrest, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw stepped from the Pennsylvania Limited at 5:22 o'clock this evening, threw up her parasol before the fire of a battery of cameras, climbed into her motor car and was whisked over the two miles to the Thaw Summer mansion Elmhurst.

"I have received no word from Harry since the letter in yesterday's mail," said Mrs. Thaw. "I have heard nothing from Quebec beyond what newspapermen told me on the train coming over from New York."

Mrs. Thaw, who left New York City this morning on the hint in Harry's letter that he would meet her in Cresson, gave no visible evidence of disappointment over the sudden turn in her son's affairs.

All Mrs. Thaw's plans after arriving at Elmhurst indicated she was ready to leave for Canada at once if necessary.

As Mrs. Thaw stepped to the platform of the train several cameras were trained on her. She quickly turned her back, then opened her parasol, and held it so it shielded her head and face. The conductor obligingly opened the doors on the other side of the car, and Mrs. Thaw hurried to her automobile, taking a roundabout course over the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Turnpike to the Thaw cottage. Half a dozen automobiles bearing reporters and photographers went with all speed to Elmhurst, and as Mrs. Thaw stepped from her automobile at the veranda of Elmhurst she found the cameras aimed at her.

"Close your cameras at once," she ordered. "Get out of here. The audacity and the impudence of you in intruding upon private grounds!"

Again the parasol shield went up, but at her order the camera men left the grounds.

Mrs. Thaw at first refused to see reporters, but finally relented, consenting to an interview, which took place in the library. The most conspicuous decoration of the room was a recent photograph of Harry Thaw. It was in a rich silver frame and stood on an easel.

In most positive terms Mrs. Thaw stated that she had received no word from Harry Thaw since the letter he sent just after his escape from Matteawan.

"I have nothing to say to the public," Mrs. Thaw said. "I have told all I know."

"Have you heard from Harry—that he is under arrest in Canada?" was asked.

"I have not heard from Harry since the letter received in the mails yesterday," Mrs. Thaw replied.

"Have you heard about his arrest?" was next asked.

"Only what I read in telegrams which newspaper men showed to me on the train coming from New York."

On the trip from New York to Cresson, Mrs. Thaw received several telegrams, and as she stepped from the train at Cresson, the ticket agent handed one to her. She opened it, smiled, and immediately resumed chatting with her women companion.

Mrs. Thaw received word of Harry's arrest when the train reached North Philadelphia.

"I can't believe it," she exclaimed. "I don't believe it."

She was silent for a moment, and tears came to her eyes. "Even if I do believe it," she added brokenly, "I am going home, it will not change my plans. I am going home and stay there."

She declined to read the details of her son's arrest, and refused to make any further statement. For the remainder of the trip she sat for much of the time steadily gazing out of the window.

Before Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw left New York yesterday for her Summer home in Cresson, Penn., she said:

"I am hungry to see my boy. Only a mother knows what that hunger means. I understand that Harry cannot be extradited. I will consult with counsel to determine definitely. I want to do nothing that will mar Harry's happiness or jeopardize his safety."

Mrs. Thaw arose early after an almost sleepless night and had breakfast in her apartments in the Hotel Gotham, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, with her sister, Miss Copley, and her daughter and son-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Carnegie and George Lauder Carnegie.

She motored to the Pennsylvania Terminal with Mrs. Carnegie and a maid. As she was about to step into the auto, a man who had been waiting in front of the hotel pressed forward and thrust a paper into her hand. It was a summons issued by United States Commissioner Gilchrist on complaint of John B. Gleason of 2 Rector Street, who sued to recover an alleged unpaid counsel fee of $53,000, earned in the legal proceedings last instituted by Thaw in an effort to gain his release from Matteawan.

When Mrs. Thaw alighted at the Pennsylvania Terminal she was met by William H. Moore, a private detective formerly in her son's employ.

SCOTT BLAMES SULZER.

Escape Is Result of Department's Demoralized Condition, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Aug. 18.—"It was charged that my appointment as Superintendent of State Prisons was made so that Thaw would be freed from Matteawan," said Col. J. F. Scott, whom Gov. Sulzer recently ousted from that post, on his farm in Eden Mills this evening, "but his escape has come under a different régime, one in which the demoralized condition of the Prison Department cries to Heaven.

"I appointed two Superintendents of the State Hospital for the Insane at Matteawan, Drs. May and Russell, and under neither of these men did Thaw succeed in gaining his freedom.

"As for what can be done with Thaw it is evident that, not being a criminal, he cannot be held as a fugitive from justice. The only thorough examination that Thaw ever underwent was conducted by Dr. May and Dr. Russell, and it was the findings of these physicians that Thaw was legally insane.

"I have the greatest respect for the efficiency and integrity of Dr. Kieb, the present Superintendent at Matteawan. It would hardly have been necessary to bribe the keepers providing Thaw had the nerve to take a chance. And it was not so great a chance after all, as the keepers at asylums, even those for the criminally insane, are not armed.

Needed a Trap Gate.

"It may not be generally known that at other gates to penal institutions there are what are called traps. A team will drive in and a gate will be shut behind it. Then the inside gate will be opened, the process resembling the passing of a boat through a lock in a canal. Now at the particular gate at Matteawan that Thaw chose for his escape, the wall or barrier is made of plank, and there is no trap at the entrance. A keeper is stationed there instead, and upon him devolves the responsibility of seeing that none of the inmates escape. It would be a simple thing for Thaw to have darted out, and his escape does not necessarily indicate that Barnum, the gatekeeper, had been bribed.

"The Thaw wealth has caused a great deal of trouble and disgrace to fall upon many of those who have been connected with the efforts to free Thaw, however, and it is plainly evident that in Sunday's conspiracy every detail had been carefully worked out and the human machine well oiled with money. The unfortunate mix-up at Albany came at an auspicious moment and possibly hastened Thaw's decision to break away.

"Thaw was incensed at the administration preceding my own, but in my time he quieted down, began to work, and ate the ordinary food of the institution. His mother, who had taken up her residence in Matteawan, also became more contented and went away. Things like these emphasize the difference attending the demoralized conditions in the State Prisons Department to-day. Efficient men, trained for the posts of Wardens at Sing Sing, Auburn, and Dannemora, have been replaced by local politicians.

The Trouble at Sing Sing.

"At Sing Sing I appointed John S. Kennedy warden, and he was respected and liked by the men, and when he was removed, under indictments, the prisoners rebelled, and we have read of the 'mutinies' that followed. Prisoners are not entirely different from other men, and they do not countenance injustice in any form.

"Kennedy was twenty years on the police force in New York City, and for ten years was probation officer, so that he had valuable experience that fitted him for warden as Sing Sing.

"When Dr. May received another appointment by Gov. Dix I made Dr. Russell his successor. Dr. Russell was then Assistant Superintendent at Matteawan, and Dr. Kieb was a candidate to succeed Dr. May. I did not deem it best, however, to change him from his position at Dannemora. Dr. Kieb had charge there of a different class of insane. At Dannemora Hospital there are kept the male criminals who become insane while in prison. At Matteawan are the insane women criminals, and women and men like Thaw, who have been committed by the courts, but have been convicted of no crimes.

"My first clash with Gov. Sulzer came over the appointment of Rattigan as warden at Auburn. The result is history. I do not care to rake up old scores at this time, but even up here in peaceful Vermont I often think with pleasure of how the State Senate Democrats, Republicans, and Progressives alike, voted to sustain me."

Col. Scott is living on the farm at Eden Mills, forty-nine miles from Burlington, where he spent his boyhood. He leads much the life of a country squire, and is the big man at the Mills. A rebuilt church, half the expense of which Col. Scott defrayed, a new bell, and other things about the village attest his thoughtfulness. He says he is having his first rest in many years, and he enjoys it.

STATE OFFICIALS HOPEFUL.

Feel Sure Canada Will Deport Thaw—Butler a Friend of Sulzer.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 19.—Officials in the office of Attorney General Carmody believe that Harry Thaw will be deported by the Canadian authorities. Deputy Attorney General Parsons communicated to-day with District Attorney Conger of Dutchess County, who consulted with the Canadian officials over the telephone Attention was called to the Canadian immigration law providing that "no immigrant, passenger, or other person, unless a Canadian citizen, shall be permitted to land in Canada if he is insane or has been insane within five years of the time he attempts to land." A board of inquiry is provided for, and in the case of an appeal to this board the burden of proof is upon the person who appeals.

A formal request was sent to the provincial authorities of Quebec to send Thaw across the border at Rouse's Point. This would land him in the State of New York, where, according to Dr. Riley, Superintendent of Prisons, he could be arrested without any procedure involving red tape and litigation. At a late hour to-night Supt. Riley had not received a reply to his request.

Richard J. Butler, whose name figures in the Thaw escape, has been in Albany frequently during the Sulzer Administration. Mr. Sulzer desired to appoint Butler as port warden, but was informed by Charles F. Murphy that the Senate would not confirm him. Butler aided Mr. Sulzer in the last campaign, making several speeches.

Senator Frawley, Chairman of the Legislative Investigating Committee, was interested in the report that efforts were to be made by ex-Justice William H. Olmstead of Thaw's counsel to obtain his transfer under Section 109 of the insanity law, which directs the deportation of insane persons who are aliens or non-residents. Louis A. Sarecky, Mr. Sulzer's campaign agent, is a member of the Board of Deportation. Senator Frawley said he would look into the matter, and if the situation warranted would examine Sarecky in relation to the report.

When Senator Frawley was asked if his committee would make an investigation of the circumstances surrounding Thaw's escape as part of the inquiry into the management of the Prison Department, he said that Acting Gov. Glynn would make that investigation.

Acting Gov. Glynn gave out this telegram received from District Attorney Conger of Dutchess County to-day:

> Hon. Martin H. Glynn, Acting Governor, Albany:
> Have been using every effort to detain persons arrested in Canada in connection with the escape of Harry K. Thaw. Have been in communication with the police authorities and the immigrant authorities of Canada, and am leaving to-night for Sherbrooke, Quebec.
> EDWARD A. CONGER,
> District Attorney of Dutchess County.

"DESPERATE, LIKE THAW."

So Gray Raids a Jewelry Store, but Is Quickly Captured.

Special to The New York Times.

ALLENTOWN, Penn., Aug. 19.—"Like Harry Thaw, I might as well do something desperate," wrote William Gray in a letter addressed to a New York newspaper. So Gray, who hails from Syracuse, N. Y., and is said to be the son of wealthy parents there, to-day attacked Frank Musselman, a jeweler, in his store here.

While the jeweler was showing him some clocks, Gray picked up a bronze ornament and struck Musselman on the head, felling him. A passerby called the police. Gray did not have time to grab more than a few trinkets. He was captured at a garage, where he was offering big inducements to be taken out of town quickly.

It was learned that Gray's wife was at Saegersville, and she came here and told her story. She was Henrietta Blackburn, a Philadelphia nurse. Last Winter she met Gray in Syracuse and refused his offer of marriage. When her work there was ended, she returned to Philadelphia and later secured employment at the Rittersville Asylum. In June Gray appeared there with $1,400 as evidence that he had buckled down to work, and they were married in Allentown.

Gray says his money had run out, and he reasoned that the easiest way to get more was by robbing the jewelry store. As he was being locked up the police discovered that he had a bottle in his hand, and this was found to contain poison. The letter also was found in which he said he might as well do something desperate, like Thaw.

POLICE LAY BARE ENTIRE THAW PLOT

Owner of the Touring Car Says Ex-Assemblyman Butler Hired It at $50 a Day.

FOUND IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

First Plan Was to Rush Thaw Into Pennsylvania — $25,000 the Conspiracy Fee.

Except for the identity of the chief conspirator, practically all of the details of the plot by which Harry Kendall Thaw escaped from the Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane are known to the authorities. Evidence obtained yesterday established to the satisfaction of the police that the arrest of ex-Assemblyman Richard J. Butler and William Thompson, better known to his associates as "Educated Roger" Thompson, would be followed by confessions that would clear the case of all its mystery. It is expected they will be in custody within forty-eight hours.

Butler hired the big touring car in which Thaw made his sensational flight out of this State and northward through Connecticut, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire to the Canadian frontier. The car was found last night near Rochester, N. H., where it had been abandoned. It was owned by John Collins, President of the Packard Automobile Renting Company of 1,491 Broadway.

Mr. Collins went to Police Headquarters yesterday and conferred with Deputy Commissioner Dougherty. He said he rented the car, a six-cylinder, sixty horse power machine, to Butler, who arranged to use it "a few days" at $50 a day. Butler paid $80 and took the car last Friday morning. Thompson, who was in Collins's employ and bore a good reputation, was the chauffeur. The police are convinced that Butler engaged Thomas R. Flood, a chauffeur of 547 Tenth Avenue; Michael O'Keefe, brother-in-law of Butler, and Eugene Duffy, known as the "Mayor of Ninth Avenue," to aid him in his work.

Negotiations for the men to carry out the plot were begun at least a month ago. The original plan was to carry Thaw from Matteawan to Port Jervis, and thence into Pennsylvania, where his lawyers would make a fight against extradition. It is believed that the plan was changed because some one guiding Thaw's counsel was not sanguine of the successful outcome of a legal contest either in Pennsylvania or any other State in the Union.

Among chauffeurs in the Times Square district, who were on call for undertakings that must be guarded, there was gossip a month ago about a mysterious job which would pay "big money." The amount named was between $10,000 and $25,000, which would be divided among the participants. The police assume that this prize was the price paid by Thaw's lieutenants for his liberation.

The identification of the touring car was established through Collins. He told Commissioner Dougherty he received a telephone message on Sunday night saying it would be all right, but when he had not heard from it yesterday he communicated with the police. It carried license No. 36,824, and motor No. 35,176, and was insured at a valuation of $6,000.

Butler took charge of the car on Friday morning, Thompson, O'Keefe, and Duffy riding with him to Fishkill Landing where they arrived soon after 7 P. M. Flood, who was described by the police as being about 25 years of age, 142 pounds in weight, five feet seven and a half inches in height, with brown hair and blue eyes, reached Fishkill Landing in the landaulet on Saturday at noon. Thompson, who took considerable pride in his personal appearance and education, formerly was employed as a chauffeur by Mrs. L. C. Weir, C. H. Boynton, and others. He did not associate with other chauffeurs more than was necessary in the day's work. It is by no means certain that other than Butler of the five men knew what was their mission when they went to Fishkill Landing. The time when they were told that they were to assist in Thaw's escape was after they went to their rooms at midnight last Saturday. This fact explains, the authorities say, why they registered under their right names instead of seeking concealment.

It remains to be established who carried to Thaw inside the State Hospital news of the progress of the plot. The name of every person who called on Thaw since last June 12, when Dr. Kieb took charge as Superintendent of the institution, is known. William Vanamee of Newburg, N. Y., of his counsel, was the last caller. He conferred with Thaw for two hours on Friday, the day that Butler and his helpers arrived in Fishkill Landing, which is four miles from Matteawan.

In looking up Butler's record yesterday the police found that he was one of the alibi witnesses who appeared for John McNamara, alias "Australian Jack," described as a yeggman and bank robber, in the extradition proceedings before United States Commissioner Shields some months ago.

Butler testified that McNamara attended a boxing contest in Madison Square Garden on the night of the robbery in British Columbia. The alibi failed, McNamara was extradited, and a few weeks ago was tried and convicted.

Butler returned to New York on Monday night, but did not go to his home, 366 West Twenty-seventh Street, although he was in constant communication by telephone with his wife. Mrs. Butler and her children left the place with their baggage at 9 P. M., and did not return yesterday. It is reported that Butler communicated with a friend, saying he was not concerned in Thaw's escape, but was "going to beat it for a while." One of his haunts was a well-known Broadway restaurant near Collins's office, and he was known to Collins, who had no hesitation in renting the valuable automobile to him.

Thompson lives with his mother at 4 Hancock Place, in Harlem. She is highly esteemed by her neighbors and holds a responsible place in a downtown department store. She said last night:

"My son left home on Friday morning, saying he had been engaged to take a party into the country. He told me he might be gone several days and not to worry. I am sure he was not concerned in the Thaw escape, and he will be home soon."

It was learned yesterday that Thompson had an engagement to meet Butler last Friday. He had made the following memorandum on a card:

"Aug. 15, Mr. Butler, 9:30, at Subway station."

FARMER HOLDS THAW CAR.

Fugitive and Companion Left It in Stable Near Rochester, N. H.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 19.—Harry K. Thaw is believed to have been seen in this section on Sunday [illegible] by James Corson, a farmer living at Adams Corner, [illegible] by Miss Hazel Rankins, and by William F. Hartford, a car conductor.

An automobile containing two men drove up to J. Rankins farm in Rochester [illegible]. Mr. Rankins was in Rochester, and Miss Hazel Rankins, [illegible] two men wanted to leave the car in her stable, saying they would pay for the privilege, and [illegible] call for the machine. [illegible] to put the machine in the barn, and they paid her $2.25.

She noticed that the chauffeur did all of the talking while the other man appeared rather nervous, not appearing to like the surroundings. He was of medium height, weighed about 180 pounds, and had very thick lips. He also wore colored spectacles.

The men inquired the route to the White Mountains and before leaving they said the car belonged to John Collins of New York City and that its owner or other persons would call for it. The two men then went across the road to James Corson's residence and hired him to drive them to the electric car tracks, a half-mile away.

A newspaper picture of Thaw attracted Mr. Corson's attention and he at once said that it was a likeness of one of the men he had driven to the electric cars. Miss Rankins also identified the picture.

The automobile is a six-cylinder, seven-passenger car, licensed N. Y. 36,824. The motor works number is 4,243, while the make is 35,176.

There was no gasolene in the tank and the spark plug had been cut. In the car were two auto coats and several bottles of tonic, evidently having been purchased near Worcester.

The numbers of the car described in the foregoing dispatch identify it as the one which Richard J. Butler hired from John Collins in this city.

be decided upon by concurrent resolution.

The Acting President of the Senate, Robert F. Wagner, to-night received a telegram from Chief Judge Edgar M. Cullen of the Court of Appeals, informing him that Sept. 18, the date set for the High Court of Impeachment to convene, would be convenient to the Court of Appeals Judges. The message was sent from Northeast Harbor, Maine, where Judge Cullen is spending the Summer. It came in reply to a letter sent by Mr. Wagner notifying the Chief Judge of the date fixed for the trial.

There was a meeting of the Assembly Managers of Impeachment this afternoon in the room of Mr. Levy, their Chairman. The meeting was preliminary. The principal business was to select counsel to conduct the proceedings before the Senate. Ex-State Senator Edgar Truman Brackett of Saratoga, prominently mentioned as a candidate for Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals on the Republican ticket, and Eugene Lamb Richards, counsel for the Frawley Committee, were retained.

It was stated after the meeting that the board was considering the retention of other lawyers of prominence. In this connection John B. Stanchfield and William Travers Jerome have been mentioned.

After the meeting this statement was made public by Chairman Levy:

> The board wishes it known that it is extremely desirous that the proceedings shall be conducted in a full, fair and impartial manner, and refuses to be drawn into any undignified controversies, save that it deplores the contention urged by unscrupulous persons that this case has been prejudiced. The board is carefully considering the evidence presented to it, and is marshaling the same with a view of presenting it before the Court of Impeachment, and of expediting and facilitating the trial, that full and equal justice may be done.
> The proofs will be squarely presented to the Court of Impeachment, and the only issue is the guilt or innocence of the impeached Governor. Consistent effort is being made to cloud and befog this real and only issue. Technicalities will not be indulged in by the managers. The trial must be full and free. The people are entitled to know, and will know the truth.

Only five of the nine managers attended the meeting. They were Assemblyman Levy of New York, Fitzgerald of Erie, Gillen of Kings, McMahon of New York, and Madden of Westchester. All are Democrats.

With the arrival of Senator Frawley at the Capitol to-day it was learned that the Frawley Committee would resume its sessions early next week, probably in New York City. It was stated here to-night that probably Judge Lynn J. Arnold, whose Albany newspaper has bitterly attacked the Legislature and championed Mr. Sulzer, would be called before the committee. But it is likely that the first session of the committee next week will be devoted to further probing of the Sulzer campaign fund.

D Cady Herrick, his chief counsel, to-day denied that Mr. Sulzer would take the stump and appeal to the people from the indictment filed against him by the Assembly.

"The report is absurd," said Judge Herrick. "If Mr. Sulzer were to do that he would act in direct violation of the injunction of silence imposed upon him by his counsel."

Assemblyman Charles A. Brewster of Steuben County and Assemblyman John Knight of Wyoming at the session of the lower house to-day each arose to a question of personal privilege to explain that if they had attended the session last Tuesday night when the impeachment resolution was adopted they would have voted against it.

A batch of resolutions from various labor organizations commending Mr. Sulzer were made public at the Executive Chamber to-day.

HONORS WRIT FROM SULZER.

Gov. Fielder Was Never Officially Notified of Impeachment.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 19.—Acting Governor Fielder to-day honored a requisition issued by William Sulzer as Governor of New York last Friday for the extradition of William Thomas, alias "Bob" Fitzsimmons, who is now under arrest in Jersey City. Thomas is under indictment for murder in the first degree. The requisition was issued in New York after the impeachment of Gov. Sulzer, and was recognized by Gov. Fielder upon the ground that he had received no official notification that Gov. Sulzer had been disqualified from acting as Chief Executive.

The Governor has issued a requisition upon the Governor of New York for the extradition of Perley Hayes, Jr., of Newark, who was indicted for false pretenses, larceny, and receiving. Hayes is now in jail in Buffalo. It will rest with Prosecutor Hood to determine whether the requisition shall be presented to Mr. Sulzer or to Acting Governor Glynn.

SULZER EXTRADITION IGNORED

Rensselaer Sheriff Refused to Surrender New Jersey Man.

TROY, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Sheriff Snell of Rensselaer County this evening refused to surrender to the New Jersey officials Dominick Delappe, alias "Kid Dynamite," who is wanted in Jersey City for the shooting of Thomas Conroy, President of the Plumbers' Union, on the night of Jan. 31.

Delappe was arrested here Aug. 13 and detectives from Jersey City called at the jail this evening with extradition papers signed by Gov. Sulzer. Sheriff Snell refused to recognize the papers as official and would not surrender the prisoner.

ULTIMATUM STORY A MEXICAN RUSE

Issued to Influence the Public—Press Ordered to Hold Denial 24 Hours.

DEVICE TO HELP HUERTA

Southern Government Disclaims Responsibility for Alleged Recognition Demand.

WILSON STILL IS HOPEFUL

Mexican Response Rejects Mediation, but Lind Reports Cordial Talk with Executive.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The negotiations instituted by John Lind, President Wilson's special representative, with a view to bringing about a restoration of normal conditions in Mexico are still open. Altogether, the situation to-night is somewhat more favorable, from the American viewpoint, than was thought early this morning, when pessimistic advices from the City of Mexico indicated that Mr. Lind's mission of peace had failed.

The sensational announcement from the Mexican capital that the United States Government had received an ultimatum giving it until midnight Monday to recognize the Huerta Administration seems to have been a canard, but a canard that had Mexican official sanction. No doubt is felt in Government circles here that the announcement was put out with a deliberate object, and that the newspaper correspondents, to whom it was communicated, accepted it as authoritative. The purpose of this has not been disclosed, but officers of the Wilson Administration have reason to believe the story was for Mexican home consumption.

The Huerta administration is insistent, however, that a formal recognition of the Mexican Government ought to be given by the United States as a condition precedent to further consideration of this Government's desire to serve in a mediatory capacity. But it is not understood that there has been a point-blank refusal to continue the diplomatic exchanges unless recognition is accorded.

The stage of amicable disputation has been reached, and this will give the Wilson Administration the opportunity of exercising its persuasive powers on President Huerta and his Ministers without conceding what it apparently has determined to resist vigorously—a formal acknowledgment that the Huerta government is the government de jure as well as de facto in the Republic of Mexico.

Corroboration of the view that the sensational statement was put out for publication by a Mexican official or officials is found in information from the City of Mexico that the newspapers of the country were forbidden to publish the official denial of the ultimatum story given late last night to Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Chargé d'Affaires, by Señor Federico Gamboa, the Mexican Minister for Foreign Affairs. Advices from Mexico City are that the publication of the denial was forbidden for twenty-four hours.

Plan To Benefit Huerta.

The general opinion here as to the purpose is that announcement through the Mexican press of President Huerta's defiance of the United States was expected to arouse the people to enthusiastic support of Huerta. The Mexican Government—or some of its officials, at least, it is surmised—felt that the denial never would catch up with the original story.

Although President Wilson and other officers of the Administration were relieved by the repudiation by the Mexican Government of responsibility for the canard, that relief gave way to indignation when it seemed to have been established that a nigh official of the Huerta Administration had fathered the false report that an ultimatum had been delivered to this Government. The first news about the alleged ultimatium that reached the Administration authorities here came in press dispatches from the City of Mexico shortly before last midnight. Mr. O'Shaughnessy's telegram of denial reached the State Department about 4 o'clock this morning, when President Wilson and Secretary Bryan were in bed. Mr. Bryan's rest had been broken by a telephone message from Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to the President, who informed the Secretary of State of the press bulletin announcing that an ultimatum had been issued. The President and the Secretary of State did not know of the denial until they arose to-day. Mr. O'Shaughnesy's telegram follows:

> The correspondents have cabled that the Mexican Government has stated that its note to Lind demands that the United States recognize the Huerta Government before 12 o'clock midnight to-day or a statement to that effect which brought the matter to the urgent attention of the Minister of Foreign Affairs at 10 P. M. He immediately saw the President and Minister of Gobernacion (Interior,) Senor Urrutia, who is supposed to have given out the statement, and he authorized me to deny this statement to my Government as having no foundation in fact.

Mexico's 7,000-Word Rejection.

Chronologically, the present condition of the diplomatic exchanges between Mexico and the United Staets was initiated with the delivery yesterday of the Mexican Government's answer to the proposals for peace made by Mr. Lind through the medium of Mr. O'Shaughnessy. That answer was dated Agu. 16. It is a document of 7,000 words and, generally speaking, embraces a rejection of all the suggestions made by the United States for an adjustment of the perturbed situation in the Mexican republic.

A summary of that long communication was telegraphed in cipher to the State Department by Mr. Lind early yesterday, and the receipt of the summary supplied the occasion for the conference in the White House yesterday afternoon between President Wilson, Secretary Bryan, and John Bassett Moore, counselor of the State Department.

The summary gave the impression that the American proposals had been rejected flatly and finally. But when the text of the note began coming to the State Department, there was seen to be ground for encouragement in its general tone and the impression its language created that the negotiations had not been terminated. The full text of the note has not been received here. When all of it has been delivered, it will have consideration by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan and instructions will be sent to Mr. Lind as to the character of the counter-response he should make. Until then the diplomatic aspect of the Mexican situation will remain as at present.

Message Comes in Slowly.

It was not until 4 o'clock this morning that the first sheet of the cipher telegraphic dispatch from the American Embassy in Mexico City containing the text of the Mexican Government's response was delivered to the State Department. Up to a late hour to-night only 1,400 words of the 7,000 promised had been received. The first sheet was filed in Mexico City last midnight. Apparently that delay was due to a variety of causes, among them the necessity of translating the Mexican note from Spanish into English and its further translation into the State Department's secret code symbols. Additional delay was caused at this end by the translation back into English from the official cipher.

Lind Has Talk with Huerta.

Mr. Lind preceded the transmission of the text of the Mexican response with a brief statement that by invitation he had spent two hours in conference with President Huerta last night.

"Very cordial," added Mr. Lind, and those two words gave the only encouragement President Wilson and Secretary Bryan had received concerning the Mexican situation since they learned yesterday of the rejection of the American programme.

Mr. Lind, it is understood, did not go into details in regard to his conversation with President Huerta, but the fact that the conference was at the Mexican's invitation and that Huerta was "very cordial" has served to encourage Administration officials. It was almost cheerful in the White House to-night. President Wilson felt so good that he took a walk down Pennsylvania Avenue, accompanied by some of his Secret Service guards. He stopped in front of the Washington Post building and read bulletins about the Mexican situation and Harry Thaw.

Congress Debates Headed Off.

A general disposition in the Senate to demand a definite statement from the Administration was headed off by Senators Lodge, Bacon, and Stone, who had direct information from the White House.

Senator Penrose had prepared to speak again on his resolutions asking for reports on Mexican conditions and the official status of Dr. William Bayard Hale. Senator Lodge urged him to delay, and after a conference between them on the floor, Senator Penrose took his seat without raising the Mexican question. He asked afterward that his resolutions be permitted to go over for two or three days without action.

The Poindexter resolution, asking what measures had been taken to protect Americans in Mexico, also went over without debate. Conferences were held on the floor throughout the session, and a disposition on the Republican side not to force a discussion, but to await developments, grew stronger.

Chairman Bacon of the Foreign Relations Committee reiterated that the United States would stand unassailable in the eyes of the world, whatever the outcome of the negotiations, because of its consistent effort to bring about peace in Mexico.

The acuteness of the Mexican situation was recognized in the House to-day, when objections from both Democratic and Republican sides prevented consideration of any measures on foreign subjects. The Republican leader, Mr. Mann, cautioned the House to "sit quiet and keep cool."

Representative Clark of Florida, Democrat, asked permission to address the House for thirty minutes next Friday on the Monroe Doctrine. Instantly Representative Foster of Illinois, Democrat, objected, protesting that "the present strained situation in Mexico is no time for the introduction of a subject like the Monroe Doctrine." The objection was sustained.

No Americans or other foreigners were killed and only one American was injured slightly in the recent fighting around Torreon, Mexico. A wireless from Tampico reports Americans generally around Torreon well. Consuls at Acapulco and Nogales report conditions quiet.

It is estimated that there are fewer than 20,000 Americans in Mexico, whereas there were 40,000 before the revolutionary troubles started.

Mediation in Mexico by Brazil, Argentine, and the United States was proposed to-day by Representative Towner of Iowa, Republican, in a resolution which was referred to the Foreign Affairs Committee.

VERA CRUZ FEARS A CLASH.

Seamen Recalled to Gunboats—Business Men Apprehensive.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Aug. 19.—Conflicting reports are reaching this city concerning the extremely delicate condition of international peace. The population is aroused as to the probable intention of the United States in regard to intervention.

Conservative business men are apprehensive that President Huerta's boldness and abruptness will precipitate matters greatly and endager a peaceful handling of the situation.

The various Mexican gunboats and transports in the bay have called all seamen and officers aboard, which is regarded as a sign that fears are entertained that relations between the neighboring republics are becoming strained.

THINKS UNDERSTANDING NEAR

Mexico Takes an Optimistic View of Lind-Huerta Conference.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19.—Provisional President Huerta and John Lind, the personal representative of President Wilson, were in conference at a late hour in the night, following the report that President Huerta would give the United States until midnight to recognize his Administration, under threat of severing all relations. The nature of the conference was not revealed, but it was characterized as cordial.

Ex-Gov. Lind and President Huerta are believed to have reached an understanding that may continue negotiations and enable Washington to play the rôle of mediator.

Neither in the National Palace nor the American Embassy were details of the conference given out, but it is known that the meeting was cordial, and that Mr. Lind now considers the so-called ultimatum announced through Dr. Aureliano Urrutia, Minister of the Interior, late last night as unauthorized. It is not asserted, however, that President Huerta specifically denied having made the peremptory demand for recognition as contained in Dr. Urrutia's statement.

Mr. Lind always has believed that he could accomplish much if permitted to talk personally with the Mexican President.

DIAZ ARRIVES IN MONTREAL.

Tells Canadians He Thinks Wilson Will Change to Mexico.

MONTREAL, Aug. 19.—Gen. Felix Diaz of Mexico arrived here to-night on his way to Europe. He will pass to-morrow in this city, leaving it in the evening for Quebec to board the Empress of Ireland, which will carry him to Liverpool.

The General is optimistic as to the future of his country, and inclined to the belief that the present impassé with the United States should not be taken too seriously. He does not think Washington will insist on its attitude of non-recognition, and he believes that President Wilson eventually will come to view the situation in a different light.

Gen. Diaz stated he would be a candidate for the Presidency of the Mexican Republic at the election in October. His friends are working in his behalf, and he expects to return to his country several weeks before the election is held.

H. L. Wilson Silent on Way Home.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Henry Lane Wilson, retiring Ambassador to Mexico, arrived here to-day on his way to his home in Culver, Ind. He had no comment to make on political developments in the City of Mexico.

DIGGS TELLS FLIGHT STORY AS 'ESCAPADE'

Says Marsha Warrington Urged Reno Trip When His Father Was After Him.

WIFE A WITNESS FOR HIM

She Corroborates Statements About His Difficulties as a Result of the Scandal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Maury I. Diggs sat to-day in the courtroom where her husband stands charged as a white slaver, heard him testify that he had been visited by Marsha Warrington in their own apartments, and twenty minutes later herself took the witness stand to testify in his behalf.

With her evidence the defense and the Government rested, and the Government began its arguments to the jury. By stipulation of Judge Van Fleet, each side has two hours and twenty minutes in which to sum up, and the case will be in the jury's hands late to-morrow.

Three witnesses held the stand to-day. Diggs occupied the morning with his account of events that led to his flight to Reno with Marsha Warrington, accompanied by Drew Caminetti and Lola Norris.

Mrs. Caminetti and Mrs. Diggs, the other witnesses, were questioned briefly. The substance of their testimony was of the sleeplessness, erratic, nervous behavior and of worry that characterized their husbands for the week preceding their flight.

Diggs, however, was the centre of interest. Handsomely gowned women stood two hours without luncheon in the corridors of the Federal Building to hear his final testimony in the afternoon. His lawyers did not attempt to have him deny that he obtained the transportation to Reno and paid for the Pullman berths. All the stress was laid on what he had intended to do. No attempt was made to assail the reputation of the girls before they met Diggs and Caminetti.

Diggs's Story of Flight.

Diggs began his story with the motives impelling the midnight flight across the Nevada State line from Sacramento to Reno.

"What did you call it?" asked Judge Van Fleet, interrupting the testimony.

"An escapade," replied Diggs speaking in a confident voice.

"Proceed," directed the court without comment.

All his testimony was an attempt to prove that he was worried, harassed and hunted by the consequences of his own misconduct and that his only thought was to get out of town, give the scandal a chance to die out and then come back to his family and business.

In contradiction to the testimony of Miss Warrington and Miss Norris who swore that they left home against their judgment and desire and only when marriage was promised them, Diggs named Marsha Warrington as the one who insisted that they go. As early as Jan. 31, he testified, she had said to him:

"You are a piker. We girls have framed this and you fellows have got to go along with us."

"On March 3," testified the defendant, "I remember talking about my affair with Miss Warrington. 'I've got to go away from here,' I told her. 'Things are getting too hot for me.' She didn't want me to go. I told her that I had to—that I had a future, a family, a business to protect, and that I was going to Los Angeles for a while and give public opinion a chance to die down.

"A few days later she called me up and asked me why I was still in town. I told her that I had some buildings in construction and that there were details I had to look to.

"About a week before we went to Reno, Diepenbrock, my landlord, told me that the janitor of the building and the policeman on the beat had complained to him about my taking girls to my office.

First Talk of Going Away.

"The same week I took an automobile ride with Miss Warrington on the upper Stockton Road. We saw another machine behind us and I told her it was my father with an officer of the Juvenile Court. We traveled fifty miles an hour for some minutes and left them.

"My father was in town then and I knew he was looking for me. The girl said, 'Believe me, you are not going away and leave me here.'

"'Do just as you please,' I said. 'I am going and I am going alone. I have got too good a family here. I've got to think of them. I've got lots before me in this town and I want this to blow over.'"

"Marsha said to me she'd have to go, too, and Miss Norris with her. Miss Norris never would have gone to Reno if Miss Warrington hadn't insisted on it from the first.

"I got the machine," continued Diggs, "and rode around in it all day, calling at O'Brien's saloon from time to time. 'That father of your's is a terror,' O'Brien told me. 'He's running around here like a maniac.'

"I went into hiding. What O'Brien told me, on top of what Diepenbrook had said, scared me. I told O'Brien I'd heard my father was looking for me with a policeman, and he said that was true. Later I learned from my uncle that my father was gone, and I came out of hiding. Miss Warrington and Miss Norris had visited at my hotel.

"On March 3 I met Caminetti and Marshall Diggs, my uncle, with Miss Norris, and we talked things over. Miss Norris suggested that I leave town. I explained the difficulty of doing that. Business men had placed several hundred thousand dollars in contracts in my hands.

"My uncle said that I should go home to my wife and quit running around and leave other women alone. Miss Norris insisted that I'd best leave town. My uncle told me my wife knew about my affairs.

Father After Him Again.

"The next Monday, Caminetti came to my hotel and said: 'That father of yours is a terror. He called me on the phone to ask where you were and when I told him I did not know, he called me a liar and told me he'd have me fired out of my job; that I wasn't fit to be working for the State Board of Control.'

"Cam. told me his wife had been after him, that she had told him she was going to Judge Hughes for a warrant, that things had gone far enough.

"On the Wednesday night before we left for Reno my uncle called upon me to go home. As I was entering the house I met Caminetti leaving. He wouldn't speak to me.

"I had dinner and went downtown again. Cam. told me what my wife had been saying to him. 'You've been a snake to me for four years,' he said she told him. 'Now, I'm going to show you what a real serpent is. I'm going to cause you untold trouble.'

"Cam. said she had called him to the house by the telephone. He said he was so scared when he went in that he hid before a door when he saw her coming until he was sure she didn't have a gun.

"That same night I saw O'Brien, too. He told me that he'd heard through Marsha Warrington's uncle that her father had said he'd heard she was going with a married man, that he was suspicious of me, and that he swore that if he ever found us together, he'd kill us both."

The direct examination concluded without any questions about the purchase of tickets to Reno, the trip on the train, or the three days in the Reno bungalow.

THREE GIRLS SUE BIXBY.

Damages from Wealthy Californian Asked by Alleged Victims.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—George H. Bixby, the Long Beach millionaire indicted several months ago on charges of having contributed to the delinquency of Irene Marie Brown-Levy and Helen Clo Barker, minors, was made defendant to-day in three damage suits, each for $50,000, and each brought by a girl. The two girls mentioned and Jeannette Ellis were the plaintiffs. They asked damages on the ground that Bixby had committed "high crimes and misdemeanors" against them.

Bixby's trial on the delinquency charges is scheduled to come up in the Superior Court Sept. 11.

URGES NEED OF ROAD TO LEAD TO ALASKA

Premier McBride Says British Columbia Even Now Is Building a Big Link.

SHOWS PLAN'S ADVANTAGES

Says Railroads Radiating from Coast Points Would Never Be More Than Mere Tramways.

Rather than build railways from points on the Alaskan coast into the interior of the Territory, as is proposed, the United States would do far better to co-operate with British Columbia and construct a north and south line from the State of Washington up into the heart of Alaska, is the opinion of Sir Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia, who arrived at the Martinique yesterday. Sir Richard was to leave on the Mauretania early this morning on his way to London, on Government business.

"Of course, I am not in position to criticize any action Congress might take in the matter," said Sir Richard, "but as I have been associated with the Government of a country that borders on Alaska for some thirteen years I have come to know something of the value of that territory. I have always said that the American people had not arisen to a true appreciation of the wealth of Alaska.

"Our Government is helping to build the Pacific & Great Eastern Railway from Vancouver northeast directly across British Columbia. Over 4,000 men are working on the line. The money for the work is all in the banks. I can conceive of no circumstances that might arise to obstruct its completion. This will be extended from Fort George to the Peace River country, approximately 700 miles north of the forty-ninth parallel.

"I still advocate that the Pacific & Great Eastern be extended on through the Yukon country to Alaska. The scheme is perfectly feasible, and it is the soundest possible kind of business. Apart from its commercial value, such a road is a necessity. It would give access to a country of untold wealth, and its strategic value to Alaska and British Columbia would be immeasurable. A bridge from the United States over British Columbia to Alaska would also bring our people closer together.

"Through Sir Richard Borden, the Premier of Canada, and through some of the leading men at Washington, I am trying with all the deliberation I can command to have negotiations for such a line got under way, and a compact drawn up by 1915. It seems to me that Gov. Strong of Alaska and Secretary Lane of the Interior are two able men who are quick to see and note the worth of that great national possession you have in the Northwest.

"Congress has been speaking lately of building lines from various coast points of Alaska inland, and I understand that some $40,000,000 has been appropriated or is about to be appropriated for the purpose. In the light of what I know about that part of the country, and its development, I can say without the slightest hesitation that lines from the coast to the interior of Alaska, whether short or long, will never amount to more than good-sized tramway lines. Far better would it be, in my opinion, to build a north and south line from the State of Washington to the heart of Alaska than to fritter away a single dollar on the lines that have been started or advocated.

"What you want to do, I should think, would be to reach the interior of Alaska in the quickest way, and by building a north and south line, it would be possible to travel from New York to the interior of your great territory in six days. Then you have got something you can defend, if necessary. If lines to the coast are then necessary, they will come in the course of time, for the natural way would be in that case for such lines to build outward.

"The relations between British Columbia and the neighboring States of the United States are most fraternal. We live under the same sunny skies, and are developing the same kind of contentment and prosperity. The New Zealand dreadnought was in our harbor at Victoria ten days ago, and our friends on Puget Sound had the California and the West Virginia sent up as a compliment to the Imperial service. The Governors of Washington, Idaho, and Montana are strong executives, and at all times are anxious to show any possible courtesy and consideration to us of Canada. We should like to see a great railroad connecting you with your biggest territory, and we are making a big link of if in anticipation."

B. & O. WAGE CONFERENCE.

Machinists Discuss Their Grievances with Vice President Thompson.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19.—Officials of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and the committee representing the machinists were again in conference to-day, considering the demands of the men for an increase in wages, better shop conditions, and the incorporation of what is known as a seniority and handy-man clause in their working agreement. No definite agreement was reached, and it is expected that further conferences will be held.

At Monday's conference F. H. Clark, Superintendent of Motive Power, conducted the negotiations with the committee headed by C. D. Summers. To-day A. W. Thompson, Third Vice President, in charge of transportation, and Charles W. Galloway, General Manager, joined Mr. Clark in presenting the company's side of the case to the men. More than 3,000 employes of the Baltimore & Ohio anxiously await the result of the negotiations. Should no satisfactory agreement be reached it is probable that a strike ballot will be taken.

QUESTION NEWPORT TAXES.

Property Owners Meet Officials and Ask Changes in Method.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 19.—Several Summer residents here, all holders of property, have interested themselves in the matter of future tax assessments. They are George L. Rives, Henry A. C. Taylor, Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs, Bishop James H. Darlington, Charles B. Hillhouse, Prof. John W. Burgess, R. Horace Gallatin, and John Thompson Spencer. They invited Mayor William MacLeod, the City Treasurer, the Tax Collector, and the Board of Tax Assessors to a meeting at the Casino to-day. All of those invited attended the meeting and almost two hours was spent in discussing the question of taxes.

It is the hope of those who had called the meeting to bring about some better method of making the assessment and possibly a revaluation of the buildings of Newport. They ask preliminary hearings before the final assessment each year.

WHY WOMEN ARE BAD RISKS.

Insurance Doctors Say Their Intuition Warns Them of Death.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 19.—Women's intuition informs them of approaching death, for which reason they seek life insurance and are undesirable risks, according to delegates at the medical section meeting of the American Life Insurance Association to-night. The subject was debated for some time without definite conclusion as to the stand to be taken. It was asserted by several of the speakers that spinsters were better risks than married women.

Ulster Republican Nominations.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Henry R. Dewitt of Kingston was to-day designated as candidate for the Republican nomination for Member of Assembly in the First District of Ulster County, and Abram P. Lefevre of New Platz in the Second District. The County Committee designated District Attorney William D. Cunningham of Ellenville for a renomination.

Justice Borst Renominated.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Aug. 19.—Henry V. Borst of Amsterdam was designated to succeed himself as Supreme Court Justice in the Fourth Judicial District, comprising eleven counties in Northern New York, at a meeting of the Democratic Judicial Committee, held here to-day.

350,000 WORK TO-DAY ON MISSOURI ROADS

Kansas Governor Will Join Home Executive to Lead Pick-and-Shovel Army.

WOMEN TO GIVE THEIR AID

Will Prepare Tempting Luncheons for Men Who Would "Pull Missouri Out of the Mud."

Special to The New York Times.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Aug. 19.—With the long drought broken in this part of the State and the heavy rains putting the roads in condition for working everything is in readiness to-morrow for the first of the two big "Good Roads Days" set aside by Gov. Major by proclamation.

It is estimated that 350,000 Missouri farmers and business men will work on the roads to-morrow and Thursday, inspired by the slogan of "Pull Missouri out of the mud." Gov. Major will don overalls and carry a pick, and he will have as helper Gov. Hodges of Kansas, who is coming here in the morning to assist in the work.

Thousands of Missouri mothers and daughters, wives and sweethearts, were busy, too, preparing lunches for the "boys." In many counties the women have organizations of their own and will serve dinners to the workers at noon.

Reports to-night from the overseers say great enthusiasm is shown, and at many small places a general holiday has been declared.

Gov. Major is happy because of the rain. He estimates that it will put the roads in fine condition for working to-morrow and the next day. "This rain will add 50,000 men to the road workers," he said to-day, "and I now expect 350,000 men to be working the roads instead of 300,000, my previous estimate."

The road-grading outfit from Winona, Minn., donated to the Governor, has arrived, and will be taken to Gallaway County for grading the Jefferson City-Columbia Road to-morrow.

The Missouri Women's Federated Clubs have indorsed the road working. Gov. Major received a letter to-day from the President, Mrs. W. R. Chivis of St. Louis, advising that she had sent out letters to the 6,000 members, asking them to give their aid and assistance to the movement and aid in serving lunches to the workers.

Gov. Major thinks all the States should have good roads' days next year and believes that he can arrange with the other Governors to issue proclamations covering the same days so that the road working will be a nation-wide instead of a State movement only. In this he hopes Congress can be induced to appropriate money for the public roads.

Dr. Peiser's Body Here.

The body of Dr. Louis Peiser of 52 East Eightieth Street, who died in Carlsbad, Germany, on Aug. 5, arrived yesterday on the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II. Dr. Peiser was connected with the German Hospital, Park Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street. The body was in charge of Dr. S. Lewis Zeigler. Max Richter, brother-in-law of Dr. Peiser, boarded the steamship at Quarantine from a revenue cutter.

New Wilson Chrysanthemums.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—"Mrs. Wilson" is the name of a new type of chrysanthemum that has been developed by the experts of the Department of Agriculture for the department's annual Autumn flower show. Named in honor of the wife of the President, the new bloom is said to be a magnificent specimen. Other striking blooms have been named "Margaret," "Jessie," and "Eleanor" after the three daughters of President and Mrs. Wilson.

ACCIDENT IN RIVER TUBE.

Pennsylvania Caboose Derailed in Rear-End Collision—None Hurt.

An accident in the north tube of the two westbound tunnels of the Pennsylvania-Long Island system under the East River at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning delayed several of the Pennsylvania Railroad's trains for short intervals. The accident was caused by the stopping of a work train of three cars immediately before a "second danger signal." The tubes are equipped with a double danger signal at each block, at the first of which motormen are required to stop and then proceed with caution, stopping until getting permission to go ahead at the second signal.

In accordance with this rule, Supt. C. S. Krick said last night, Motorman Grooms bringing Train 75 of the Pennsylvania Railroad over from the Sunnyside Yards, a fast two-hour train for Philadelphia, leaving at 10:08 o'clock, stopped at the first red signal and then got under way again. The proximity of the work train to the second red signal did not give his brakes sufficient time to bring his train to a full stop, although it reduced its nineteen-mile headway to one of slight momentum. A collision resulted, the Philadelphia train throwing the rear truck of the hindmost car of the work train, a light caboose, from the track. It was necessary for the Philadelphia train to back out of the tube, after arrangements had been made, and to proceed to the Pennsylvania Station through the south westbound tube, this course delaying some few other trains. Supt. Krick explained last night that the four tubes under the East River are interchangeable.

Reports current yesterday evening that the north westbound tube was still blocked with the wreckage of the work train were untrue, Supt. Krick said. He asserted that it took about half an hour to get the displaced rear truck of the work train's caboose back on the track and clear the tube for use.

AUTO RUNS INTO PILLAR

Passengers Hurt When Big Car Skids from the Roadway.

John Hopkins of 56 Central Avenue, Yonkers, with a friend, William Crottey of 2,019 Hughes Avenue, the Bronx, started last night for Manhattan from his Long Island Summer home in a large touring car. As the auto was about to cross the Winfield crossing of the Long Island Railroad it skidded from the roadway and crashed into a pillar supporting a trestle over which the Manhattan and Queens trolley cars run.

Hopkins, who was pinned in the auto, was injured internally. Crottey was thrown clear of the machine and landed in the roadway several yards away. His right leg and arm were broken. Both will recover.

STEPHENSON TO RETIRE?

Reported That Aged Wisconsin Senator Will Not Seek Re-election.

ASHLAND, Wis., Aug. 19.—Isaac Stephenson will not be a candidate for the United States Senate to succeed himself, according to dispatches received here to-day from Madison, Wis. Senator Stephenson, it is reported, declared his intention to retire to private life.

MARINETTE, Wis., Aug. 19.—Senator I. Stephenson to-day refused to either affirm or deny the report from Ashland that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself. Mr. Stephenson is 84 years old.

TWO GIRL RESCUERS DROWN

Father Is Saved, but Boy He Tried to Aid Perishes.

STOCKDALE, Texas, Aug. 19.—Allie Burris, 17, and her sister, Annie, 15, leaped into the river near here yesterday to save their father, who was trying to rescue Arthur Jackson,, 16, from drowning.

The girls and Jackson lost their lives. Burris was rescued by a passerby.

when you use a situation like this for the benefit of one organization to build up itself, and to destroy us, is a fake, and it is not non-partisanship.

"Now, this body of independent citizens, who undertake to tell those 180,000 men what to do, spent months and months laboring and laboring, and finally they brought us out Wilson's candidate—a man who has the power of a Federal office now, to do what? To build up another Democratic organization here. To do what? To beat us. I say to you that this is a mighty important proposition. The fate of the State and of the nation depends upon our action in this committee."

Koenig Speaks for Fusion.

Mr. Koenig, feeling that the committee was slipping away from him, mounted the platform and amid hisses, groans, and applause, made a speech which was frequently interrupted, asking the committee not to adjourn the meeting, but to vote to support Fusion. He said:

"The Republican Party, I hope, will show in this situation that it is capable of rising to the demands of the hour, that it will realize that it is of greater importance to establish good government in the City of to New York than to have allotted to you places which will mean personal benefit to your respective organizations. The Republican Party cannot grow strong in the City of New York, it cannot grow strong in the State of New York, it cannot regain the confidence of the people unless by action it shows that Republicanism means good citizenship, and Republicanism means looking after the welfare of the City of New York."

Mr. Koenig then made a motion to lay upon the table Mr. Gilbert's motion to adjourn. He was followed by Jacob Livingston, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Kings County Committee. The Brooklyn crowd yelled itself hoarse for him. Mr. Livingston said that Kings County had not received a square deal from the Committee of One Hundred and Seven in the matter of conferences and that the committee by its nominations had brought confusion into every county in the city.

"If an election were held to-morow," he said, "I'm afraid that its selections would fare very badly at the hands of the voters."

Mr. Livingston pleaded for an adjournment so that the committee could have further time to discuss the situation.

Meyer Steinbrink was the next speaker. He made a plea that the committee support Fusion. When he alluded to the fact that Mr. Whitman had sent a telegram, he was ruled out of order, but the telegram which was passed around read:

> Bretton Woods, N. H., Aug. 19.
> Frederick C. Tanner, New York:
> Representative Republicans were prominently connected with the Committee of 107. Mr. Mitchel was selected for the Mayoralty candidate and I for the District Attorney. I have stated that I would accept the nomination for District Attorney and I propose to keep my word. I will not under any circumstances run for Mayor against Mr. Mitchel. It is the duty of the Republican Party to support Fusion. I am leaving for New York to-night.
> CHARLES S. WHITMAN.

Joseph Levenson, the leader of the Whitman supporters, then took the platform. He could be heard above the din shouting for an adjournment. He was soon howled down, and former Congressman William S. Bennet tried to speak. He, too, was in favor of the committee putting off action until Monday, but he was frequently interrupted from the floor by Herbert Parsons.

Kings County was shouting for Congressman William M. Calder but he threw cold water on the Brooklyn members by advising that the committee indorse the Fusion programme at once.

When the Chairman announced that the vote would be on the question to lay the motion for adjournment on the table the din was so terrific that all that could be heard was Marcus B. Campbell shouting that he made a point of order that Mr. Koenig's motion to lay on the table was out of order. He said that there were not seats enough in the hall to seat all the delegates, as required by the election law, and that therefore the committee could not transact business legally.

Chairman McKeon, who is an elderly man with a weak voice, banged his gavel. He considered the point of order well taken, he said, and Mr. Koenig's motion was out of order. He then ordered the vote on the original motion for adjournment to be taken.

By this time everybody was shouting, and the Chairman made no attempt to still the pandemonium. Up in the galleries the Bronx delegates started to sing: "We'll hang John Mitchel to the sour apple tree" to the tune of "John Brown's Body." Koenig fought his way to the platform and tried to find out how the vote was to be taken. The Chairman waved him away with his gavel, and Koenig, shaking his fist, shouted a demand to be heard.

There was a difference of opinion among the members down in front as to whether or not Koenig's motion to lay on the table had been ruled upon, but the confusion was so great that nobody could make head or tail out of what was going on, and finally Secretary John Boyle, fashioning a megaphone out of a newspaper, began calling upon the committee to vote by Assembly districts. After a time the tumult quieted sufficiently for the delegates to be heard. Bronx County voted for adjournment, but when it came to Brooklyn the vote was divided. The Manhattan vote was also split, but Koenig hurried to and fro among the delegates and got enough votes to support his plan of having immediate action on the ticket.

PROGRESSIVES NAME MITCHEL.

City Fusion Ticket Adopted and Gaynor Assailed.

The National Progressive Party last night nominated John Purroy Mitchel for Mayor and the balance of the Fusion city ticket recommended by the Committee of 107 at its city convention in Terrace Garden. About 1,600 delegates, including several women, half filled the hall when State Chairman Theodore Douglas Robinson called the meeting to order just before 9 o'clock. The Fusion nominations went through in perfect harmony and genuine enthusiasm, the convention working like a well-oiled machine.

Leonard M. Wallstein, temporary Chairman of the city convention, sounded the keynote of the Progressive campaign, pleading not only for the smashing of the Tammany machine, but for efficient regulation of public utilities or municipal ownership and operation if necessary, real home rule, a new municipal charter, and holding the members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment responsible to the people through suitable forms of the recall, initiative, and the referendum. He attacked Mayor Gaynor, saying:

"Much has been accomplished. More remains to be done. Tammany will follow one of two courses. It will nominate for Mayor some one of its creatures whose recent conduct is calculated to lull the people into the mistaken belief that his Tammany taint has been eradicated, when in fact it is only concealed. Or, Tammany will name for his present office that weaver of halos for his own head whose claims to distinction are these: that he is expert in clothing hypocrisy and malice in eccentric English, specialist in the retraction of libels at the courtroom door, and Mayor whose harm has been least where there were colleagues to check him, and immeasurable where his sway was complete.

Five minutes of enthusiastic applause greeted ex-Lieut. Gov. Timothy L. Woodruff when he took up the gavel as Permanent Chairman, turning to good-natured laughter when he referred to his jump from the Republican Party into the Progressive fold as a promotion, saying:

"I have presided at all the other conventions at which Fusion candidates have been nominated to oppose Tammany Hall in the interest of good citizenship and honest government. Furthermore, in accepting this honor from the Progressive Party, I am not unmindful that I have presided at every city convention of the Republican Party in the history of Greater New York, thus compelling the consciousness of the progress I have made. I thank you for my promotion."

The longest applause of the evening, eclipsing even that accorded to the name of Mitchel, greeted Chairman Woodruff's reference to Col. Roosevelt.

Mr. Woodruff closed with the following tribute to Borough President McAneny and District Attorney Whitman:

"We have just had a splendid example of disinterested public service in the acceptance of a secondary place on the city ticket by George McAneny; and another superb example of devotion to the public good in the acceptance of renomination to a position in which he has already made an unsurpassable record, by Charles S. Whitman. In all our deliberations and labors, let us profit by these examples and demonstrate to the nation the disinterested public spirit and patriotic purpose which characterize and permeate the National Progressive Party."

Francis W. Bird, New York County Chairman, placed Mr. Mitchel in nomination for Mayor, characterizing him as "a thorough but moderate liberal, honest, clean, and able, young in years but old in experience, and in thorough accord with Progressive conceptions of city government on city policies."

Mr. Mitchel's nomination was seconded by George A. Green of Kings, M. Kerzi of the Bronx, William Trewin of Queens, William W. Mills of Richmond, and Henry S. Burgess of Kings.

The delegates hissed and catcalled at every mention of Mayor Gaynor's name, and laughingly applauded such sentiments as:

"We don't need a man to close Healy's but to close Tammany Hall. We don't want a champion letter writer but a man who gets results."

Borough President McAneny was placed in nomination for President of the Board of Aldermen by Dr. Moskowitz and seconded by Charles S. Aronston of Kings and Julius Jospe of the Bronx, while Controller Prendergast was renominated by Jene Fuller, Jr., of Kings and seconded by Harry Cohen of the Bronx.

PROGRESSIVES IN TILT.

Treachery Charge Almost Starts Fight at Westchester Meeting.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 19.—At the meeting of the Westchester County Progressive Committee held to-night for the purpose of designating candidates to make the run for the various offices at the primaries there was almost a free-for-all fight when one of the committee openly charged that the committee had sold out to the Democratic leader of the county.

Another member arose to take exception to this remark, and it looked as though the men would surely come to blows, but friends jumped between and no blows were struck.

The committee designated William P. Platt, a Democrat of White Plains, for County Judge. He is the present County Judge.

Michael J. Tierney, Democrat, also of White Plains, was picked for District Attorney, and John Ackerman, a Progressive of White Plains, for County Clerk.

G. Everett Macey, a Progressive of Ossining, was selected for County Superintendent of the Poor, and James L. Young, a Progressive of North Castle, for Coroner.

TAMMANY FAVORS GAYNOR.

District Leaders Report to Murphy in Favor of Naming Him.

Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, had a conference yesterday with his district leaders on the Mayoralty situation. The conference, it was explained, was to get a line on the Gaynor sentiment among the rank and file of the party. While no one would discuss what took place at the conference, it was said that most of the leaders reported that there was a strong feeling in their districts for the renomination of Mayor Gaynor as the strongest candidate Tammany could put up.

Neither Murphy nor any one close to him would disclose a hint of Tammany's intention regarding what the ticket is to be. Several leaders stood up strongly for Justice Victor J. Dowling of the Supreme Court for the nomination. The sentiment was all between the Mayor and Justice Dowling, with the former strongly in the lead. Murphy was seen after the conference.

"There is a report that Mayor Gaynor has been eliminated from Tammany consideration—is that true?" he was asked.

"Oh, no," was the reply, "I couldn't say that the Mayor had been eliminated."

"It is said that Justice Dowling is strongly favored—is his nomination likely?"

"Justice Dowling—yes, I have seen his name in the newspapers several times lately."

"Is it true that the Kings County organization is strongly lined up in opposition to the Mayor?"

"I don't live in Kings County—you will have to ask the leaders over there."

"When will you know your candidate for the nomination?"

"On Saturday—after the Designating Committee meets."

All other attempts to elicit any information from the Tammany boss were futile. When he was informed that Jacob H. Schiff had asked to be made a member of the Executive Committee of the Gaynor Independent Nominating League, Mr. Murphy lifted his eyebrows and murmured, "ah."

He was also asked if Phillip F. Donohue, Treasurer of Tammany Hall, had called upon the Mayor in the morning with a message from Tammany, but Murphy had nothing to say.

Mr. Donohue was at the Mayor's office only a few minutes. He explained that he had called to see Fire Commissioner Johnson, who was with the Mayor at the time and that politics had nothing to do with the visit. He said he did not see the Mayor, but had a talk with Commissioner Johnson.

The Gaynor Independent Nominating League, it was said yesterday, will call upon the Mayor on Thursday and offer him an independent nomination. The Mayor would not see newspapermen yesterday, when an effort was made to reach him. He sent out word that he was too busy to be interviewed. R. Ross Appleton, Chairman of the League, called upon the Mayor at his office about the time Commissioner Johnson was there and they were soon joined by Henry Clews, another member of the league.

"Our committee has already announced its candidate," said Mr. Appleton. "I can add nothing to that. Our committee is now circulating petitions for the renomination of Mayor Gaynor. It has not been decided just when we will call upon him and offer him the nomination."

Commissioner Johnson would not discuss his visit. The Commissioner, it is understood, is managing the Mayor's campaign. He has been to see Murphy several times, and it is said that he urged the Tammany leader to nominate the Mayor.

WANTS TO SUCCEED WHITMAN.

Corrigan Seeks Tammany Nomination as District Attorney.

City Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan announced formally last night that he would be a candidate for the nomination for District Attorney of New York County on the regular Democratic ticket, and that Thomas G. Rush, Democratic leader of the Twenty-ninth Assembly District, in which Magistrate Corrigan lives, would present his name next Saturday night, when the regular Democrats meet to make up their city and county tickets.

Before he was appointed a Magistrate by Mayor McClellan, Magistrate Corrigan was an Assistant District Attorney under William Travers Jerome. Prior to his appointment by District Attorney Jerome he was a Professor of Law in Fordham University.

Magistrate Corrigan a year ago engaged in controversy with Mayor Gaynor over the police situation. Politicians were speculating last night over the possible result in case Mayor Gaynor is renominated by Tammany Hall and Magistrate Corrigan is put on the same ticket for District Attorney.

FOSS NOT ON G. O. P. TICKET.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—Gov. Eugene N. Foss will not be a candidate for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination this year.

When the time for filing nomination papers expired to-day, no papers for the Governor were handed in at the State House. Papers were filed for Col. Everett C. Benton and Augustus P. Gardner for the Republican nomination at the primaries next month, and for Lieut. Gov. David I. Walsh and Charles S. Bird, neither of whom has any opposition in the Democratic and Progressive parties, respectively.

Fully signed papers for Gov. Foss were ready for filing to-day from Barnstable, Bristol, and Middlesex Counties when the Governor withheld his signature from them, thus making them invalid. In order to be a candidate for the nomination it is necessary to file petitions containing at least 250 names from each of four counties. So far as could be learned no other county had the requisite number of names to insure the Governor's candidacy.

At a meeting of the Dorchester Republican Club Gov. Foss explained that he had caused the belief to spread that he was a candidate for the Republican nomination through a desire to provide a real primary contest for the good of the State and of the Republican Party. The attitude of the last Republican Legislature in upholding his acts, he said, had drawn him nearer to the Republican Party than ever before.

JIU-JITSU FOR MILITANTS.

Sylvia Pankhurst Also Wants Them Drilled and to Carry Sticks.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Addressing a suffragist meeting at Bromley to-day Sylvia Pankhurst said she had been criticised for causing the scene after the meeting in Trafalgar Square last Sunday week, but she knew her duty was never to speak in Trafalgar Square without a fight. She added:

"We have not yet made ourselves a match for the police, and we have got to do it. The police know jiu-jitsu. I advise you to learn jiu-jitsu. Women should practice it as well as men.

"We have got to have drilling in the East End. If there is any man who has been in the army or knows anything about drilling, will he please communicate with me, and we will start drilling.

"You should all go out with your sticks. What is the use of us going out in a demonstration for freedom and going unarmed? Don't come to meetings without sticks in future, men and women alike. It is worth while really striking. It is no use pretending. We have got to fight."

CHICKENS FORCED BY ELECTRICITY

Grow to Market Size in Five Weeks Instead of the Ordinary Three Months.

THEY SURPASS ALL RECORDS

Recent Experiments at the Largest Poultry Farm in the World Productive of Startling Results.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Wednesday, Aug. 20.—A long succession of ingenious experiments has recently been privately made in regard to the effect of electricity upon the growth of plants and animals, and, according to The Daily Mail, it is now possible to say that startling results have been reached in one direction.

Beyond all question young poultry respond to electric stimulus applied in a particular way with astounding rapidity. They surpass the best on record in speed of growth. They keep their health in crowded conditions, and become almost independent of season.

In the south of England, on the biggest poultry farm in the world, experiments of this nature have just been completed. Eight hundred chickens in two equal groups were nurtured on the intensive system—that is, in flats, almost trays, one above the other. One group of 400 was treated by the electric system, and so charged were the chickens with electricity that a shock could be distinctly felt if the finger were put to the beak of a chicken.

The chickens in this 400 grew to marketable size—that is, as "petits poussins"—in five weeks, and of the 400 only six, and those weaklings in the beginning, died.

Of the other 400 nearly half died, it being late in the year for healthy growth, and the survivors took three months to reach marketable size.

This experiment was followed by other experiments in which similar, though not as striking, results were obtained. Trials on a yet larger scale are being prepared, and there is at any rate, says The Daily Mail, a reasonable hope that an instrument of real value in the intensive production of food has been found.

AIRMAN USES PARACHUTE.

Descends 900 Feet Safely, While His Aeroplane Is Smashed.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—An aviator named Pegoud to-day carried out safely a sensational experiment in the use of the parachute in descending from an aeroplane while in flight.

Rising to a height of 900 feet, Pegoud pulled the string attached to a parachute folded on the aeroplane. The parachute immediately opened and filled with air, lifting the aviator from his seat and then letting him slowly but safely down to earth, while the driverless aeroplane fell like a plummet and was smashed to bits.

The parachute arrangement was invented by M. Bonnett, and is intended for the use of aviators when their craft become unmanageable.

London Paper Says They Have Called a Meeting of Their Creditors.

LONDON, Wednesday, Aug. 20.—The Daily Sketch says that the Earl and Countess of Warwick are calling their creditors together, in order to make an arrangement for the liquidation of their debts.

Lady Warwick went to the United States last year on a lecture tour, the purpose of which, it was stated, was to raise money to meet her financial obligations. After two appearances she suddenly brought her tour to an end and returned to Europe.

GERMAN FLOODS SERIOUS.

Due to Continuous Rainstorms—Damage to Crops Already Great.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Germany is threatened with serious floods as a result of the continuous heavy rainstorms.

The Vistula and other Silesian rivers are out of their banks, and a number of towns and a great acreage of grain have been inundated. The losses are already heavy.

Much damage is reported from Riesengebirge, a mountainous region between Bohemia and Prussian Silesia.

BREMEN-BOSTON SERVICE.

Regular Passenger Sailings by North German Lloyd to Begin Next Month.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—Cable advices were received to-day by the port directors that beginning early in September a permanent freight and passenger service will be operated between Bremen and Boston by the North German Lloyd Line. The dispatch came from the main office of the company.

The first liner to sail for Boston will be the Breslau or the Goeben, both of which are first-class boats. Twelve great liners, the largest rivaling the Imperator in size, are being built for the company, and on their completion the present 15,000-ton boats will be sent to Boston and their places will be taken by the new craft. The Winter sailings will be three weeks apart, and the Spring and Summer sailings will be twice or three times as frequent. The impending expiration of the passenger traffic agreement between the North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American Lines is responsible for the decision to establish the new service.

COMPANY SUES FOR LICENSE

New York Concern in Court to Force Connecticut Permit.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Aug. 19.—Aggrieved because it was refused a renewal of its license to do business in Connecticut, the New York Profit Realty Company of 141 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York City, whose bonds are held by many working people in this State, brought an unusual suit to-day against James P. Woodruff, Building and Loan Commissioner. He was served in his office in the Capitol by Sheriff Edward W. Dewey with a warrant to appear before the Superior Court, which the company asks to order the Commissioner to issue a license.

The company once had a license, but because of newspaper notoriety of methods employed Commissioner Woodruff investigated, and last month refused to renew the permit, though it did a big business without authority for some time.

EXPLOSION KILLS 100.

Nearly as Many Hurt as Dynamite Car Runs Wild in Mexico Suburb.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19.—It is estimated that nearly 100 persons were killed and almost as many injured early this morning, when a car loaded with dynamite ran wild down the hill from the powder works at Santa Fé, jumped the track, and dashed into a trolley pole in the suburb of Tacubaya and exploded.

The earth for miles around trembled, and great damage done to property. Within a radius of 500 feet from the scene of the explosion every house was demolished, while further away in the village and in the adjoining town of San Pedro many fine residences were badly damaged and their furnishings ruined. Many Americans and other foreigners live in Tacubaya and can redro, but none of them is reported to have been injured.

Late this afternoon fifty bodies had been dug from the ruins of houses in Tacubaya, and the Red Cross had ministered to the needs of scores of wounded.

ADVISES GERMAN EXHIBITS.

Textile Association Chairman Wants Good Showing at San Francisco.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Demands similar to those in England for participation in the Panama-Pacific Exposition are now being heard in Germany.

Dr. Wittenberg, Chairman of the Association of German Textile Wholesale Dealers, in an article printed in a textile weekly, advises German manufacturers of textiles, millinery, haberdashery, &c., to exhibit their goods, even if the Government does not give its sanction.

The absence of England would be Germany's opportunity, says Dr. Wittenberg. He declares it would be a mistake not to accept the chance to show that German confections are equal to those of France in taste and quality, particularly as it is necessary to head off Chinese and Japanese competition in the United States.

VIENNA, Aug. 19.—Count Voltolini, a prominent publicist, has started a campaign in favor of Austrian participation in the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

He declares that from the European standpoint this exposition will be of far greater importance than were the Chicago and St. Louis exhibitions, and that it will afford to Austrian manufacturers a magnificent opportunity to develop trade.

SUES A CONGRESSMAN.

Wife Asks for Divorce from Thomas, the Belligerent Kentuckian.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENVILLE, Ky., Aug. 19.—Suit for divorce from Representative R. Y. Thomas, Jr., of Central City, representing the Third District of Kentucky, in Congress, was filed here to-day by Mrs. Annie L. Thomas, who married him in New York ten years ago.

In her petition Mrs. Thomas alleges that the Congressman has been an habitual drunkard for the past year, and that he has been wasting his estate. She asserts that he has treated her cruelly, and that they separated in May.

The custody of their two children, Barbara Nell, 7 years old, and Annie Lee, 3, is asked, together with sufficient money to maintain and educate them. She also asks an allowance for herself.

The defendant in the suit has gained a reputation in Washington for fisticuffs and has been conspicuous in Kentucky for a number of years. He has had several fist fights since becoming a member of the House of Representatives and has been known to wield other weapons than his hands.

His latest clash was with David Goodlett of Alabama, a doorkeeper in the House. The fight took place in the barroom of the New Varnum Hotel, and Thomas is said to have used a knife on his opponent.

Thomas first achieved notoriety here when he was Commonwealth's Attorney during the term of Gov. Willson, a Republican. Willson displeased with the way in which Thomas handled the "night rider" cases, publicly reprimanded him. Thomas retorted that the Governor was the "blue ribbon ass."

Thomas began his political career in 1886 when he was elected to the State Assembly.

HARTFORD BAITS MILITANTS.

Policeman Arrests Speakers, but Society Leader Intercedes.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 19.—Miss Eilzabeth Freeman of New York and Miss Elsie Mackenzie and Miss Vera Wentworth of London, the two latter English militant suffragists, who are on a campaign trip from New York to Boston, reached this city yesterday and paraded the streets with a wagon on which various suffragist sentiments were inscribed in flaming red letters on a white background.

Just as they had begun a noonday meeting near a factory Policeman John P. Flynn placed them under arrest for violating a city ordinance that forbids vehicles used for advertising purposes to pass through the streets of the city. The policeman told them to follow him to the station, but when he started they drove off at a gallop in another direction.

Later in the day a local suffrage leader of social prominence went to see the Chief of Police with a lawyer, and the Chief said that the charge against the suffragists would be dismissed if they kept the signs covered during the rest of their stay in this city. This hint was followed by covering the signs with crepe.

INQUIRY IN BALKANS BY CARNEGIE FUND

International Commission to Investigate Massacre Stories and Economic Results of War.

WORK TO BEGIN AT ONCE

Well-Known Publicists Chosen at Paris Meeting—Prof. Dutton of Columbia Represents This Country.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—On the initiative of the Division of Intercourse and Education of the Carnegie Endowment Fund for International Peace, a committee, representing the United States, Great Britain, France, Russia, Germany, and Austria, has been appointed to make an impartial inquiry into the alleged massacres in the Balkans in the course of the recent war, and the economic consequences arising from the war. The inquiry will not be affected by any political consideration.

The work of the committee will have as its basis evidence published by the various Governments and by official news agencies, and the testimony of American and European travelers who have visited the scenes of events. The committee will endeavor to verify this mass of testimony and compare it with evidence the committee adduces, and, after a careful sifting, the result of the committee's findings will be published in a general report, which will be translated into many languages and widely disseminated.

The committee believes that the work will meet a widely expressed desire in drawing out the moral of the drama which was played for nearly a year before the whole world, and that it also will point out consequences that are to be feared. The work will not be exclusively retrospective, but will call attention to fresh dangers that are liable to arise and claim further victims in both the Balkans and Asiatic Turkey. Finally, the committee hopes to draw from an excess of evil a great lesson in favor of settled order and the friendly or judicial solution of international conflicts.

At a meeting held here to-day at the Carnegie Bureau, presided over by Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, the following persons were delegated to proceed to-morrow to the various Balkan States to prosecute the inquiry: Dr. H. N. Brailsford, who has written extensive reviews on Balkan and Macedonian questions, representing Great Britain; Prof. Samuel Train Dutton of Columbia University, representing the United States; Justin Godart, member of the Chamber of Deputies, representing France; Prof. Paul N. Milukoff, leader of the Constitutional Democrats in the Russian Duma, representing Russia; Prof. Pazskowski of Berlin University, representing Germany, and Prof. Redlich, a member of the Reichsrath, representing Austria.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 19.—President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University while here to-day outlined the plans of the international commission that is to inquire into conditions in the Balkans. He said:

"The Carnegie Endowment Fund for International Peace, through the Division of Intercourse and Education, of which I am Chairman, is sending a special commission of inquiry to the Balkan Peninsula to make personal investigation and to report for the information of the public opinion of the world on three points:

"First, the outbreak of hostilities between the allies at the conclusion of the war with Turkey.

"Second, the truth or falsity of outrages reported to have been committed by the combatants, particularly the mutilation of captives; outrages on women, and destruction of private property.

"Third, the economic waste caused by this war between the allies and its cost.

"The feeling in this matter was brought about by statements printed in this country on the authority of the King of Greece."

SEEKS ONLY ADRIANOPLE.

Turkey Willing to Evacuate All Territory West of the Maritza.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 19.—The Council of Ministers decided to-day to send a note to the powers announcing Turkey's willingness to evacuate all territory west of the Maritza River on condition that the Ottoman Government be permitted to retain Adrianople.

VIENNA, Aug. 19.—The Governments of Europe, it became known here to-day, are preparing to make representations to Turkey against the further advance of her troops in Thrace.

SOFIA, Aug. 19.—The Bulgarian Government was informed to-day that the European Powers were considering measures to compel Turkey to respect the Treaty of London.

This information produced a reassuring effect in political circles here.

The Turks have occupied Kuchuk Kakvak, in the Gumuljina district, after an engagement with the small Bulgarian garrison. It is believed to be Turkey's intention to occupy and hold the territory westward to the Mesta River, not with a view to its permanent occupation, but in order to compel Bulgaria to treat direct with Turkey on the question of Adrianople and thus prevent interference in this situation by the Powers.

There are some indications that Greece is acting in collusion with Turkey. Greece has announced her readiness to evacuate Xanthi, Gumuljina, and Dedeaghatch next Thursday, with the suggestion that Bulgaria occupy them the following day.

Occupation on Friday is impossible owing to the difficulties of communication, and Bulgaria has requested a postponement of the evacuation and occupation until Aug. 28. The opinion is expressed, however, that Greece will adhere to her plan to evacuate the towns on Thursday and thus enable the Turks to occupy them in advance of the Bulgarians.

1,000 AT PEACE CONGRESS.

Meetings at The Hague Begin To-day—Reception by Municipality.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 19.—Nearly a thousand delegates have arrived here for the twentieth Universal Peace Congress, which will begin its sessions to-morrow morning at the Knights' Hall.

The Congress is under the patronage of Prince Henry of the Netherlands. It will end on Friday. The programme will include discussions of international law, the events of the year connected with peace and war, the enforcement of international law by means of an international police force, limitation of armaments, and what the press can do in the cause of peace. The discussions will be public.

The municipality of The Hague gave a reception to-night in honor of the delegates. In a speech the Burgomaster advised the delegates to exercise prudence and moderation in their deliberations, so as not to prove a detriment to the realization of their ideals.

FRENCH INCOME TAX.

Signs That a Bill Will Become Law at Next Session.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—It seems certain that, according to votes registered in both Senate and Chamber this week, that the long-pending income tax struggle will be settled in the Parliamentary Fall session.

Ever since 1893 the introduction of an income tax has been periodically discussed in both chambers. Two years ago M. Caillaux succeeded in having a bill pass the lower house. It was then taken to the Senate, where it has been ever since. Then a committee of both chambers framed a bill which has also hung fire.

The promising bill is an amendment of M. Malvy to the budget, which contains the provision that on and after Jan. 1, 1915, a general and graduated income tax is to be established. This curious measure enters into no details whatever as to how the tax is to be levied. It merely stipulates that it is to replace the tax on windows and furniture.

This amendment, which is not, of course, a bill in itself like the two former Income bills, has given rise to considerable discussion in both the Chamber and the Senate. On Monday the Senate, being called upon to discuss the amendment as part of the budget which had been voted in the Chamber, rejected it by a majority of 137 to 132. Yesterday, however, as if to soften the Chamber, the Senate, by a vote of 214 to 64, thought it would take up the question of the income tax at the next session. The amendment returned to the Chamber later in the day and was there voted to be maintained by 376 to 134. On its return to the Senate this morning it also received a unanimous vote.

Thus, when the Budget bill is voted for at the next session, it will without doubt include M. Malvy's amendment which, by exchanging one form of taxation for another, provides for an income tax which has so long been the bête noir of French capitalists, but no more than has the window and the furniture tax been that of French landlords.

BELGIUM GAMBLING ERA.

Law for Casinos to Open at Ostend and Spa.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 19.—Owing to the active measures to suppress gambling at French watering places, but principally to the fact that the dismal truth has been brought home to Belgium legislators that millions have been diverted from Belgium watering places because of the lack of gambling; a bill has been drafted by the "Gambling Commsision" of Parliament which will doubtless be passed at the next session and thereby allow Ostend and Spa to run "wide open."

Under the law passed on Oct. 24, 1902, all the gambling casinos and clubs were suppressed, and there was at the time a great outcry on the subject. The very existence of Ostend as a health resort was said to be threatened, and there is no doubt that since the law of suppression the town has never entirely regained its old popularity.

Mainly owing to the hardships caused to investors, who, before the law of 1902, had laid out millions of money in the towns, and to the loss sustained by these two health resorts, a new law in abrogation of the law of 1902 has been introduced in favor of Ostend and Spa. This new law, if passed, will authorize the councils of these towns to permit the establishment of a gambling club or casino, provided:

"1. That persons domiciled in each of these towns are forbidden to play, and

"2. That 55 per cent. of the profits arising therefrom are paid to charities—namely 20 per cent. for the building of national cheap dwellings, and 35 per cent. for old-age pensions."

In addition, 25 per cent. of such profits must be paid to the town council to be spent on public services and in advertising the town as a season resort. This will, therefore, only leave 20 per cent. of the profits for the promoters of the casino.

Want Australia to Exhibit.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 19.—Although some of the Australian States have declined to contribute toward the erection of an Australian court at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, there is a strong feeling among the Federal Ministers that the Commonwealth should be represented at San Francisco in 1915.

Many Drowned in Flight from Wang-Chia-Tu—Canton Has Been Isolated by the Typhoon.

PEKING, Aug. 19.—The German firm of Carlowitz & Co., long established at Hongkong, has offered to the Governor of Yun-Nan Province, it was learned at the Ministry of Communications today, the sum of $15,000,000 in exchange for rights to construct a railroad from Yun-Nan-Fu eastward to Po-Seh, a town on the West River just across the boundary of the adjoining Province ot Kwang-Si.

In addition to furnishing all the railway material Carlowitz & Co., who represent the Krupp Company, will, under the proposed terms, have a monopoly for twenty years of all Government contracts for arms and ammunition and for all mining and other machinery, and will also receive extensive mining cessions along the railroad.

FIERCE FIGHTING AT NANKING

Purple Mountain Frequently Taken and Retaken in Five-Day Battle.

LONDON, Wednesday, Aug. 20.—A distpatch to The Times from Shanghai says that desperate but unscientific fighting has continued for five days around Nanking for the western ridge of Purple Mountain, during which the ridge has changed hands many times. Gen. Chang-Hsun of the Government forces, according to the correspondent, appears to be entirely lacking in all military training, and his troops, though fierce and warlike, are equally untrained and undisciplined.

A Red Cross dispatch received here to-night says Nanking has fallen, but there is no confirmation of this.

HANKOW, Aug. 19.—The rebels have abandoned Nan-Chang, capital of the Province of Kiang-Si, and arrangements are now under way for the entry of the Northern forces.

After a feeble fight on Sunday the rebels evacuated Wang-Chia-Tu in boats. In their haste to escape from the city a large number of them were drowned.

PLAN TO FIGHT STRIKE.

Cloak and Suit Manufacturers Now Have an Association.

The Consolidated Cloak and Suit Manufacturers' Association, of which N. Zodoctod is President, and which was organized on account of the strike of the cloakmakers against the sub-manufacturers, held its first meeting yesterday at the Hotel St. Denis. The association is of independent manufacturers and sub-manufacturers who decided not to agree to the demands of the strikers. It has 175 members, of whom 35 were enrolled at yesterday's meeting.

J. H. Rosenfeld of Rosenfeld Brothers, a member of the executive committee, said that the members of the association were willing to arbitrate legitmiate demands, but would not agree to the demand that each sub-manufacturer should give a bond of $1,000.

"We would have no guarantee whatever," he said, "that the employes would live up to any agreement. Statements have been made that some of the shops of the spb-manufacturers are insanitary. We deny this and challenge an investigation. We are willing to arbitrate the demands in the same way as the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association does, but we will not recognize this strike or agree to the demands of the strikers.

"JACK" ROSE AIDS A CHURCH

Sends $10 Check and Will Lecture Free on "The Underworld."

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., Aug. 19.—"Jack" Rose, the principal witness in the Rosenthal murder case, will lecture here for the benefit of Christ Episcopal Church, his subject being "Life in the Underworld." The entire proceeds from the lecture will go to the church treasury.

Rose's offer to lecture free was in reply to an appeal sent out by the Rector of the church, the Rev. J. H. Brown, which stated that funds were needed to meet certain obligations. A voluntary contribution fund was hoped for to meet the debt, but this was not forthcoming, and in the effort to raise the required amount by the time it was due the Rev. Mr. Brown found himself facing a serious problem.

Rose responded to the appeal with a check for $10 and an offer to lecture froee of charge. The lecture offer has now been accepted, and a date will soon be set.

Rose has a home in Westport, three miles from here.

'LOAN SHARK' LOBBY ASKED TAMMANY AID

Washington Pawnbroker Tells House Committee of His Visits to New York.

ASSISTANCE WAS REFUSED

Horning Says He Lent Congressman McDermott $1,000—Contributed to the Democratic Fund.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Tammany Hall was dragged into the House lobby investigation this afternoon. George D. Horning, the Washington pawnbroker who had charge of the disbursement of the fund raised last year in an effort to defeat the enactment of the so-called "loan shark" bill, was called as a witness, and swore to two visits he made to New York for the purpose of enlisting the interest of Tammany.

Horning's story was told in a dramatic manner. When he was called to the stand, Henry E. Davis, who is also the Washington counsel for David Lamar, stood up, asked to be entered as counsel for Horning, and presented a physician's certificate upon the basis of which he asked the Lobby Committee to excuse him from testifying until Thursday. The committee insisted upon knowing the extent of Horning's disability. Mr. Davis said that Horning had a bad cold in the head and was almost deaf. The committee ascertained that Horning was suffering no physical pain, indicated its willingness to take a chance on his deafness, and insisted that he take the witness stand.

Horning was an exceedingly frank witness in some respects. The salient points developed from his examination were these:

Tammany Refused to Help Him.

First—That Horning went to New York in 1911 and saw Julius Morse, a Maiden Lane jeweler, who introduced him to "an unknown stranger," a member of Tammany Hall, in an effort to interest the latter in the Washington pawnbrokers' fight, but that the Tammany man refused to "mix in anything like that."

Second—That Horning went to New York on a similar mission on another occasion, meeting Isaac H. McMichael, formerly a page of the House of Representatives, and Representative James T. McDermott of Illinois, later going with them to the office of John D. McDermott, field agent of the National Association of Brewers, in an effort, through him, to again enlist the influence of Tammany Hall against the "loan shark" bill.

Third—That Horning was on terms of friendship with Congressman James T. McDermott, and frequently loaned money to the latter.

Fourth—That Congressman James T. McDermott now owes about $1,000 to Horning for which the latter has no written evidence of any security.

Horning said that the "Loan Shark" bill, which reduced the rate of interest in his business from 3 per cent. to 1 per cent. a month, had forced him out of business in Washington. Since April, Horning said, he had been conducting his loan and pawnshop business at the Virginia end of the highway bridge, just across the Potomac River from Washington, being beyond the jurisdiction of the new law in that location.

He first became interested in "Loan Shark" legislation, he said, immediately after the Dyer bill was introduced early in 1911. He called on several Representatives and members of the Monday Evening Club of Washington, a reform organization which had been instrumental in having the bill introduced, and presented the pawnbrokers' side of the case to them.

Horning said that he then tried to persuade all eight of Washington's pawnbrokers to raise a fund with which to enlighten Congress on the question. Isaac Heidenheimer and Abraham Bernstine were the only pawnbrokers, however, who were willing to join him in the movement and contribute to the fund. They first employed Attorney Tucker of the firm of Tucker, Kenyon & McFarland to appear before the House District Committee.

Pawnbrokers Paid Davis $2,000.

"The members of that committee," Horning testified, "seemed to have their minds made up in advance. They cut Lawyer Tucker short and gave him only ten minutes. We paid Tucker $35. After the bill went to conference we employed Henry E. Davis. He called on Members of Congress and attempted to explain to them how unjust the 'Loan Shark' bill was to us. He also went to the Senate and tried to have the bill sent back to the House and put properly before that body. We paid Attorney Davis $2,000."

"Did you visit New York in regard to this loan shark legislation?" Horning was asked.

"Yes," said Horning, "in 1911."

"Whom did you see there?" "A couple of parties. I saw Julian Moss, a jeweler in Maiden Lane, going there by his invitation or directions. I thought he could introduce me to some persons who would be of assistance."

"Did he so introduce you?" "Yes," said Horning, "but I don't recall who it was. Moss took me into some office that was in some way connected with the business of the city's government in New York. Moss told me the man he introduced me to was a member of Tammany Hall, who would take an interest in the Loan Shark bill and see that I got a proper hearing in Washington."

"Did this unnamed gentleman evince any interest in your mission?" "He was interested, but said he was very sorry he could not mix in; he could not bring Tammany into anything like that."

Horning then testified as to his second visit to New York in an effort to interest John McDermott, who was a cousin of Representative McDermott, and "connected with the brewers."

"What did you want John McDermott to do?" asked Chairman Garrett.

"See if he would introduce me to somebody who could get me a proper hearing at Washington."

"What was your conference about with John McDermott?"

Lent Money to a Congressman.

Horning said he had frequently loaned money to Representative McDermott, but did not consider him a customer, only a friend, and charged him no interest. He had known Representative McDermott ever since he had been in Congress, about five years, and the Congressman had introduced him to John McDermott four or five years ago.

"Whom did you expect John McDermott to reach in New York?" asked Representative Garrett.

"I didn't expect him to reach any one. I thought he might introduce me to some one."

"You thought John McDermott might bring influence to bear to prevent the destruction of your business through this 'Loan Shark' legislation?"

"No, you got that wrong; not to prevent Congressmen legislating, but to enlighten Congressmen."

"You thought Congress needed enlightening?"

"Yes; I explained the situation to McDermott. I asked John McDermott the same question I had asked Julius Moss—if he knew any Tammany men who could see if I could get justice at Washington. John McDermott told me he thought he could do nothing."

Horning explained his loans to Congressman McDermott, saying McDermott owes him $1,000 for money borrowed more than eighteen months ago.

Burleson Orders Full Titles Used in Post Office Department.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Individual identity of the many officials of the Post Office Department was wiped out to-day, and henceforth official titles alone will identify the heads of divisions.

Postmaster General Burleson has prohibited the addressing of his subordinates as Mr. Brown or Mr. Jones. If Mr. Brown happens to be First Assistant Postmaster General, Mr. Burleson wants him addressed as "First Assistant." And if Mr. Jones is the Fourth Assistant he wants Mr. Jones so addressed solely and not as Mr. Jones.

The rule applies even to routine memoranda within the department.

CRUSADERS AT PORT JERVIS.

Suffragists Ride 30 Miles and Address 2,000 in the Park.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT JERVIS, Aug. 19.—The suffrage crusaders of the Wowen's Political Union started bright and early from White Lake to-day on a thirty-mile ride to Port Jervis. Parkhurst and Senator Root, their chargers, were gay and frisky. The Summer boarders came out by the dozens with batteries of cameras to bid the crusaders good-bye. Many of them promised to march with the union in the Brooklyn parade on Nov. 1.

At the first stream at which the crusaders allowed their horses to drink, before Capt. De Forest realized what he was about Senator Root got down on his knees and started to roll over in the water. With a desperate effort Mrs. De Forest reined him up and came out with nothing worse than a very muddy foot and considerable splashing of water. The Senator was disciplined throughout the rest of the ride, being allowed to drink only in the orthodox fashion.

It was a long and hot trip to Port Jervis, and the crusaders were weary when they were met at Sparrow Bush by an automobile decorated with suffrage banners, in which were Mrs. William P. Kaufmann and several other suffragists.

Tonight the crusaders spoke from the bandstand in the city park to a crowd of 2,000 people. Wilton Bennet presided and welcomed them on behalf of Mayor Nearpass, who was detained at the Common Council meeting. The collection was the largest the crusaders had yet received, and was given heartily as a tribute to Miss Harriet Porritt, who is a native of Port Jervis.

To-morrow the crusaders will depart for Warwick, forty miles from here, where they expect to speak at 8 o'clock. They will be accompanied part of the way by a new recruit, Miss Marie Duley.

Parkhurst and Senator Root are completely done up this evening, and the carrying out of to-morrow's schedule is rather doubtful.

NORA BLATCH DE FORREST.

PAUL KASE A SUICIDE.

Head of William Hagemann & Co. Kills Himself in Stateroom.

Two hours after the steamship Massachuestts, which sailed from Boston on Monday night, had landed her passengers at the New York pier yesterday morning, it was discovered that one of them, Paul Kase, President of William Hagemann & Co., 30 Church Street, had committed suicide some time during the night. A steward came upon his locked stateroom, and opening it with his passkey, found the dead man lying on the floor with a revolver close to his right hand. He had put a bullet into his heart.

Pencilled notes in his pocket gave directions as to the disposition of his body, and there were letters written on the ship's stationery addressed to his office and to his wife, who lives at 126 Willard Street, Bloomfield, N. J. It is understood that Kase's suicide was prompted by business reverses.

Mr. Kase was 38 years old. His firm does a large business in the importing and exporting of bulbs.

ARREST BECKER WITNESS.

Sam Kramer Apprehended in Subway as a Pickpocket.

Charged with trying to pick a pocket in the crowd jostling at the entrance to a Subway car in Fourteenth Street, Sam Kramer, one of the witnesses in the Rosenthal case, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective Le Grau. Kramer was the man found with Lefty Louie and Gyp the Blood when they were found in a flat in Glendale, Queens. He was held as a witness, but escaped one night from the House of Detention, in Mulberry Street, and by the time he was found again in Chicago the four gunmen had been sent up the river after ex-Lieut. Becker.

Arrested with Kramer was Harry Jacobs of 211 East Tenth Street. The police say both men have long records at Police Headquarters. La Grau was not able to bring them in without a struggle. When he collared the two in the thick of the crowd they showed fight, and it was not until after he had received help from some muscular patrons of the Subway that he managed to subdue his prisoners.

KEELEY REFUTES CHARGES OF GRAFT

Chicago Tribune Manager Contradicts His Accusers Before Chicago Committee.

DENEEN GRILLS MARRIOTT

Editor's Accuser in Voting Machine Case Denies Having Been Arrested in Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Sworn testimony refuting allegations made in the affidavit of Edward E. Marriott, a reporter on The Chicago Examiner, was given by James Keeley, general manager of The Chicago Tribune, in the legislative investigation of the $1,000,000 voting machine contract to-day. Mr. Keeley swore that he had never met H. W. Barr, sales agent of the company, until last November or last Spring—he was not sure which—more than a year after the Empire Voting Machine Company got the $1,000,000 contract.

Mr. Marriott was in the room and heard the testimony of Mr. Keeley. Charles S. Deneen, counsel for the legislative committee, conducted the examination. He opened the hearing of the witness by identifying the Marriott affidavit and read from it the charges reflecting upon Mr. Keeley, as follows:

"Barr told us that he had paid big money to get the contract, but that the mistake he made was not to give $50,000 to Jim Keeley, publisher of The Tribune. Barr said: 'Keeley demanded $50,000, but we refused to pay him. If he had got that there would not have been any of this trouble with the voting machine contract. The Tribune and the other papers had always been for voting machines, and they would never have thought of fighting the contract if The Tribune had not started trouble when we refused Keeley's demand for $50,000.'"

"Do you know Mr. Barr?" Mr. Deneen asked Mr. Keeley.

"Until yesterday afternoon I had believed I never met Mr. Barr," replied Mr. Keeley. "Then I remembered that I met him once, either last November or last Spring. It was on an election night, and Mr. Barr did not know who I was nor did I know who Mr. Barr was, so far as our positions were concerned. To the best of my knowledge I never saw Mr. Barr before."

"Did you discuss with him the proposition of receiving any money for the giving or withholding of support of The Tribune in the letting of the voting machine contract?" asked Mr. Deneen.

"I never discussed such a subject with Mr. Barr or with any human being," replied Mr. Keeley.

Mr. Keeley also said he had learned that Mr. Barr called on Oscar E. Hewitt, a reporter for The Tribune, in The Tribune editorial rooms, one evening, and suggested in the course of the conversation that he wished to meet Mr. Keeley, but that the meeting did not take place.

Charles H. Mitchell, attorney for the Election Board, cross-examined the witness.

"Why did The Tribune advocate the purchase of voting machines for a number of years and then change its attitude, when the Democratic administration came in?"

"That is not a fact," answered Mr. Keeley.

"Did you not favor voting machines before County Judge Owen's election, and oppose them afterward?"

"We believed in voting machines, but not in this deal.

"You opposed voting machines while these negotiations were going on?"

"We opposed the consummation of this deal. If there is to be opposition, it must come before consummation."

"Why was it that almost constantly from January, 1911, until the date of the voting machine contract, the Tribune belittled the efforts of the Election Board to buy voting machines?"

"We did not believe it was a square deal."

Mr. Mitchell wanted to know the source of the witness's information and asked specifically whether he suspected Commissioners Czarnecki, Taylor or Kellermann. Getting a negative answer to each question, he stopped.

"Do you want to ask me whom we did suspect?" suggested Mr. Keeley. "We suspected the voting machine company."

"Is it not a fact," asked Mr. Mitchell in conclusion, "that the opposition to this contract is due to a newspaper fight?"

"It is not a fact," the witness said.

Edward S. Beck, Managing Editor of The Tribune, and Mr. Hewitt testified, corroborating the evidence of Mr. Keeley.

Edward E. Marriott passed an uncomfortable afternoon before the committee, after hearing Keeley's testimony. He denied that he had ever been an inmate of a prison in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Deneen questioned Marriott as follows:

"Were you arrested on a charge of larceny on June 13 or 14, 1901, in connection with the Betsy Ross Flaghouse Association in Philadelphia?"

"No."

"Were you discharged from The New York Journal for submitting false expense accounts and padding pay rolls?"

"I was not."

"Do you know Francis A. Adams, a Police Lieutenant there?"

"I did know of one Adams, but not a Police Lieutenant."

"Were you not associated with Adams and his son in the Ross Association, and were you not arrested for larceny and criminal libel on or about July 13 or 14, 1901?"

"No."

"Were you not held in prison pending trial?"

"No, Sir. I never was in prison."

"Were you not charged with stealing books from The New York World library?"

"No, Sir."

ESCAPED PATIENT DROWNS.

E. D. Southerland Seeks to Swim to Liberty from Ward's Island.

Attendants of the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane at Ward's Island were attracted about 7 o'clock last evening by shouts from the receiving yard, where some fifty patients were confined. Going to the place they were told by the excited patients that one of their number, Edward D. Southerland, had skipped out of the grounds, jumped into the river and was swimming north.

Southerland, who was under observation for a mild mental disorder, had been receiving minor privileges, and just before he left the grounds he had been sitting on a bench in front of the ward smoking. There were no attendants near, as Southerland and the one or two patients with him were merely under casual observation. It was a matter of but a few minutes before Southerland covered the one or two furlongs which lay between his ward and the river. Pausing on the water's edge only long enough to disrobe, he wrapped his clothes up in a bundle, tied them on his back and plunged in.

Superintendent Mabon and several attendants ran toward the river but found no trace of the fleeing patient.

The hospital authorities notified Police Headquarters and the police of Harbor B squad were sent out in a launch in an effort to pick Southerland up. For two hours they scoured the river without seeing the swimmer. Just before midnight the Astoria police recovered Southerland's body.

Southerland, whose address was entered in the hospital records as Larchmont, N. Y., was 44 years old, and was described as a writer and publisher. He had a brother, William B. Southerland, also of Larchmont. He was committed to Manhattan Hospital from Bellevue on July 5 by order of Justice Giegerich.

RAN DOWN BOY AND FLED.

Motor Cyclist Who Injured Youngster Is Sent to Jail for Ten Days.

Because he fled after he had run down John Gugleimnir, 6 years old, of 30 Main Street, Flushing, while riding his motor cycle along Jackson Avenue, Corona, last Saturday afternoon, John Miller of 20 East Sixty-sixth Street, Manhattan, was committed to Blackwell's Island for ten days by Magistrate Conway, in the Flushing Court, yesterday. Miller was arrested after William J. Hamilton, President of the Corona National Bank, had chased him several miles over the roads of Long Island in his automobile.

The Gugleimnir boy was not injured seriously. The only excuse Miller gave the Magistrate for failing to care for the injured boy was that he was anxious to return home.

CARS HIT AT CROSSING.

Faulty Brake Causes Crash at Fourth Avenue Corner.

A southbound Fourth and Madison Avenue car collided yesterday afternoon with an eastbound Twenty-eighth Street car, derailed it and threw several passengers from their seats. According to the police, the brake of the Fourth Avenue car was out of order, and the motorman was unable to bring the car to a stop in time to prevent the collision. A delay of fifteen minutes resulted on both car lines.

Mrs. Bridget Martin, 60 years old, of 803 West Street, received contusions of the back and was taken to Bellevue Hospital. Other passengers in the Twenty-eighth Street car were badly shaken up. The Fourth Avenue car was not damaged.

DEMOCRATS RALLY FOR FREE SUGAR

Republican Amendments Defeated by a Solid Party Vote, Except for the Louisianans.

MAJORITY STILL IN SIGHT

Besides, Four Republicans Are Absent for an Indefinite Time—Dutch Standard Gets Death Blow.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—President Wilson's programme for free sugar in 1916 won in the Senate to-day, when Democrats rallied to the support of the tariff bill and defeated all amendments to the sugar schedule. With all but Senators Ransdell and Thornton of Louisiana standing firm for the Administration measure, the Democrats defeated the Bristow amendment for a compromise duty, the Norris amendment against free sugar, and the Gallinger amendment against free maple sugar.

An amendment to abolish immediately the Dutch standard color test for sugar, held to be a strong discrimination in favor of the refiners, was adopted. It was proposed by Senator Bristow, Republican, and accepted by Senators Simmons and Williams, the Democratic managers of the bill. Under its provisions the Dutch standard, against which a consistent fight has been waged since 1909, will be abolished as soon as the tariff becomes law, instead of next March, as the bill otherwise would have provided.

Senator Bristow's amendment would have established a gradual reduction in duty from the present tariff of $1.90 per hundred pounds until in six years the tariff would have been $1.27½. Under the Cuban treaty this would have established a 97-cent tariff on Cuban sugar, which constitutes the bulk of the imports into the United States.

A hard fight was made for the Bristow amendment, but it was defeated, 39 to 34. But for the absence of Senators Works, Sterling, and Lippitt, Republicans, and Senator Poindexter, Progressive, the vote probably would have been 39 to 38. This close margin did not alarm the Democratic leaders, however, for on a definite canvass of the entire membership they were certain of a majority.

A subsequent motion by Senator Gallinger to strike out the provision to make maple sugar and glucose free of duty in 1916 was beaten, 36 to 35.

The proposal to put all cane and raw sugar on the free list in 1916, behind which President Wilson had mustered the Democratic majority after a long and persistent effort, came squarely before the Senate on a motion by Senator Norris, Republican, to strike out that feature of the bill. This was defeated by a viva voce vote and Senator Norris made no demand for a roll call.

This proposal will come up again when the bill has passed its present stage of consideration in Committee of the Whole and advances to the next reading in the Senate. When made again the motion undoubtedly will call for a record vote, but Democratic leaders to-night expressed entire confidence that they would still have a clear majority of at least one vote.

Senator Works is now in California and is not paired with any Democratic Senator. Nine Democrats were paired with nine Republicans on to-day's vote. Without a further break in the Democratic ranks, however, the vote would still be 48 to 47, should all pairs be broken and all Senators return. Should the Democrats insist upon withdrawing existing pairs the advantage would be largely in their favor, as Senators du Pont and Root, Republicans, are now in Europe, Senator Burleigh is ill, and Senator Works has indicated that he does not expect to return to Washington for the tariff session.

Senator Simmons gave notice that he would offer further amendments to the sugar schedule before the bill was approved, to make it clear that the existing sugar duty of $1.90 per hundred was to continue in force until the new rate of $1 per hundred became effective next March. Senator Cummins said he believed that, unless such amendments were made, sugar would come in free of duty from the time the new tariff became law until the proposed duties took effect next year.

Action on the sugar schedule to-day was followed by a speeding up of the legislative machinery on remaining sections. Democratic leaders expressed confidence to-night that tariff revision would be greatly hastened within the next week. The fight over free wool is still to occur, but the progress to-day on the sugar schedule was accepted as an indication of what would happen when wool was reached.

The Standish Arms will reduce your living expenses one-third

The Standish Arms overlooks the East River, and is about ten minutes by subway from Wall Street.

It is located just the other side of Brooklyn Bridge, in Brooklyn's finest residential section.

It is nearer to Wall Street than 59th Street, and is as far from the roar of Broadway as Boston or New Rochelle.

It is a family hotel with artistic interiors, and practical ideas on the question of service.

It is the equal of any first class family apartment in New York, and a full third less in its rentals.

It has a restaurant service which is so homelike that you will forget you are in a hotel.

You can get one, two, three or four rooms and bath and á la carte service in the Standish Arms for thirty or forty per cent. less than the same thing costs in New York.

And in addition to this substantial saving on your living expenses, there is the suburban quiet and refinement of the Standish Arms location, which is both central and secluded—a combination which is hard to find in Manhattan at any price.

Furnished and unfurnished apartments from October 1.

WM. B. CUTTING LEFT $10,906,480

Appraisal of Lawyer-Financier's Estate Shows He Held $9,011,980 in Securities.

SHREWD AS AN INVESTOR

Few of His Investments Turned Out Ill—Owned No Realty Here—$9,060,242 to Widow.

William Bayard Cutting, the lawyer and financier, left an estate of $10,906,480 on his death, March 1, 1912, according to the report of Appraiser Coggey, which was filed in the Surrogates' Court yesterday. Although during his life Mr. Cutting was regarded as a large realty operator, the schedules of the Appraiser showed that at the time of his death he possessed no realty in New York State. The main divisions of his assets were: Bank accounts, $310,340; promissory notes, $530,002; mortgages, $233,000, and securities, $9,011,980.

The estate of Mr. Cutting was largely inherited, but as shown by the dates of his investments he had changed his assets to securities, which his intimate knowledge of finance told him were better than the original investments. His diversified interests are shown by his largest bond investment, which included $162,500 in the Buffalo & Lake Erie Traction Company, $202,925 in the Florida Central & Peninsula Railroad, $290,125 in the Kansas & Colorado Pacific Railroad, $225,312 in the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad, $321,000 in the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, $100,000 in the Las Animas Sugar Company, $100,375 in the New York Telephone Company, $100,000 in the Briar Cliff Lodge Association, $275,000 in the New York Architectural Terra Cotta Company, and $103,000 in New York City corporate stock.

Mr. Cutting's holdings of stock also showed a wide range of investment, these securities including 1,500 shares of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, preferred stock, $216,750; 4,510 shares of the Southern Pacific Railroad, $490,462; 4,000 shares of the Union Pacific Railroad, common, $656,000, and 2,000 shares preferred stock, $182,750; 1,535 shares of the American Beet Sugar Company, preferred, $149,662; 300 shares of the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company, $100,000; 1,600 shares of the Mackay Company, $112,800; 1,905 shares of the Patterson Ranch Company, $257,175, and 1,500 shares of the Connecticut Railway and Lighting Company, preferred, $120,000.

Few of Mr. Cutting's investments turned out ill. The most serious of this nature, which the Appraiser considered of nominal value, were 114,000 shares of the Mexican Coal and Coke Company and 50,000 shares of the Yankee Fuel Company. He had, however, made loans to friends who failed to pay. Such loans, of even the smallest of which he made a note, totaled nearly $50,000. The largest promissory note which was considered of full value was one of $285,000 from the Selkirk Realty Company.

Among the deductions which were allowed from the assets of the estate was one item of $125,000, representing Mr. Cutting's contribution, equal to that of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, to the building of the Synod Hall at Morningside Heights. The schedules of deductions also showed that he had promised to pay $1,000 apiece to the Snow Hill Normal and Medical Institute, Fiske University, and the Seamen's Institute, and $5,000 to both the American Federation of Sex Hygiene and the Emanuel Church of Islip, L. I. These subscriptions were paid in full by the executors of the estate.

Under his will his widow, Mrs. Olivia M. Cutting, is the largest beneficiary. Her share, the residuary estate, is valued at $9,060,242. Brownson M. Cutting, a son, received a legacy of $250,000 and an additional gift of the same amount, which the testator said was to equalize his gift of $250,000 to his other son, William Bayard Cutting, Jr. This was the only mention in the will of the latter son. A legacy of $250,000 and a life estate in a like sum in trust was bequeathed to a daughter, Olivia Cutting, while $250,000 was given to another daughter, Mrs. Justine B. Ward. A granddaughter, Iris Margaret Cutting, also received a life estate in a trust fund of $250,000. All his interest in realty situated at Summit, N. J., he gave to his private secretary, Francis H. Bergen.

N. W. HALSEY'S ESTATE.

Property in New York Subject to Taxation Amounted to $375,118.

N. Wetmore Halsey, who died on July 1, 1911, the founder of the Interstate Investors' Banking House of N. Wetmore Halsey & Co., left a New York estate of $875,118, according to the appraisal filed yesterday. Mr. Halsey was a resident of East Orange, N. J., and the larger part of his estate was situated beyond the taxing power of New York. His entire personalty was placed at $2,035,009.

As the firm of which he was founder did business in New York State, part of its assets were taxable here. Mr. Halsey's interest in the firm was placed at 85 per cent., and in his interest in the New York business at $323,138. The net profits of the entire business since the founding of the partnership in 1907 till July 8, 1911, were placed at $910,720. This profit, as divided among the offices in the different States was: New York, $325,691; Pennsylvania, $115,606; Illinois, $308,501, and California, $160,922. The firm was composed of Mr. Halsey's interest and that of Allen G. Hoyt.

The larger part of the estate was placed in trust to provide equal incomes for his three children, Ralph W. and Helen Halsey and Frances Smith, and his wife, Mrs. Margaret C. Halsey.

Former Dock Commissioner's Estate Consisted Largely of Securities.

The estate of Charles H. Marshall, Dock Commissioner under Mayor Hewitt and for more than fifty years a well-known financier, who died at his Paris residence on July 2, 1912, was appraised yesterday at a value of $1,200,388. The largest holdings in securities, which formed the major portion of the estate, were 150 shares of the Central Trust Company, $154,500; 552 shares of the Mexican Telegraph Company, $124,700, and 500 shares of the Evelyn Investment Company of New Jersey, appraised at $313,312.

Under his will Mr. Marshall gave nineteen legacies of $50 to friends, in order that they might purchase souvenirs. He also gave the State Children's Aid Society $1,000 and the Darragh Home for Crippled Children $5,000. The residuary estate he divided equally among his two children, Charles Henry Marshall and Evelyn Isabella Marshall, and his wife, Mrs. Josephine Banks Marshall.

F. S. BLACK LEFT $247,717.

Two-Thirds of ex-Governor's Estate Goes to His Son.

Special to The New York Times.

TROY, Aug. 19.—The report of the transfer tax appraisal shows that ex-Gov. Frank S. Black left a gross estate of $247,717.46. The debts and administration expenses amounted to $32,373.97. The net estate is divided between the widow, who gets a third, and the son, Arthur Black, who receives two-thirds. The tax on the estate is $3,202.87. It was believed that Mr. Black had a much larger estate.

The principal item is seventy-five shares of the National City Bank of New York, appraised at $29,250. There are eight shares of the Maiden Lane Trust Company of New York, which are appraised as of no value.

Fire Sweeps North Anson, Me.

NORTH ANSON, Me., Aug. 19.—Every place of business in North Anson and seven residences were destroyed by fire to-day; loss, $110,000. About thirty buildings were burned. The fire started from an exploded lamp in the Hotel Somerset. There were few guests, and all escaped without accident.

C. H. MACKAY'S CASH IS ONLY $9,262.06

His Attorney Says He Has No Personal Property That Is Taxable in North Hempstead.

WILLING TO PAY ON $25,000

Also Objects to the $400,000 Assessment on the Harbor Hill Estate in Roslyn as Excessive.

Clarence H. Mackay is not rich in personal property, according to an affidavit filed yesterday with the Board of Assessors of North Hempstead by Henry G. Fritsche, agent and attorney for Mr. Mackay. Mr. Mackay, who owns the handsome estate at Roslyn known as Harbor Hill and is suposed to be the largest stockholder in the Postal Telegraph Company, has, according to Mr. Fritsche's affidavit, only $9,262.06 in cash on hand and on deposit.

Mr. Fritsche presented the affidavit to the Assessors after he had entered a request for a reduction of the assessment on the personal property of Mr. Mackay. Acording to the Assessors' books, Mr. Mackay is assessed for $150,000 personal property. Mr. Fritsche said that Mr. Mackay should not be assessed for personal property at all, but to avoid securing the necessary affidavits showing why he should not be assessed Mr. Mackay was willing to pay on $25,000 personal property.

Assessor Abraham Wolf of Great Neck said that, in his opinion, Mr. Fritsche could not testify in reference to the personal property of Mr. Mackay.

"But I know what personal property he has," interrupted Mr. Fritsche.

"That seems strange," replied Mr. Wolf. "The last time Mr. Mackay was here he old us that even his wife did not know how much money he possessed."

According to Mr. Fritsche's affidavit, Mr. Mackay's personal property is: Cash on hand and on deposit, $9,262.06; amount of notes receivable and open accounts receivable, $404,349; amount of mortgages and bonds, $183,350; value of other chattles, $100,000, a total of $696,964.06. His "just debts," according to Mr. Fritsche's affidavit, are: Amount owed on note, $689,547.06; amount owed on open accounts, $30,084.79; total of just debts, $717,631.85; amount taxable, nothing.

Mr. Mackay also objected to the assessment on his Harbor Hill estate, which has been assessed for $400,000. The objection was made by William H. Cook, one of the trustees of the property, which was recently transferred by Mrs. Mackay to Mr. Mackay. He said that the assessment was unequal and out of all proportion to the increase on adjacent property. He pointed out that the assessment was increased $100,000 over last year's and that the increase is $215,000 over that of 1911.

The board did not take any action, but notified Mr. Mackay's representatives that they would take the protest under advisement.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Aug. 19.—After he had been dragged from in front of a train where he had thrown himself to-day, Herbert L. Rowe, a shoe worker, 35 years old, broke away from his rescuers and jumped into the Merrimac River and was drowned.

Gettysburg Landmark Destroyed.

GETTYSBURG, Penn., Aug. 19.—The cupola of the old seminary from which Gen. Lee directed the Confederate forces at the battle of Gettysburg was struck by lightning to-day and burned, destroying one of the principal landmarks of the historic field.

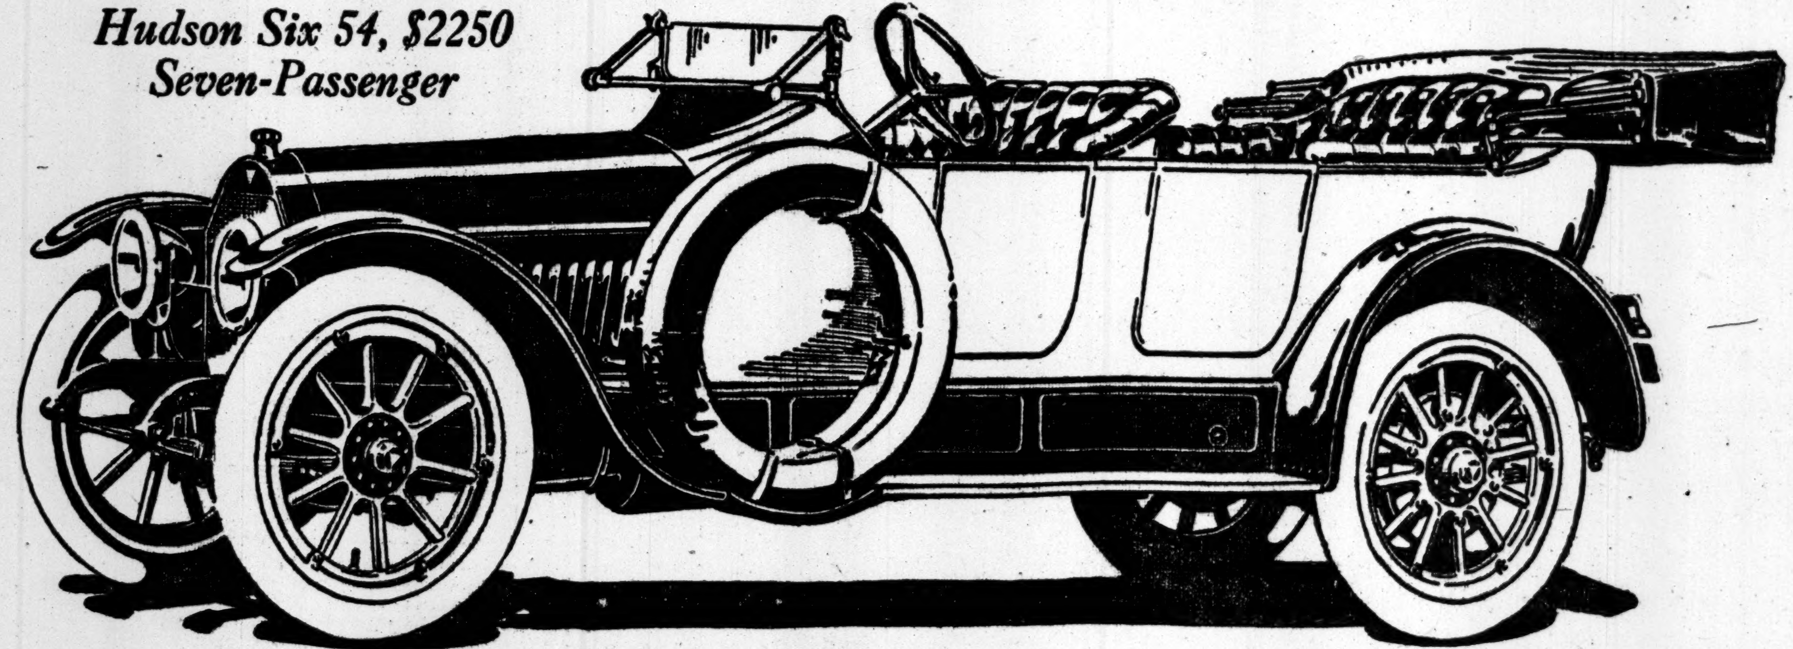
The New Ideal of a Distinguished Car

Hudson Six 54, $2250
Seven-Passenger



HERE now is a car which typifies the ideals of the time. This streamline body—this long, sloping hood—this absence of angle at the dash—this low-hung chassis—these crowned fenders—this placing of extra tires so the front doors are left clear—these things belong to the car of today.

The consensus of the world's best opinion is that this type of car marks the coming ideal car. These are radical changes but they are coming as surely as foredoors came—and as suddenly.

All the best foreign cars—English, French and German—will this year exhibit exclusively this new streamline body. And all men know that what they adopt in body design becomes the world-wide vogue.

Our designers have added a hundred minor effects. They have Americanized—have Hudsonized—the type. So the car is distinctive. There will be no other just like it. But it embodies what we regard as the highest conception of the modern trend in bodies.

And we believe that every connoisseur will consider this new HUDSON Six the handsomest car exhibited.

Engineering Pauses

We can claim in this car no great advance as regards fine engineering and no HUDSON owner expects it. Fine engineering has limits. For the past four years Howard E. Coffin and his able engineers have given their best to the HUDSON. Last year they brought Sixes pretty close to perfection. So close that the HUDSON Six jumped in one year into the foremost rank among Sixes.

These men have worked out in this new-model car a vast number of minor engineering improvements. They have added scores of new mechanical features—some of them quite important. But we never expect to build a much better chassis than we built in our last year's Six.

This year's advances lie mainly in beauty, in comfort, in conveniences, in room. We have combined the best in lines, finish and equipment with the best in engineering. We have succeeded in making the HUDSON Six the masterpiece it is.

Now the Ideal Car

We now feel that this HUDSON 54 offers the utmost in every wanted feature. It has the staunchness of steel Pullmans. It has the comfort of Turkish lounging chairs. It has the speed of express trains. It is free from all the troubles which annoy the inexpert.

No man knows how to build a car more handsome and impressive. No conveniences are absent, no modern features lacking.

And all these things are here included in a Six 54, with seven-passenger body, at the record price of $2250 (f. o. b. Detroit, Michigan).

The New Features

These are among the new features we bring out in this model. No mention is here made of the countless features in previous HUDSON models which we still retain.

Seven-passenger body.

36 x 4½-inch tires.

Extra tires carried—as never before—ahead of the front door. This leaves both front doors clear.

Four forward speeds.

Pure streamline body.

Low-hung body.

No angles at the dash.

Wide tonneau doors.

Gasoline tank in dash.

Electric self-cranking, with the rapid type of the Delco system built especially for this car.

Powerful electric lights with dimming attachment for city driving. They also act as ordinance lights.

Extra seats in tonneau fold into back of front seat, entirely out of the way.

Jeweled magnetic speedometer in dash, with new concealed noiseless gears.

Every operation and control placed within reach of the driver's hand. Gasoline and oil control, lights and starter.

Individual Yale lock and ignition control; prevents theft of car.

Rain-vision windshield built as part of the car.

Genuine Pantasote top. Curtains that are carried in the top can be instantly adjusted.

Electric horn—trunk rack—tire holders—license carriers—everything.

Come See It—Come Today

Come to our showrooms and see this new achievement. It is not merely an improved car—it's a real innovation. It will display to you all the best thought of the day in automobile designing.

Come see it while it's new.

Hard to Make it Plain

Just What is the New Cole Method of Building Automobiles

That's Why we Have to Ask Readers to Take the Facts, Then Say to Themselves

"Let Me Think!"

An Explanation

We have the best advertising writers we can get in Chicago and New York, trying to make plain the new Cole method of building cars.

These writers say that readers don't want to think about methods of manufacture; they want to know the result—"Make it plain what the Cole car is."

We will make an experiment. Tomorrow we will print the best explanation of a Cole car sent in by anyone before 3 o'clock this afternoon. The advertisement will be one column wide. It will have the same picture as this advertisement at the top.

COLT-STRATTON COMPANY.

THE New Cole is built to compete with America's best cars. But the price is $1500 to $1800 less.

We can't help the price.

We took the right principle to produce the best car—a new principle—and we found it cost less.

All the mechanical parts of the Cole car are built by specialists—by those master specialists whose product is found in $4500 and $5000 cars. These specialists' parts got into the highest priced cars because they clearly outranked anything that could be made by the builders of the high priced cars themselves.

Most high priced cars have given up on only three or four out of the fourteen parts they originally made in their own factories. One $5000 car has given up on five of the parts in this list.

The new Cole, Series Nine, is the only car built wholly of parts that have forced their way to the top. Read the names of famous parts in the list below.

Co-equals Convoked to Co-build

When the Cole engineers design a new Series they convoke the master part makers in Indianapolis. These specialists are co-equals with a mutual aim—therefore, co-builders.

They believe that a Whole is Equal to the Sum of all its Parts.

If the master car builders of Europe were to combine their talents on one car, an all-round pleasure car to challenge all comers, the new Cole car would have to be selected to represent America.

Get a demonstration in the new Four or new Six Cole, today, and see what these co-equal master part-builders have done. It will increase your respect for all present day engineering genuis.

If you can't call, 'phone us to bring a demonstrator to your door. Don't hesitate. The time to get your new car is now—the best touring days of the year.

Unit Power Plant—Northway Mayo Radiator
Delco Electric Apparatus Spicer Universal Joints
Gemmer Steering Gear
Detroit Steel Products Springs

In the great Northway Motor, engineers have used the same Standardized Principle which is used in the harmonizing of all the other mechanical parts of the Cole car. They adopted the best features of all power plants—as follows: Unit type (no universal joint between the clutch and transmission). Three point suspension. Enclosed valves. Tungsten valves, (imported). Coventry chains on timing gears (imported). Dual syphon-centrifugal circulation.

PIRATES DEFEAT GIANTS—BROOKLYN LOSES—TURF—YACHTING—POLO

PIRATES REVIVE; SUBDUE GIANTS

Max Carey Drives Out Two Home Runs—Old Doc Crandall Fails.

On some Tuesdays in August the Pittsburgh Baseball Club looks like the best thing in the major leagues. Yesterday was their day at the Polo Grounds. They never looked better. In the face of the attack of the Buccaneers the New Yorks looked like an assemblage that had been stricken with nervous prostration. Prepare yourself for the shock—the Giants lost the game by a score of 8 to 3. Tears! ! !

The main theme of the Polo Ground classic yesterday was Maximilian Carnarious, who is known to the baseball public as Max Carey. Max was seized early yesterday afternoon with an epidemic of terrific hitting. While Art Fromme was doing the shooting from the pitching hillock for the Giants Max banged two home runs into the collection of peaceful citizens who paid their good money to squat in the right field grand stand. When Carey started to pump hits among them they became uneasy and wanted their seats changed. You couldn't blame them.

Fromme didn't last long in the entertainment. After Carey had cudgeled two homers into the stand and the Giants were pretty well beaten, Manager McGraw sprung a big surprise on the crowd by producing Old Doc Crandall from the "bull pen." The last you heard of "Doc" he had been sold to the St. Louis Cardinals. Well, Crandall escaped to Brooklyn and after a long search by the Burns detectives he was discovered in Brooklyn and brought back to the Giants. Manager McGraw was so glad that Doc was recaptured that he was ready to pay any price to get him back. Crandall relieved Fromme and got a great reception from the 8,000 or more fans who sat in at the proceedings.

Among those present were hundreds of bright-faced likable little orphans, who brought their own band and played all the tunes from harmonyland. John B. Foster, who is the chauffeur of the club, never misses a day now without coaxing some band of boys to see a regular baseball game.

Mind you, this game was nothing to boast about. The Giants were loose-jointed in the field, and not quite up to the pace of Pirate hitting. In other words, to a casual observer from the outside, the Giants were trimmed fine and proper. Consequently, Manager Fred Clarke, the well-known cowboy, wore a grin a yard wide last night.

Before proceeding beyond this point, one episode in yesterday's game ought to be brought out plainly. In the eighth inning, when the infant Giant pitcher, Ferdinand Schupp, was in the box, he was faced by Hans Wagner. Naturally, Ferdie was nervous. You, or anybody else, would be. Wagner jammed a terrific liner between centre and right fields. It was tagged a home run, honest.

As if by intuition, Pink Jack Murray knew where that ball was going. He ran for it, and nobody believed that he had a chance of even flirting with it. Murray, as if from a springboard, hurled himself at the rampant bulb, and, clutching it with one hand in mid air, he brought it down to earth for the third out. Ferdie Schupp says that Murray is the greatest fielder that ever lived, because he saved his début from a tragedy to an ovation. Good for Murray.

In fact, a couple of hurrahs for Murray.

To get down to the cold, bold facts of the case, there never was a doubt about who would win this game after the first inning. Bobby Byrne, in the opening stanza, was neatly tossed out at first by Art Fletcher. Max Carey added considerable éclat to the quiet afternoon by jamming a home run into the right field stand. Viox, (the x is silent, as in fish,) well, he singled. So did Hans Wagner, Viox going to third. Miller pumped a sacrifice fly to right and Viox scored. Wilson then pounded a single to right, scoring Wagner.

Drifting to the second inning, one finds Gibson at the bat. He flied to L. Doyle. Babe Adams singled to right and went to third when Byrne doubled to left. Sit up and observe this jolt. Carey—you remember him back in the first inning—he larruped another excursion rap into the right-field population for a homer, Adams and Byrne pacing the way home for him. Great!

Tarrying a moment in the fifth inning for the Giants, one notices a couple of runs. Merkle singled, and so did Pink Murray. Snodgrass doubled to left, scoring Merkle. McLean flied out, and while Crandall was being tossed out at first Murray scampered over the plate.

The Pirates were still busy in the sixth. Carey got his third hit, a single to centre, and boldly stole second. Viox singled, also, and then, after Wagner forced Carey, Miller jammed a hit to left, scoring Viox.

Manager McGraw shoved in Harold McCormick, the proficient pinch hitter, in the seventh in place of Otey Crandall, but Harold didn't have a hit in his system.

Then Mr. McGraw took the liberty to introduce young Mr. Schupp, who is said to be one of the best little southpaws fresh from the grass. This was the first time Ferdie faced a big crowd, and he did pretty well, although he was backed up by air-tight defense. Claude Cooper of faraway Texas got a chance as pinch hitter in the ninth, and he fanned. Never mind, Claude; good batters have done that before you. The score:

Cubs' Fourth Victory Off Phillies.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19.—Chicago won its fourth straight victory here to-day over Philadelphia, the score being 3 to 2. The visitors scored all their runs in two innings by bunching four hits, including doubles by Schulte and Archer, with two passes. Cravath and Killifer secured six of the eight hits made off Pierce, a "southpaw," the former getting two doubles and two singles in four times at bat. Pierce kept Philadelphia's hits scattered except in two innings.

It was learned to-day from X-ray examinations that Paskert had broken a finger of his right hand in catching a drive off Schulte's bat yesterday, and that Walsh of Philadelphia had broken a bone in his foot by being hit with a bat during practice. Shortstop Bridwell of Chicago was notified by President Lynch to-day that he had been suspended for three days for throwing dirt toward Umpire O'Day following a decision at the home plate in yesterday's game. Tendons in Walsh's Arm Adjusted.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—"Bonsetter" Reese, at Youngstown, Ohio, to-day adjusted two misplaced tendons in the arm and shoulder of Ed Walsh, the star pitcher of the White Sox, whose slump has been a mystery all season. This news was conveyed in a telegram from Reese to President Comiskey to-day. It said that the big hurler must rest for a week, after which the old-time potency might be expected of his arm.

Shortstop Lavan for Athletics.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 19.—John Lavan, who has played at shortstop for the local American League club, was sold to the Philadelphia Americans to-day for the waiver price, $500. Lavan joined the local team in July and came from the University of Michigan. Lavan's fielding average in forty-five games was .995 and his batting .145.

SALLEE CHECKS BROOKLYN BATSMEN

Tall, Slim St. Louis Pitcher Saves Another Game of Series from Dodgers.

If Miller Huggins had left Slim Sallee at home when he started on his present Eastern invasion the Superbas would have enjoyed a good chance to make a clean sweep in their six-game series against the Cardinals. But Slim is here, and the outlook now is a hard fight to get better than an even break. On Saturday the Human Slat bowled over the Superbas in a one to nothing shut out, and yesterday he jumped into the breach when the Dahlenites had the scene all properly laid for another possible victory. This afternoon the Cards say farewell to Ebbets Field for the season, and it is 100 to 1 that the slender southpaw will be back again to puzzle the Superbas with his deadly cross-fire.

Yesterday's score was 5 to 2 against the Flatbush residents, but there was every indication in the eighth inning that the battle would turn against the Mound City troupe. Up to this inning the Superbas had been able to gather only four scattered singles off Perritt, another of the long-and-lanky boxmen in the Huggins collection. Two runs had been pushed across, the bases were filled to the straining point and Perritt started off with a ball to Smith, when Huggins sounded the recall. Perritt put up a long protest against the managerial wisdom of removing him at this particular period, but Huggins stuck to his original decision and Perritt ambled toward the bench. He was so pleased at the turn of events that he stopped about fifteen feet from the bench and hurled his glove against the wall with all his strength.

Bill Fischer, batting for Miller, whom he later succeeded behind the bat, opened on Perritt in the eighth with a drive to right, good ordinarily for a single. As Cathers stooped to field the ball it hit a rough spot and bounded over his shoulder, rolling all the way to the fence, while Fischer hurried around to third. Yingling, pinch hitting for Reulbach, pinched himself to a strikeout, but Moran singled to right field, and Fischer came through with Brooklyn's first run. When Perritt threw Cutshaw out the danger seemed over, but the trouble had only begun. Stengel bounced a hopper off Huggins's knee, and Moran counted. At this stage Perritt became generous, and he walked both Wheat and Daubert, filling the bases. He protested to Huggins that his control was all right, but his first ball to Smith was wide of the plate, and he had to go. In came Sallee, and he quickly retired the side, Smith hitting a grounder to Mowrey. In the ninth inning Dahlen sent in three pinch hitters to start a rally against the Southpaw, but he fanned two of them, and the other popped a foul to Wingo.

Bunched hitting in the fifth inning gave the Cardinals the game. Mowrey's single, two infield outs and a wild pitch sent in a run in the second inning. In the fourth Oakes walked and stole, reached third on Magee's infield hit and scored on Mowrey's sacrifice. In the sixth singles by Huggins, Oakes, and Magee, Daubert's error, a pass to Mowrey, and Konetchy's single added three runs. The score:

LOSES IN LAST MILE.

Elionski Fails in Swim from Battery to Sandy Hook.

Within a mile of his goal, Henry Elionski abandoned his effort to swim from the Battery to Sandy Hook yesterday. The swimmer covered more than twenty miles in 15 hours 11 minutes. Elionski plunged into the waters of New York Harbor from the Battery wall at 1:09 A. M., and became exhausted at 4:20 P. M., when he was forced to climb into the boat which was following him.

Elionski is the latest athlete to attempt to cover the difficult journey through the harbor and bay, which remains unaccomplished. The start of the swim was not auspicious, as he got away more than an hour behind the scheduled time for starting. When he breasted the water there was a fresh east wind churning up a choppy sea to impede his efforts, and it seemed at first that he was certain to fail. He was accompanied by Capt. Dan Seeley, who has followed behind many swimmers who have made unsuccessful attempts to reach the Hook from the Battery. Capt. Seeley trailed Elionski in the auxiliary sloop Maude, and the swimmer wore goggles to protect his eyes from the sun and salt water.

With the tidal conditions against him throughout the journey, the New London swimmer pluckily stuck to his task. Mile after mile was covered with little apparent effort, and at 3 o'clock Elionski was two miles off Sandy Hook, swimming with a strong overhand swing and apparently confident of reaching his goal. He slowed up as he reduced the distance to the end of the journey, and after a determined but futile struggle he signalled Capt. Seeley and was pulled into the sloop exhausted and almost unconscious. Elionski was quickly revived, and after a long rest declared he felt none the worse for his fifteen-hour swim.

Elionski is built like a giant. Although only 5 feet 10 inches in height, he weighs 280 pounds, and has a chest expansion which is considered marvellous. He has an ideal build for a swimmer, and is possessed of exceptional endurance. He is only 19 years old. Elionski attributes his failure to rough water, and says he will make another attempt when conditions are more favorable.

Thirteen Straight for Johnson.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 19.—Walter Johnson pitched his thirteenth straight victory for Washington here to-day, downing Cleveland in a contest that went ten innings. The score was 5 to 1. For nine innings the game was a pitchers' battle, in which neither Johnson nor Falkenberg, who pitched for Cleveland, excelled. But in the tenth slow fielding on the part of the locals and free hitting by the visitors gave Johnson the margin. The score:

White Sox Win Another Game.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Chicago made it two straight from the world's champions to-day, when they defeated Boston 5 to 1. Eddie Cicotte, the former Boston twirler, was in great form and held his former team mates safe until the seventh inning, when he eased up, and the visitors saved themselves a shut-out when singles by Speaker and Lewis, followed by a double steal and a hit by Janvrin, netted their lone run. The locals got to Ray Collins at the start of the game, singles by Berger and Lord and a double by Chase giving them enough to win. During the seventh inning Manager Carrigan of Boston protested a decision on Weaver at first base and was sent to the clubhouse. The score:

Detroit Tosses Game to Athletics.

DETROIT, Aug. 19.—Detroit presented Philadelphia with a 4-to-3 victory to-day. Wild throwing, indifferent throwing, loose fielding, and an error at a critical moment enabled the visitors to come up from behind, score three runs in the sixth inning, and win the game. Neither team did a great deal of hitting, but Philadelphia used three pitchers and Detroit used two. Hall, who pitched good ball, was forced to leave the game in the seventh inning. Attempting to field Schang's bunt, he collided with the runner and injured his ankle. Schang was spiked, but resumed play after his wound was bandaged. The latter entered the game in the fourth inning, after a foul tip from Hall's bat disabled Lapp. The score:

White Sox Get New Shortstop.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Pitcher Lange and Outfielder Mattick of the local American League Club were to-day traded to the Kansas City Club of the American Association for Shortstop Breton. The trade becomes effective at once. Lange was formerly a pitcher in the Wisconsin-Illinois League and the Western League. Mattick also played in the Western League.

BELMONT HORSES LOSE AT SARATOGA

Rock View Trails Field Home, While Stromboli Is Beaten in Stretch Drive.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Another racing idol was shattered this afternoon when August Belmont's Rock View, who has earned the reputation of being by long odds the best three-year-old in the country, went down to defeat. It was in the Saranac Handicap, the feature race offered by the Saratoga Association, and it went to A. L. Aste's Ten Point, an added starter. But Ten Point was not the only one to take the measure of the son of Rock Sand. Harry Payne Whitney's Nightstick and John W. Schorr's Leochares each finished in front of him, while Capt. Cassatt's Flying Fairy, the only other starter, was the only one behind the Belmont colt at the finish.

Excuses could be found for Rock View, but no such excuse as was offered for his defeat in the running of the Belmont stakes, when Prince Eugene took his measure after he had been miserably handled by Jockey Tommy McTaggert. To-day he was sharply cut off and knocked out of it right after the start, losing several lengths, but he had been rated so highly that it was expected he would overcome that handicap. Glass, who rode the colt, hurried him too much in the back stretch to make up the lost ground, and the 130 pounds was a heavy load, but there is no getting away from the fact that he did not prove himself the colt that he had been considered. When the stretch was reached—it was a mile race—Rock View collapsed badly, while Ten Point, who carrying only six pounds less weight, romped along in front all the way to win by a comfortable margin. Nightstick was an easy third, and in the final run Leochares came from behind Rock View to take third money.

This was a bitter disappointment for the Chairman of The Jockey Club, but it was not his only disappointment of the day, for Stromboli, from his stable, and one of his dependencies for the Futurity, was also well beaten in a race where he appeared to be pounds the best. It was a five and a half furlong dash, and the half brother to Priscillian had absolutely no excuse. Richard F. Carman's Surprising, carrying three more pounds, outgamed him through the stretch and, though only half a length separated the pair at the finish, the victory was a very decisive one.

Schuyler L. Parsons, who only came into racing as an owner this season, saw his silks in front when his filly, Tranid, was a very easy winner of a five and a half furlong dash for maidens. This filly is a daughter of Voter and True Love, which was purchased by Mr. Parsons at the dispersal sale of the horses of the late Charles Kohler. It was also the first race that has been won by Mr. Parsons since he joined the ranks of the owners.

Jockey Tommy McTaggert, under contract to August Belmont, is seriously ill.

Frederick Johnson to-day signed a contract with the apprentice jockey, A. Wilson, who rode with success in Canada. The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Selling; for 3-year-olds and upward; $400 added; six furlongs. Won by J. Whalen's b. f. Honey Bee, 104, (J. McTaggart,) 8 to 5, 2 to 5, and out; J. W. SPRIG AS A DEFENDER.

Sonder Yacht Picked to Race Against German Challengers.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 19.—After the Sprig, owned by John L. Saltonstall and sailed by R. de B. Boardman, had conclusively shown her superiority in two trial races to-day to pick the three American sonder boats to meet the three German challengers next month, the Eastern Yacht Club Committee selected her as the first of the defenders of the President Wilson and Gov. Foss cups. The committee also eliminated from further competition the Otter, owned by Crane and Foster.

In the first two races the Sprig showed her great superiority in a breeze. The morning race was the best test the sonders have yet had, and was a good fight up the wind, with the Sprig leading from the start. Another pretty struggle came in the second race over a triangular course. The catboat Otter led at the first mark after a two-mile reach. On the next leg, however, a beat to windward, she was passed by all the other boats, the Sprig taking the lead and holding it to the finish.

GRAND CIRCUIT RACING.

Horsemen at Salem Hear That Yonkers Meeting Will Be Held.

SALEM, N. H., Aug. 19.—The half-mile track horses had the programme to themselves at Rockingham Park to-day where the first day's Grand Circuit meeting opened. All three events, two of them $2,000 stakes, were for the campaigners on the half-mile circuits, and they furnished some good racing, especially in the 2:10 pace, which required five heats.

Guerney Gue of New York, one of the receivers appointed by the United States Court for the Greater New York Fair and Exposition Company, which is behind the Grand Circuit meeting to be held next week at the Empire City track, was here to-day conferring with the horsemen in regard to the meeting. He said he had received word to-day that the court had granted an injunction forbidding any of the creditors of the company from levying upon any of the funds set aside for the race meeting, which will be held as scheduled. LEOPARD POLOISTS LOSE.

Philadelphia Country Club Takes Measure of Cracks at Newport.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 19.—In the second polo event for the Westchester cups this afternoon, the famous Leopard aggregation was defeated by the Philadelphia Country Club, 15 to 11. The game was hotly contested throughout, and full of exciting moments. The feature was the work of the Country Club, the younger men playing the Leopards off their feet for the last five periods.

The Leopards allowed their opponents 6 points handicap, and the Leopards, by dint of the hardest kind of hard work, crept up, and in the third period evened the score at seven. After this, however, they could do but little with the Country Club, and while the latter were making eight more goals the Leopards could make only half as many.

FASANE AND KRAMER DRAW.

Fast Boxing in Three Ten-Round Bouts at Atlantic Garden A. C.

Billy Kramer of Harlem and Jimmy Fasane of Waterbury boxed ten hard rounds to a draw in the main event of last night's show at the Atlantic Garden A. C. The bout was featured by unusual aggressiveness on the part of both boys, and they made up in willingness what they lacked in the finer points of boxing. The first three rounds were even, and then Fasane began to go ahead, his steady attack driving Kramer around the ring. In the fourth round the Connecticut boy showed to the better advantage, and at one stage Kramer was forced to hold on to save himself from punishment. During the last four rounds Kramer was more successful, and in the eighth and ninth rounds he clearly outboxed his opponent. The tenth round, marked by fast work all the way and one sensational exchange after another, was about even, first one and then the other holding the upper hand. Both boys were on their feet all the way, and were strong at the finish. Fasane weighed 133 pounds and Kramer was one pound under this mark.

In the ten-round semi-final Kid Goodman and Mike Clancy, New York featherweights, put up an interesting battle. For the first eight rounds Clancy had the better of the bout, but he weakened under his exertions, and in the ninth round Goodman showed up strongly, driving Clancy all around the ring under a shower of blows. In the final round first one and then the other held the lead, but just before the bell sounded Clancy rushed Goodman to the ropes and was again setting the pace when the last bell rang. Clancy was the winner on points. Goodman weighed 117 pounds and Clancy 115½ pounds.

The opening ten-round bout, between Young Gloughery and Billy Meyers, went the full distance, with Gloughery having the better of the boxing most of the way. Gloughery weighed 122½ pounds and Meyers 119 pounds.

Bantamweights at St. Nicholas A. C.

A bantamweight elimination tournament, the first of a series to secure an opponent for Champion Johnny Coulon or Kid Williams here in the near future, will be staged to-night at the St. Nicholas A. C., Sixty-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue. Three ten-round bouts will be put on, and the winners will be matched until one shows himself the best of the collection. In the opening bout to-night Mickey Dunn of New York, who has been meeting with great success during the past six months, will oppose Dutch Brandt, a Brooklyn youngster who has designs of emulating Brooklyn's greatest bantam of years ago—Terry McGovern. The second bout will show Battling Reddy, who has boxed Kid Williams, Charley Ledoux, and other topnotchers of the class, against Arthur Simons, the New Orleans bantamweight. In the final bout the contestants will be Barry Hill, former amateur champion, and Knockout Egers of the west side.

Dundee to Box Cross.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 19.—Johnny Dundee of New York was matched to-night by Promoter Tom McCarey to box Leach Cross, also of New York, in a twenty-round bout here on Labor Day. Dundee will substitute for Joe Rivers who called off his scheduled match with Cross a few days ago. Dundee graduated only recently from the featherweight ranks after figuring in a twenty-round draw with Champion Johnny Kilbane and another bout in which he defeated Tommy Dixon. He has twice defeated Jack White, the Chicago lightweight, and his showing in these two bouts led to his being matched with Cross. Dundee was originally matched to box twenty rounds with ex-champion Ad Wolgast at McCarey's arena on Sept. 9, but this bout may be called off. Wolgast recently incurred the displeasure of Promoter McCarey by signing up for a Labor Day bout of ten rounds with Joe Azevedo of Sacramento at Oakland.

SMALL BOATS RACE IN GRAVESEND BAY

Atlantic Yacht Club's Race Week Brings Out Forty-four Tiny Yachts.

Forty-four yachts raced in the opening regatta of the Atlantic Yacht Club off Sea Gate yesterday. The majority of the boats came from Long Island Sound, and they had one of the best races of the season. Unfortunately the wind hauled soon after the start and the craft had little or no windward work. When the Regatta Committee, made up of Carlos de Zafra and Frank P. Currier, set the course signals there was a spanking breeze from the northeast.

The wind kept freshening and backing into the east and then into the southeast. It so upset the plans of the Regatta Committee that the larger classes found a broad reach where they expected a beat and a close reach where they expected a run. Notwithstanding the action of the wind, the day was ideal and the racing was keen and interesting.

The absence of the P boats left the Q division as the most important class of the day. The winner finally turned up in Arvia, the property of Peter W. Rouse. Although the last boat to finish on actual time, Rohilla, formerly the lower bay racer Vivian, took first place in the handicap class from Long Island Sound. A special class of sloops was won by Joy, and Triton led home the Larchmont Inter-Club class. The winner was protested by Whiff.

Virginia defeated Hamburg in Class R and M. & F. II. scored the first win among the sloops of Class S. The best division of the day was the bird class, that brought all of the existing birds, with the exception of one craft, to the starting line. Nine of the boats started, and the winner was Woof, the property of Zeb Mayhew.

A fleet of seven stars was led home by Neptune, which belongs to W. L. Hopkins, and Poke Along was the first of the Gravesend Bay dories to cross the finish line. Five of the tiny butterflies made their début on Gravesend Bay, and the winner was Cabbage.

In the evening the visiting yachtsmen were the guests of the Atlantic Yacht Club at a big mess dinner. J. Stuart Blackton, Commodore of the organization, came on from Chicago to preside. The second series race will be sailed to-day.

TO CURE ATHLETIC ILLS.

Experts from All Parts of World to Convene in Berlin To-day.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Athletic experts from all parts of the world are assembled here for the opening to-morrow of the International Athletic Federation. The formal business to be undertaken by the Federation is the drafting of rules for international competitions, but the delegates are chiefly interested in the Olympic games which are to be held in 1916. Though strictly speaking they have no right to legislate for these games, they hope to induce the Olympic Committee at Paris in 1914 to adopt the Federation's recommendations, on the ground that it is the international authority on track and field sports.

There will be a meeting of the Executive Committee to-morrow in the Prussian Diet Building. The meeting will be followed by a visit of the delegates to inspect the stadium for the Olympic games, which was dedicated by Emperor William last June. The conference proper will open Thursday.

The American delegates are President Gustavus T. Kirby and James E. Sullivan, Secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, Col. Robert M. Thompson, and Joseph B. McCabe. The standardized programme for future Olympic games, which was prepared by Mr. Sullivan, has many supporters among the foreigners. The Germans wish even further simplification of the programme by substituting a 7,500 metre run, the so-called German mile, for the present 5,000 and 8,000 metres runs, taking the ground that the same men participate in both these events. They also desire to eliminate the walking events, declaring they are unnatural, and that it is impossible to judge them. The Americans approve these amendments.

Mr. Sullivan and the other Ameriacn delegates are endeavoring to secure a team of German athletes to compete at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco, but it is believed they will have a hard task, as the Germans have ample difficulties before them in financing their 1916 Olympiad without going to the extra expense of sending men to San Francisco.

BLACKTON'S BOAT WINS.

Baby Speed Demon Takes a Motor Boat Championship at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—The reputation for consistency of Commodore J. Stuart Blackton's Baby Speed Demon was enhanced to-day when she piled the American 26-foot motor boat championship on top of the 20-foot championship won yesterday at the national meet in this harbor. The Baby's time for the twelve miles to-day was slightly better than yesterday, 17:32, as compared with 17:51 1-5.

Four boats, Oregon Kid, Kitty Hawk V., Van Blerck, and Baby Speed Demon, contested in the finals. The Oregon boat made the fastest lap, as she did yesterday, and in the same time, 2:45, and had a lead of several seconds over Baby Speed Demon when she went out with engine trouble after making eight fast miles. Kitty Hawk V. made the first lap in 2:51, and also retired, leaving the race to the 26-foot Van Blerck and Baby Speed Demon. The larger craft was nearly two miles behind the winner at the finish, her time being 20:54 3-5.

BROOKLYN FIELD DAY.

Two Thousand School Children in Various Athletic Exercises.

Patterned much along the same lines as the recent Field Day demonstration on the Athletic Green in Central Park, in which 10,000 public school children contested in the newest styles of school athletics, Brooklyn yesterday held a similar event in the annual Field Day of the Vacation Playgrounds Association of Brooklyn at Brooklyn Athletic Field. Twenty-four vacation playgrounds were represented, with 2,000 boys and girls participating, and the event was successful and worthy of much praise on the part of its sponsors.

Athletics for boys, mixed drills by boys and girls, combination drills for both sexes, singing, assembly and aesthetic and folk dancing made up the programme which lasted for four hours.

The athletic competitions were for the championship of the Playgrounds Association, with eight regulation playground events scheduled, including dashes up to 100 yards and a quarter-mile relay. Premier honors in this respect were captured by the representatives of V. P. 164 with a total of 12 points. By the victory of one event on which hinged the supremacy they were able to take the honors with the boys of V. P. 149 second with a tally of 10 points. V. P. 156 and V. P. 43 tied for third honors with 9 points. Medals were awarded to first, second, and third place winners in all athletic events, and in the drills the members of the successful playground received association buttons. The summaries:

50-Yard Dash.—Won by J. Friedman, V. P. 43; A. Davis, V. P. 164, second; G. Shopowitz, V. P. 156, third. Time—0:06 1-5.

Long Motor Cycle Grind To-night.

The longest grind of the season for individual motor cycle riders will take place to-night at the Brighton Motodrome when the half-hour race will be staged. This race is the big classic of the year for singles, and with all the best long-distance riders competing the event should prove one of exceptional interest. Henri St. Yves, the Frenchman, will be the favorite for the contest, with Costello, Mercier, and Cox as his closest competitors.

The teams for the twenty-four-hour race, which starts Aug. 31, were drawn yesterday, and are composed of the strongest combinations that ever raced in a long-distance event. The teams and their colors are as follows: Blue team—Chapple, St. Yves, and Hagan; white team—Grapperon, Ohne, and Mercier; red team—Cox, Sperl, and Lambert; green team—Costello, Kessler, and Krebs; black and white team—Veditz, Shields, and Thomas; yellow team—Vanderbury, Cronin, and Sayer.

SUSTAIN THE PRESIDENT.

The President has said that when he has taken a position on principle he does not know the meaning of compromise. In matters of finance especially compromise is dangerous, and the President is fortunate in having assumed a position against the revival of Grangerism as to which there can be no compromise. It is a condition which confronts him, not theories of currency. The condition is that he is being thrust into a position where he must choose between pleasing or affronting the bankers and the business men of the country. The bill is alleged to be a "bankers' bill," and that reproach is to be escaped by making it a bill which no banker fit to be trusted with the care of other people's money would do business under. The calmness of depositors in general is proof that bankers as a class possess the confidence of the community. It is even possible to say that private bankers both are the most criticised by those not in relations with them and the most trusted by those who are closest to them. Whatever views are taken of bankers, the fact remains that whatever banking system we have must be worked by them, and that as a body they are in opposition to the position taken by the Henrys and Ragsdales in Congress.

The idea of making the new legislation attractive and workable by conforming it to the views of those who must be intrusted with executing it finds too little support. What is sought is the approval of the electorate, and it is being angled for with bait which has been rejected. The opportunity rivals that presented when the British Bullion Committee draughted the report which has been the basis of all banking since that time, and which must be the basis for all time, so long as truth shall prevail. In magnitude our problem is the greater. British opinion a century ago was merely unenlightened, for the principles of banking and currency had not been mastered. They are known now, and they are being defied. The prosperity of the country is being staked on partisan advantage by appeals to selfish interests against the counsel of those who know better, and who are as public spirited as any politician.

The partisans make a mistake both in defying the bankers and in playing down to the electorate. It is not so ignorant as it is thought; its votes have proved that. In more than one election the voters have shown that they were at least wise enough to prefer their real interests to the heresies of the popularity hunters. The defiance of the bankers is foolhardy. How can the President surrender to those who are commanding him to start a new system which is rejected by the trustees of that interest? How can it be presumed that banking objectionable to national banks will commend it to any other class of bankers? What is to be expected as the result of informing the depositors of the country that their interests are in the charge of men unworthy of trust, and less wise or public spirited than members of Congress? What sign is there that those taking this position express the wishes of their constituencies? Where out of Congress is the source of the threats to prosperity in the interest of partisan politics?

On the other hand contrast the calmness and sanity of the banking profession with the errors of thought and excesses of speech at Washington. The restraint of the bankers is commendable, and yet it should not be overdone. They may not be able to prevent the enactment of folly, but they can prevent it being said that they are accomplices in acts which cannot succeed without the President's co-operation, and in resisting which he is entitled to support regardless of party. There never has been a hint of politics in the counsels of the bankers now assembling, and they are under no necessity of pandering either to politicians or voters. They have a rare opportunity to speak memorable words of soberness and wisdom. The President needs these reinforcements, and it ought to be made clear to those who are obstructing his policies that they do not represent public sentiment.

THE STATE ROAD "GRAFTERS."

Acting Gov. GLYNN will do a public service if, in place of JOHN A. HENNESSY, appointed by Gov. SULZER to inquire into the condition of the State departments, he name an investigator who will command respect and confidence, and who will rise above the partisan spirit in which Mr. HENNESSY has discharged his very serious obligations. It is surmised that Gov. SULZER aimed his investigation into the roads of Rockland County, where serious frauds have been revealed, "as a war measure" against State Senator BLAUVELT, his bitter political foe. The whole investigation of the departments has been conducted in this petty spirit of personal and political warfare. Investigations should be conducted by Acting Gov. GLYNN under responsible men and for public ends. The Legislature has cut off appropriations for carrying on this inquiry. A special message from Acting Gov. GLYNN should urge that appropriations be made to carry on a necessary work. In the Highway Department, especially, millions of dollars can be saved by a thorough exposure of the methods of awarding contracts for roads that have never been built or that have been built below specifications.

Commissioner of Highways JOHN N. CARLISLE said recently that the $100,000,000 voted by the people of this State should guarantee its having the best highways in the world. It has not got them. Highways built in Summer have raveled to pieces before the next Spring, and the pavements cannot be found where laid. Commissioner CARLISLE found that in a department spending $50,000 a day the mail was received in the Post Office in five private letter boxes. In reconstructing the State highway system it was ladling out to contractors the proceeds of the first $50,000,000 bond issue without expert advice, without availing itself of the engineering examples of other States and nations. The spending of the $50,000,000 newly appropriated must be sharply watched. Much of it must be devoted to doing over the work ill done, and in supplementing inadequate contracts.

At this point the work of an honest and intelligent corps of investigators would be of the highest public value. Waste is to be cut out, rascals are to be exposed, and assurance should be given that contracts entered into in the future will be performed according to specifications properly drawn.

"GUILTY, BUT INSANE."

There are other means of getting a fugitive and criminal maniac out of the country to which he has fled than by extradition. THAW has found the Canadian Exclusion Act strict. Caught in Canada, he will undoubtedly be excluded as an insane alien. It is possible that the States should have exclusion laws similar to that of Canada in the cases of insane persons arriving within their borders. But there is need of a reform of the New York State law. THAW is not, but should be, a convict as well as a lunatic, and extraditable as such. The jury before which he was tried for the murder of STANFORD WHITE brought in a verdict on Feb. 1, 1908, as follows:

> We, the jury, find the defendant not guilty of the charge in the indictment, on the ground that he was insane at the time of the commission of the act.

Had the same evidence been presented to a jury in England, the verdict would have been, briefly, "Guilty, but insane." The difference in phraseology of these two forms of verdict accounts for the long series of attempts to free THAW on the ground of sanity, since, once pronounced sane, no charge of guilt would rest against him, and he would be a free man. The theory of "Not guilty, because insane" has been shown to be unsound. The New York State Bar Association has repeatedly made it the text of its disapproval and earnest plea for amendment. When the habeas corpus proceedings of THAW's lawyers became a scandal, a special committee of the State Bar Association asked:

> Has not the time come in the development of our system of penology to relegate to the realm of the obsolete the assumption that an insane man cannot commit a crime? In other words, ought we not to abolish the defense of insanity, and leave as the one issue to the petit jury, Did the accused do the forbidden deed? If he did not, he is innocent; if he did, he is guilty, and with the state of his mind at that time the jury has nothing to do. The point we make here is that, however legally right under existing legal concepts, it is really wrong, sociologically wrong, to find a man not guilty on the ground of insanity.

And the committee clinches its reasoning as follows:

> No one will contend that the insane murderer should forfeit his life. The question we put is, Why should he not forfeit his liberty? Why should he be acquitted on the ground of his insanity, and then be allowed to go at large on the ground of his sanity? He has proved himself to be a dangerous man. Society must protect itself against the danger of a repetition of his homicidal tendencies.

By adopting the procedure indicated above, or by following the British precedent of instructing the jury in such a case to bring a verdict of "Guilty, but insane," THAW's status would be changed properly from that of an innocent lunatic to that of an insane convict. He could not achieve his freedom by habeas corpus proceedings, and he would be extraditable under the laws of all the States and of most nations.

MR. LIND'S MISSION.

At every stage of intercourse or negotiation between our Government and that of Mexico it is necessary to take into account the qualities of the official Spanish American mind—its sensitiveness, its pride, its peculiar sense of national honor and dignity. It is necessary to understand also how a Mexican might put trivial things above things of far graver moment, as in exhibiting resentment at a slight informality of address or procedure at the risk of sundering relations or bringing on war. The peoples to the south of us have a different perspective, exaggerating matters immediately in view and paying little or no heed to ultimate consequences. The surprising news that an ultimatum had been sent to our Government demanding recognition of HUERTA within twenty-four hours on pain of severing all relations gave rise to the fear, that in some way we had ruffled Mexican sensibilities, and that a situation had been created from which extrication for them or for us would be very difficult. Fortunately the ultimatum was not sent, or the intention to send it was reconsidered, and President HUERTA and Mr. LIND are reported to have had a conference characterized by cordiality.

There is not the slightest reason for the sending of an ultimatum one way or the other. It is understood that Mr. LIND presents no demand to President HUERTA, he goes with a tender of friendly counsel and suggestion. President HUERTA's pride and Mexico's national honor will not suffer if what Mr. LIND has to say is considered in an amicable spirit. The American people are still hopeful that President WILSON's method of proceeding will have a good result. That the Huerta Government is in straits appears from the derangement of Mexican finances and the rate of exchange. The fall of HUERTA, however, would hardly relieve our anxiety, for it may be supposed that some pretender would appear offering resistance to the leaders of the Constitutionalist Party, and confusion would then become worse confounded. So long as Mr. LIND is able to have conferences with the Mexican President, however, there will be ground for confidence that serious trouble involving ourselves may be averted.

MR. SULZER AND THE PEOPLE.

With great presence of mind Mr. THOMAS W. LAWSON of Boston has intervened to prevent, or as we might say squelch and flatten out, the threatened uprising of the populace in behalf of Mr. SULZER, now under impeachment. Here and there ignorant and misguided persons have protested against the "persecution" of the Governor. By post and wire communications have reached him tendering sympathy and support, and a few meetings have been held at which the resolutions adopted pictured him as a martyr defenseless against the assaults of Tammany. Mr. LAWSON evidently saw the danger, and although he is in Oregon, not in Boston, he puts forth a statement saying that he has been urged to come East and organize a national committee for the defense of Mr. SULZER, of whom he says that it is "the consensus of opinion" that the impeachment is part of a "long-hatching plot" to seize the government of the State and release STILWELL and BECKER, also to put an end to further exposures of Tammany graft.

Mr. LAWSON knows very well, of course, that his participation in a movement of this kind automatically transfers it to the realm of the comic and the grotesque. Certainly, when he has the active co-operation of such a bounding and furious advocate of the Sulzer cause as ex-Judge ARNOLD of Albany, Mr. LAWSON's timely entrance upon the scene must have the effect he undoubtedly intended. Nevertheless, persons who are in the habit of observing attentively all sorts of social and political phenomena that show the working of the human mind must have seen in this sporadic popular movement in behalf of Mr. SULZER a rather close parallel to the direct action of the people in affairs of government, so much preached and advocated in these times. It is enough for these thoughtless defenders of the Governor to know that Tammany is wicked—therefore Mr. SULZER must be blameless. Ignorant of, or unaffected by, the disclosures made by the legislative investigation, they see in him the victim of a conspiracy, not at all a man against whom grave charges stand, charges that he must disprove if he would retain the respect of men who understand what the charges mean, that is, all intelligent and sober-minded men. The little meetings of Mr. SULZER's admirers here and there, the "national committee" for his defense, and Mr. LAWSON and ex-Judge ARNOLD represent the principle of direct action in the Sulzer case. They overrule the legislative committee, they quash the articles of impeachment, and acquit before trial. So, under the "direct" kind of government the people might recall a public officer, a court decision, or an act of the Legislature without having the least understanding of what they were about.

THE CHANNEL TUNNEL AGAIN.

The notion of a tube under the English Channel dies hard, though it has been pretty harshly rejected by all sorts of British Governments from that of Lord SALISBURY to that of Mr. ASQUITH. Its latest revival rests on two general arguments, one that a war with France is no longer to be reckoned with, the other that airships will make it impracticable to defend England with her navy, and, therefore, the risk of an attack through the tunnel is negligible.

The counter-arguments which prevail with the present Government are various. It is urged that war with France is not impossible, though highly improbable; that the risk of invasion cannot surely be guarded against by dynamiting the English end of the tunnel; that the future of airships is too uncertain to justify present consideration; that the commercial gain does not offset the possible danger, and, finally, that with the tunnel England would cease to be an island, and the character of the English people would undergo some sort of change for the worse. The last argument is a beautiful example of the tendency of British "common sense" to run in fanciful and sentimental channels.

We are inclined to think that the tunnel will in the end be built. The immediate gain, especially in passenger traffic, is not of decisive importance, but the gain in freight handling between England and not only France but much of the Continent would be very great and steadily progressive. As to the danger in time of war, there are two sides to that question. No doubt there would be a possibility of a dash from France and a momentary seizure of the English end of the tunnel, but it would be very remote, and it would easily be guarded against. On the other hand, with a Channel tunnel and France friendly, England could be supplied indefinitely with the necessaries of life. She could not be starved by a blockading fleet. Finally a tunnel under the Channel would be another stage in the secular progress in international communication of which the Suez Canal and the Panama Canal were earlier examples.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Now, What Did the Lady Ask?

We have always had the greatest respect for our readers. They are an unusually intelligent lot. Not only that, they are sensitive to journalistic subtleties to a satisfying degree, as almost every day's correspondence shows. But yesterday they slipped up, and we experienced a wavering in our faith. A recent issue of THE TIMES contained this item tucked away in a corner under the simple heading, "In Indianapolis":

> Patrons of the College Avenue street cars seem to have found a new and rather unusual use for street cars and street car conductors.
> It was about 7 o'clock in the morning and the car was well filled when it stopped at Fifteenth Street. The conductor was on the back platform waiting for the one woman who had stopped the car to enter. Instead, came the surprising request:

We had hoped that this delicate crypticism would delight rather than bewilder our readers. But the comments to which we looked forward so eagerly are a blow. For instance:

> NEW YORK TIMES, Editor and Dear Sir:
> We can neither eat, drink, nor be merry since Monday's edition with this incomplete story came to hand. We want to know what the woman said. Thanking you in advance, yours very, &c.

Explaining one's jokes is a dreary business, comparable to pricking balloons and witnessing their subsequent flatness, and we had never fancied that our heretofore discerning readers would bring us to the sad pass. Of course, the story is incomplete. But need we have appended the information? Are our readers so lacking in nice intuition that they require the actual "to be continued"? And are they then so hidebound by convention that a continuance is required, that they resent the many opportunities here for a caper or two of the imagination? Think of the possibilities that lurk in that colon!

For instance, it may be that what the lady said would not accord with the motto in the upper left-hand corner of our first page. Could there be a more delicate way of asserting that we have such a motto and live up to it? There is speculation Number One, that the story may not be continued. Speculation Number Two is that it may. We of this column are not saying which. But we are disappointed that our little circle which has heretofore understood with a perfect sympathy and applauded accordingly, has this time failed to divine a nicely veiled effort to awaken curiosity.

Civil Service Needs No "Publicity Experts."

The office of Public Roads in the Agricultural Department states that it needs a "publicity expert." The "expert" is to receive $8 a day when employed. Incidentally, the United States Civil Service Commission is to create an eligible list from those passing the test who will be appointed to "positions requiring similar qualifications."

As we understand it, a "publicity expert" is, in terms of straight American, a press agent, and what the cause of good roads will profit by subsequent publicity is a matter for wonderment. The Department of Agriculture in its other branches has done record-breaking work, and without any departmental agent to inform the press of what has been done. The publicity feature of the department has taken the form of monographs and bulletins telling, not how agricultural methods were improved the preceding year, but how they should be in the next.

What there is to know about good roads and bad the newspapers will find out and call to the attention of the public without the efforts of a public roads press agent. The need is not for an eight-dollar-a-day expert to inform the public what the department has been doing, but for an experimental adviser to indicate future development. The additional suggestion that there is to be an eligible list of more of these gentlemen who will be needed in positions "requiring similar qualifications" indicates a branch well laden. It promises good picking, but how roads will profit thereby is far from clear.

Emma Goldman Did Not Speak on This Campus.

The conservative spirit of the West again. This time EMMA GOLDMAN wants to vindicate the constitutional right of free speech from the vantage point of Washington University campus. The Board of Regents refuses, and the "Open Forum" clamors for the divine rights of United States citizens.

The East opened its arms to this the extreme wing of the red-flag contingent. Harvard University, which later, however, dropped the latch at the approach of Mrs. PANKHURST, heard Miss GOLDMAN in small numbers and comparative silence, though prominent undergraduates, among them ex-President ELIOT's grandson, politely entertained the voluble lady at luncheon. The resultant comment was slight, and the youth of Harvard did not apparently suffer contamination.

The Tacoma hubbub is pro and con not the right of Miss GOLDMAN to speak, but the right of Miss GOLDMAN to speak on the university campus. The Seattle Free Speech League is arguing on the basis of constitutional right. Those who uphold the Board of Regents in its refusal to issue a permit claim that State property should not be used for the advancement of doctrines of anarchy. As a matter of fact, State property rights have nothing to do with it. Miss GOLDMAN might, without interference, and, incidentally, with peculiar fitness, harangue the members of State insane asylums. The point is, however, that she selects a community where conversions are quick and converts ardent, and that that community being made up of immature persons deserves the State's protection from anything so youth-captivating as Miss GOLDMAN's subversive principles. The callous and scornful of Harvard may mock at Washington wrapping the cotton wool more closely about its carefully nurtured undergraduate; but Washington is wise, even though her arguments be muddled.

MR. GAYNOR UNPOPULAR.

Many Voters Dissatisfied with His Police Policy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I see that Mayor Gaynor is likely to be played again for a "favorite." Well, if he is, he is surely entitled to the run for the money, but—?

Now, in my humble opinion, Mayor Gaynor is built somewhat on the order of the late William Travers Jerome, in that, at the present juncture, he can't accommodate any more popularity; he has filled his measure. We're willing to believe him good, of his kind, but we want a change of kind.

And there is one thing that leaves Mayor Gaynor in the distant field. Which is, his coddling of the young tough—the "innocent soft rubber ball" article, that is the "gangster" in embryo. New York is just now suffering from a surfeit of "Duffy boys." New York wants a Chief Executive to supply what is lacking in parental teachings, even if it takes a club to do it. New York, in short, is tired of seeing the dignity of the law monkeyed with. New York can take care of its own morals, with respect to "curfew" as applied to eating places. But New York wants safe streets at all hours, which it cannot have while the hands of its police are tied, and while every complainant is treated to a free course in derisive "philosophy."

Does anybody suppose the police wanted to make a "holy show" of themselves at Healy's? Does anybody suppose that the programme there was anything but a "concession" to "his Honor's" policies? Is there not some one who fancies that there are policemen in this well-known burg who, with many others of us, would just as soon see the Mayor "put in Dutch"? CITIZEN.

New York, Aug. 18, 1913.

SPELLING IN COLLEGES.

Mr. Bok's Charges Should Encourage Stricter Marking.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Edward Bok's findings against our colleges should prevent recurrence of such liberal grading on the part of college instructors as that which bestows "100" upon "theses" marred by six or more misspelled words. It is conceivable, however, that the theses in question were read by instructors whose primary interest was in economics or biology, (not to speak of "Neoplatonism," Malthusianism, or Glyconic Pherecratics.") Spelling, as the "English teacher of long experience in a city high school" knows, is a subject of perennial interest and importance; yet other subjects continue to maintain their place in the college curriculum.

English teachers in our colleges will no doubt gain fresh inspiration from Mr. Bok's charges. While engaged in the work of improvement, however, they will be cheered by the thought that the editor's deductions—at least in the case of the letters from college men—are based on returns of but 25 per cent. In these days of magazine circulars and advertising campaigns the more "efficient" of the graduates may perhaps plead a lack of time to extenuate the lack of courtesy with which they are charged by Mr. Bok. A less wearying recurrence of symposiums of this nature will mean a less wearying recurrence of misspelled essays setting forth the broader outlook on life.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 18, 1913. A. T.

Inconsistent Suffragists.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I note from the London dispatches in THE TIMES that the Pankhurst cohorts now shout in soprano thunder tones, reverberating along the white cliffs of Albion: "Give us the ballot or give us death." But they are not given the ballot and they are not dying. Inconsistent creatures! Fallacious females! Why don't they do something?

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

New York, Aug. 16, 1913.

THE WOOD ORPHANS.

Senator Reed says the Senate wastes its time in debating the exclusion of aigrettes.—Washington News Item.

The orphaned nestlings cry. Everywhere in the wood
The little voices plead of a gentle multitude.
Everywhere in the wood, calling from tree to tree,
The baby voices respond to each other helplessly.

Plaintive they call, they beseech. Wistful they wait and spy
For the gentle mother wing, for the clear, dear mother eye.
No mother voice replies, no mother wing comes near,
Till the wood is wild with the cries of babies in lonely fear.

The dusk flows in, and the dark; the night wind stirs and is chill;
The little voices grow weak. Then all the wood is still.

There was joy in the wood at dawn, and proud, bright mother eyes,
And foolish little hearts that quivered mother-wise,
And foolish, foolish pride that nearly burst each breast,
With a fond and foolish love for a foolish little nest.

A chorus of little prayers arose at dawn, so clear
That surely God afar in His Heaven smiled to hear!
Surely His Son who sought the wood
 when men were grim,
He listened and was glad that the birds sang unto Him!

Only a dawn has gone. Gone is the sinless love.
The parents dead below, the nestlings dead above.
The dusk flows in, and the dark; the night wind stirs and is chill;
The little voices have ceased. The wood is terribly still.

O little children of God! Most innocent of us all!
Far off there are gentle hearts that would weep to hear you call.
Soft women's hearts that would break to hear your piteous cry!
And, ah! little orphaned babes! It is for them that you die!

A JURY OF NEUTRALS

Needed Instead of Boards of Railroad Men to Decide Disputes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The arbitration proceedings respecting the case of the railroad conductors and trainmen are about to be published, and readers of THE TIMES, I am sure, are very much interested in philosophy applied to this as to other current events. A little well-timed and well-stated philosophy has a greater illuminating value than pages of reports and statistics. People are too busy to bother about railroad operation until the interests of society are seriously threatened. During the past few years a situation of this serious kind has been developing in the departments of finance, safety, and labor, and consequently a very definite philosophy in regard to our railroads has gradually worked itself into the public mind.

The public utility conception was the kernel of this philosophy. This idea has already inoculated the service with a new code of railroad morals. A railroad must now be financed, managed, and operated, first and foremost, in the interests of the people. The will and the power of the people in these matters are now supreme. Under these circumstances a strike of any magnitude on American railroads must now be looked upon as a crime against society because it would be a deliberate attempt on a national scale to paralyze business and to starve millions of people. The national transportation machines must be kept moving, managers must continue to manage, men must not desert their posts, and all disputes between conflicting interests must be arbitrated and adjusted by properly appointed juries of neutrals. To say that you cannot by persuasion or law apply the word must to the situation is to confess that society can now be starved with impunity.

The solution of problems relating to wages and service on railroads then is to be found in a compulsory system of fair and square arbitration, and whether a man's life, wages, or property are at stake, a jury of neutrals, and of neutrals alone, has always been looked upon as the most likely to be a righteous court of appeal. In pleading their respective causes before such a tribunal, for example, railroad managers and the representatives of labor should appear simply as witnesses or deponents.

There is no more reason or moral sanction for managers and labor leaders sitting as arbitrators of their own grievances than there is for claimants and defendants being personally represented on any other kind of a jury. Furthermore, if the above is not a reasonable statement of the case in the interests of the public who ultimately pay the bills, why not arbitrate rates as well as wages under a Newlands act? Under any and all circumstances there will always be a moral contradiction in voting penalties or payments to ourselves.

Such, then, is commonplace philosophy applied to the arbitration of industrial disputes with special reference to the Newlands act, under the operation of which the demands of the railroad conductors and trainmen for increased wages are now being arbitrated. Practically speaking, there is no difference in kind between the superseded Erdman and the present Newlands act. In both cases the responsibility rests with the neutrals, who, of course, from beginning to end of the hearing, are subjected to the absolutely and naturally interested influence of their colleagues on one side and the other. The interests of the people in the matter of reasonable or unreasonable wages have no show whatever in a tribunal of this kind. The neutrals alone do not constitute a majority. They alone cannot propound or enforce any decision. To their impartial judgment must be added elements which are not impartial. This is usually sufficient to destroy the value of any verdict or judgment as a whole.

The indefensible nature of the whole situation was clearly brought out in the arbitration of the firemen's case in March of the present year. In that case under the provisions of the Erdman act the railroad appointed as their arbitrator William W. Atterbury of Philadelphia, Penn., and the Brotherhood appointed as its arbitrator Albert Phillips of Sacramento, Cal. The following quotations from the official correspondence on the subject of the selection of a neutral arbitrator are self-explanatory and very illuminating.

> Mr. Atterbury—"I regret to report my utter inability to agree with Mr. Phillips upon a third arbitrator as contemplated under Subject 3 of the Erdman act." "I came to a conference with a list of names for consideration." "Mr. Phillips would neither present nor discuss any names." "Finally we agreed to request Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University to propose a list of names."

Here are a few of Dr. Butler's suggestions, (twenty-three in all):

- William H. Taft, ex-President of the United States;
- Charles E. Hughes, Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States;
- Arthur T. Hadley, President of Yale University;
- Charles Andrews, formerly Mayor of Syracuse;
- Henry R. Seager, Professor of Political Economy, Columbia University;
- Fred W. Lehman, formerly Solicitor General of the United States;
- George C. Holt, United States District Judge since 1903.

> Mr. Phillips—Upon receipt of this list I noted that not one of the persons named was known to me, and after carefully considering each one and investigation as to their fitness for so responsible a duty I felt bound to say that owing to my lack of acquaintance I could not consistently agree upon any persons named.
> Mr. Atterbury—"I advised Mr. Phillips that the selection of any one of the twenty-three names in Dr. Butler's list would be satisfactory to the railroad." "Mr. Phillips would neither consider nor discuss any names, one of his reasons being that the fact that I had suggested the names would of itself render such a name persona non grata to those whom he represented."

The public supplying the fund for wages, improvements, and facilities of every description on railroads will easily understand the reasonableness of a jury of neutrals in deciding matters that so directly concern their own welfare and interests. JAMES O. FAGAN.

The Automobile in Bar Harbor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is some apprehension in this part of Maine, which a correct understanding in other States would render needless, lest accounts of the proceedings of the Mount Desert town meeting of July 25, published in the New York papers, will be misunderstood and will have the effect of keeping tourists from the island of Mount Desert. For this reason I would like to make the status of the automobile on the island of Mount Desert clear.

Of the four towns on the island only one, the town of Mount Desert, in which are located the villages of Northeast Harbor and Seal Harbor, has voted to exclude the motor car. The town of Eden, in which Bar Harbor is situated; the town of Southwest Harbor, and the town of Tremont are open to automobile tourists and to the Summer residents who find their chief vacation pleasure in motoring.

As the dispatches reporting the Mount Desert town meeting were dated Bar Harbor, and as many still confuse Bar Harbor with Mount Desert as a whole, it is easy to account for the anxiety of the Bar Harbor business men and some others. They have mailed many cards to their friends explaining the attitude of Bar Harbor, the Summer capital of Mount Desert, toward the automobile, but it is very desirable that the general public should understand it also. MAYOR ATTACKS DEUEL.

Declares That the Magistrate He Appointed Has Disgraced His Place.

Mayor Gaynor replied yesterday to the opinion given by Magistrate Deuel on Monday in holding for trial Inspector Dwyer and three of his raiders who figured in the attempt of the police to close Healy's restaurant. In his opinion, the Magistrate said, liquors might be consumed by patrons provided they were served before 1 o'clock, and he added that District Attorney Whitman went to Healy's only after he had had a conference with the Magistrate and when the latter had given his hearty approval to the plan.

The Mayor in his reply again charged the District Attorney with trying to make political capital by "openly opposing the police," and he said that Magistrate Deuel by his statement "disgraced the Magistrates' bench and ought to get out or be removed." It was only recently that the Mayor appointed Magistrate Deuel to the Magistrates' bench when his term as Justice of Special Sessions expired. This is the Mayor's statement:

"Yes, I see that Magistrate Deuel lays down the law in a newspaper interview about the closing of licensed liquor places at 1 o'clock at night, to remain closed until 6 o'clock. The fact that he may have to decide such a case judicially and that the law commands him to reserve his mind for argument, and then decide impartially, does not restrain him.

"The liquor statute says that any and every 'room or rooms in which liquors are sold' must be vacated, closed, and locked up by 1 o'clock every night, and remain so until 6 o'clock, and that meanwhile no one may be there or even go in or out, except the proprietor or a member of his family. The District Attorney, in his effort to make political capital by openly opposing the police in their efforts to enforce this law against unsavory places, claimed that these words 'room or rooms' meant only the bar. But Deuel goes further. Although he agrees that the bar must be closed, he says that guests have the right to order all the wine or grog they like before 1 o'clock, and have it set by or upon their tables, and then sit there guzzling and swigging it all night. He disgraces the Magistrates' bench by such a statement, and ought to get out or be removed. Just think of a Magistrate trying in this way to encourage resistance to law and order.

"The law is explicit that all rooms in which liquors are sold in licensed places —'room or rooms' are the words—have to be vacated and closed at 1 o'clock. It does not say bar or barroom, but all rooms. Every room, or series of rooms, in which liquors are drunk have to be vacated and closed. That is the way the law has always been understood and enforced in this State and all of the States from the beginning. All of the cases have been examined and there is not a single exception.

"And the claim that rooms in which food as well as liquors is sold are excepted from closing at 1 o'clock has no foundation. The statute makes no such exception. No court decision does. If that were so, food could be sold in the barroom also so as to except that from closing. If liquor is sold in the room it must close at 1 o'clock, no matter what else is sold there. Suppose Healy should set up a drug shop in his place and claim he could keep open to sell drugs. Well, just that kind of case has been decided by the courts. It was held that, inasmuch as liquor was sold there, the place had to be closed up, drug shop and all.

"For many years before I became Mayor this closing law was enforced by the police arresting every one in the place after 1 o'clock and having them locked up. Of course they were all discharged in the morning. I can cite an instance of over 500 persons being arrested in one place and locked up in this way.

"Inuumerable lesser instances can be cited. Instead, a Lieutenant of police enters and gives notice that the closing hour had arrived and requests every one to leave. Every one complied, including Healy, until the District Attorney, seeking for political glory, advised him to stay at home. Then the place was colonized two or three nights for resistance. Not even a tip was given to the District Attorney to come.

"Up in 125th Street there are several tough colored places. The police attend every night at 1 o'clock and give warning and they close up. There are vile dives all over the city in which the same is done. What are we to do with such places if the District Attorney and Deuel's views are to be followed? Is the District Attorney to continue to be the champion of these resorts of criminals and lewd persons? I understand another case is being rigged up with the hope of getting some colorable decision to allow an open, drunken criminal all night in this city."

There was no reply by Magistrate Deuel to the Mayor's statement.

NEW HETCH HETCHY MENACE

Robert Underwood Johnson Accuses San Francisco of Bad Faith.

Moved by the activities of the representatives of the City of San Francisco, renewed during the extra session of Congress, to obtain legislation permitting them to impound the waters of the Hetch Hetchy Valley, Robert Underwood Johnson, formerly editor of The Century Magazine, has issued an open letter to the American people, whom he addresses as "fellow owners of the Yosemite National Park."

Mr. Johnson attacks the plea of San Francisco that the Hetch Hetchy is the only available source of water supply for the city, which is the principal argument advanced for the flooding of the valley by the building of a reservoir. He also accuses the city's paid representatives at Washington of taking advantage of the announcement that no general legislation would be considered at the extra session, and endeavoring, on an "emergency plea," to "rush through a drastic measure that would turn over to the city 500 square miles—half your National Park."

This appeal to Congress, he says, is made on ex-parte evidence furnished by the city, and not fully verified by the advisory board of Army Engineers appointed by Secretary Fisher, and he charges that in presenting data to the board the representatives of the city actually withheld a report showing that the Mokelumne River would afford an abundant supply at a smaller expense. Mr. Johnson cites evidence to show that James D. Phelan, the most conspicuous advocate of the appropriation of the valley, admitted that an abundant water supply might be obtained anywhere along the Sierra "by paying for it," and comments:

"The nation is called upon to make sacrifice of its noblest pleasure ground, not to save the lives or the health of San Franciscans, but their dollars—and, moreover, to supply water not merely for drinking, but for power!"

The report of the Army Board is quoted, Mr. Johnson admits, in favor of the San Francisco scheme; but he points out the fact that it includes this paragraph, which he regards as a significant, if not a conclusive, argument against the nation's acceptance of San Francisco's contentions:

"The board is of the opinion that there are several sources of water supply that could be obtained and used by the City of San Francisco and adjacent communities to supplement the near-by supplies as the necessity develops. From any one of these sources the water is sufficient in quantity and is, or can be made, suitable in quality. While the engineering difficulties are not insurmountable, the determining factor is one of cost."

"In other words," says Mr. Johnson, "the American people are asked to subsidize the city's water supply to the extent of the money value of Hetch Hetchy and of 500 square miles of phenomenal scenery. Put up at auction, what would this wonderland bring? 'What am I bid?' the auctioneer might say, 'for one superb valley, twenty miles of unique cascades, half a dozen snow peaks, beautiful upland meadows, noble forests, &c., now owned by a gentleman named Uncle Sam, suspected of not being able to administer his own property? Do I hear $20,000,000 to start the bidding? Remember that these natural features are priceless.'

"Will the reader of these lines also remember that fact?

"Citizens, will you not help prevent this outrage by writing in protest, however briefly, to your Senators and Representatives, and to Hon. Reed Smoot, United States Senate, and Hon. F. W. Mondell, M. C., Washington, D. C., and to the press, and by asking others to do the same? 'They have rights who dare maintain them.'"

PLAN TO STAMP OUT PANICS IN THEATRES

"Walk Out (Don't Run)" a Warning Notice in Programmes Will Say.

TO HAVE TAGS ON SEATS

Great Peril Now Lies in a Frantic Audience, Says Johnson, Not from Fire.

Fire Commissioner Johnson had a conference yesterday with representatives of the theatrical interests in this city, and as a result certain reforms are to be instituted at once, all seeking to protect audiences from their own disposition to indulge in panics. As a first move, thorough fire drills will be required in every theatre. Separate duties will be assigned to each of the ushers, to the members of the orchestra, and to the stage employes.

These drills will be held weekly, just before the audiences at Wednesday matinées are admitted to the playhouses. They will be for the purpose of training the ushers and other employes to handle crowds in a panic and especially to train them in directing crowds through the various exits that will be opened in case of fire. The call to fire drill will be sounded in each case from the box office. At a given signal each employe will go to an assigned place ready to urge a certain portion of a supposed audience to go out through the exit for that part of the house.

Another plan suggested at the conference, but not yet ordered officially, is that the theatrical managers attach to each seat, beside the seat number, another number indicating the emergency exit to which the holder of that seat should make his way in case of a fire.

This innovation will not be made at once, for the managers want a little time to make designs.

The conference of yesterday was held at Fire Department Headquarters. It was attended by representatives of the Shuberts, John Cort, William A. Brady, Charles B. Dillingham, Cohan & Harris, Daniel Frohman, Al Woods, Lew Fields, Winthrop Ames, David Belasco, B. F. Keith, William Morris, and the officers of various moving picture associations.

Commissioner Johnson told the theatrical men that he had been making inspections of their houses for some time, and that he had reached the conclusion that there would never be another fire horror in any first-class New York theatre.

Only Danger Now is Panic.

"I realize," said Commissioner Johnson, "that the task of making the theatres safe as to fire risks is a finished one. Our modern theatres are the best buildings as to fire hazards that we have. The danger is no longer that fire will burn up members of the audience, but that panic will destroy them in their own haste to flee from a danger that no longer menaces them.

"Now the reason for this is simple. When panic seizes people they cannot think of getting out by any other door except the door through which they came in. Most of the people, of course, are admitted by one or two main doors. I have made a study of fire panics and I have learned that people in a panic will pass right by doors and rush to the door by which they were admitted.

"The girls who died in the Triangle shirt waist fire on the ninth floor of the Asch Building were stacked up fifty deep behind the door by which they had come in. If they had merely pressed against it it would have given way, for the lock didn't amount to much. And there were other doors and other exits."

Commissioner Johnson held up a large placard which he said he proposed to have a fireman carry out before the curtain of each theatre just before time for the play to begin. This was the placard:

> FIRE NOTICE.
> LOOK AROUND NOW AND CHOOSE THE NEAREST EXIT.
> In case of fire walk out (don't run) to that exit. Don't try to beat your neighbor to the street.

Johnson Surprises Managers.

Mark Klaw gave a gasp as he caught sight of the placard.

"If a fireman came out before the curtain with that," he said, "you never could tell what would occur. Get your audience uneasy and you never can tell what will happen. In the first place it spoils the show, for the people on the stage feel it as quick as those in front. After that anything could cause a panic. A misplaced laugh might do it, or the breaking of a chair. I suggest that we print this warning in the programmes right at the top of the column containing the cast."

Other managers talked in the same strain. Commissioner Johnson accepted their suggestion. He said that for thirty days he would permit the publication of the warning notice in the programmes and that at the end of that period of education he would decide whether the more emphatic warning was necessary.

"I want this thing off my conscience," he said. "I don't want to feel that we have done anything less than the most we could do, if a big theatre panic should occur.

"It is a strange thing that moving picture theatres are still less numerous than the dance halls—as common as they are. I am going to order the posting of the 'Fire Warning' notice in every dance hall, and I am going to order that a slide be made of it for moving picture houses, and that the slide be thrown on the screen before each performance opens."

Samuel Trigger, President of the Motion Picture Association, said that the great danger in the motion picture houses lay in the foolish belief of the audience that a film explosion followed by fire in the film room might mean danger to the audience. Nowadays not more than three or four inches of film could burn in case the film caught fire, he said, and even if a whole reel burned up the audience would only see the glare.

The plans decided on yesterday mark the beginning of a general plan of education, Commissioner Johnson said. Fire drills for audiences, to teach them the use of emergency exits, he said, might be a future development.

STATE TO TEACH FARMERS.

Minnesota Plans to Reach 1,600 Rural Communities.

Minnesota is planning to carry agricultural education to every one of the 1,600 farming communities in the State. The extension division of the Agricultural Department of the State University is working out the details for a wide campaign to promote better crops and wiser use of the land.

To carry out the programme will require twenty members of the Agricultural School Faculty, fifteen extension teachers, and more than 100 high school teachers, who will devote most of their time to community organization work.

Besides starting a club for farmers in each of the 1,600 townships, the leaders in the campaign, who are headed by Prof. A. D. Wilson, purpose to establish in each place a corn-breeding plot, an alfalfa testing plot, certain live stock improvement work, and a vegetable growing club to interest the girls and women. All the county and local educational forces in the State will be enlisted in the movement.

Short courses in agriculture will be given in each of the more than seventy counties of the State. Delegates from each township will be expected to attend this course, and then go back to their respective township organizations and conduct a similar course for their neighbors.

THIS NEW FARCE FRESH AND FUNNY

"Believe Me, Xantippe," Both Brief and Inconsequential, but Creates Much Laughter.

IT IS VERY WELL ACTED

John Barrymore Well Suited, While Mary Young, Theodore Roberts, and Others Add to the Fun.

BELIEVE ME, XANTIPPE, play in three acts by Frederick Ballard. Thirty-ninth Street Theatre.

George MacFarland	John Barrymore
Arthur Sole	Alonzo Price
Thornton Brown	Henry Hull
"Buck" Kamman	Theodore Roberts
Simp Calloway	Frank Campeau
"Wrenn" Rigley	Albert Roberts
William	M. Tello Webb
Martha	Alpha Beyers
Violet	Katherine Harris
Dolly Kamman	Mary Young

"Believe Me Xantippe," which was a prize play in Boston before it came to this city, proves to be an exceedingly funny if altogether irresponsible farce in which the main desire appears to be to get laughs no matter what the consequences. And laugh last night's audience certainly did—heartily and spontaneously—as subsequent audiences are pretty sure to do.

What commends the piece especially is its general freshness. It has a breezy, wholesome quality, and though it is short it is good fun for a large part of the time. After the long line of wager plays, from "The Fortune Hunter" to "Ready Money" and back again, it would be too much to say that the author has discovered an absolutely fresh initial premise. But Mr. Ballard has varied the theme by a quick jump from the effete East to the rough-and-ready West with a brave-hearted Colorado maiden doing the "Girl of the Golden West" stunt in the farcical developments of the story.

The first act though merely a preparation for what follows has the merit of snappiness and serves to ingratiate the hero—again John Barrymore, who is admirably suited to the rôle of the lackadaisical young gentleman who would as soon get blisters walking as riding on a horse. Ride he does ultimately, however, set free by his dulcinea, after a series of unusual jail experiences.

It is in the County Jail decorated with a motto "God Bless Our Home" and pinked out with chintz and lace curtains that George MacFarland, alias McGinnis, forger, finds himself attached to a ball and chain, after he has alternately captured, been captured by, and befriended the Sheriff's daughter Dolly. And it is here in a succession of very amusing incidents that the farce develops pace and humor and gets its laughs not infrequently by the very grotesqueness and impossibility of the proceedings. There were no bigger laughs, in fact, than those which were created by the sound of a "man dog's barking" and a tiny candle whose solitary ray had powers of illumination equal to that of an average arc light. Those, however, were minor details.

From the time that Dolly ordered the supposed criminal to bed at the point of a revolver, being met with the argument that he had not said his prayers, to the moment when, his innocence established, he is hauled in at the end of a clothes line by the Sheriff's sister, who has rescued him from the picket fence, where a broncho had deposited him, the developments were mostly of an unexpected sort. And the scenes in the jail were varied by the introduction of a very amusing jailer, whose willingness to do what he was told, when told with sufficient force, added not a little share to the general hilarity. Also, by way of variety, there was the heavy desperado and his pal, who surely would have labeled herself "a perfect lady." And each of them had a fling at the gentleman from the East, unused to their rough ways, but well able to care for himself in most emergencies.

"Believe Me, Xantippe" is one of those things which can hardly be described to advantage in detail for telling would sound flat, and the action is everything. But it may be well to explain that the title involves a phrase used on frequent occasions by the leading personage, and the means eventually to his detection and detention by the brave Colorado maiden. The meeting of this pair, in a lonely cabin, where "MacGinnis" arrives after having shot what he calls a squirrel—the only thing that would stand still long enough—is very funny.

The farce, on the whole, is inconsequential, but it will provide a good deal of amusement for anyone whose digestion is reasonably good.

Mr. Barrymore's careless flippant method lends itself admirably to the role of the would-be hero, and the girl is capitally played by Mary Young. Theodore Roberts and Frank Campeau are excellent in rougher types, and Albert Roberts provides a large share of fun. Katherine Harris, too, does her part to keep things lively and the others are satisfying enough.

J. H. Alexandre to Marry.

Mrs. John Dyar of Grosse Point, Mich., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Anne Loomis Dyar, to J. Henry Alexandre of this city. Mr. Alexandre is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Alexandre of New York, and is well known in society. He was graduated from Harvard, Class of '07, and belongs to the Riding, Racquet and Tennis Clubs and Squadron A. He is a member of the New York Stock Exchange. Mr. Alexandre is now with his sisters, the Misses Virginia L. and Mary E. Alexandre, and his younger brother, Frederick F. Alexandre, at Hedgecourt, their country place at Convent, N. J. No date has been set for the wedding.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Oren Root are occupying Fondamere, on South Main Street, Southampton, this Summer.

Mrs. De Lancey Nicoll has invitations out for a large dinner on Friday evening at her Southampton cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis T. Montant (Miss Alice Anderton) have returned to Oyster Bay from a visit to Mr. and Mrs. S. Oakley Vanderpoel at East Hampton, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Duane Humphreys of Bedford Hills have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Walsh Humphreys at Southampton.

Mrs. S. E. Johnson Hudson is occupying the Johnson homestead at Stratford, Conn., this Summer.

Brinton Buckwalter of this city, who has been visiting at Newport, has returned to Bar Harbor for the remainder of the Summer.

Mrs. Martha Gielow of Washington, D. C., is at the Park Avenue Hotel for a brief visit, where she will be joined this week by her daughter, Mrs. Charles W. Fisher.

Mr. and Mrs. Hendrik Hudson (Miss Helen Frith) are at Martling House, East Norwich, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Steinbrugge, who sailed some weeks since, will spend September at Biarritz.

NIXON & ZIMMERMAN SPLIT.

Their Philadelphia Theatres Divided Between Them.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Aug. 19.—A radical change in the theatres of Philadelphia, forecast several months ago, took definite form yesterday when formal application was made for the dissolution of the firm of Nixon & Zimmerman, for many years the leading theatrical firm of this city.

Samuel F. Nixon assumes control of the "legitimate" houses and several vaudeville theatres, while J. Fred Zimmerman and his son take over several combined vaudeville and moving picture houses outside the centre of the city.

Mr. Nixon said he would take control of the Broad, Forrest, and Garrick Theatres and the Chestnut Street Opera House. The Broad will be used for drama, and will be run by Klaw & Erlanger and Mr. Nixon. The Forrest will be the Nixon house for spectacular productions and musical comedy. The Garrick will be under the control of a corporation headed by Mr. Nixon, and will stage drama and musical comedy. The opera house, long the favorite playhouse of Mr. Zimmerman, Sr., has been leased to Marcus Loew, and will be used for vaudeville.

The Zimmermans will have several new houses, including the Fairmont and the Orpheum, both moving picture places, and others of similar policy.

The Shubert theatres, the Adelphi and the Lyric, are not affected by the split.

BILLIE BURKE RECOVERING.

Actress Operated On for Appendicitis on Return from Europe.

Billie Burke, the actress, was resting comfortably yesterday at the Astor Sanitarium, in West Seventieth Street, after an operation for appendicitis performed there the day before by Dr. Joseph B. Bissell of 46 West Fifty-fifth Street. Although the operation disclosed a serious condition, the actress rallied strongly after it and is doing well. She is expected to be able to leave the institution in about two weeks.

Cabled dispatches from abroad several weeks ago told of her indisposition and that it was believed an operation would be necessary. Miss Burke hurried back, cutting short her vacation, and landed last Friday from the Mauretania. Although to persons on the dock she showed no traces of serious illness, her physician was awaiting her there, and arrangements for the operation were immediately made.

AT WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS.

Cotillion for 100 Couples Given by Ten Visitors.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, West Va., Aug. 19.—The cotillion given here last evening by Thomas B. Paine, John Herndon French, Henry W. Anderson, Joseph Lane Stern, John Aiken Branch, D. Manley, Billups Phinizy, H. Snowden Marshall, Marion Whaley, and Garrett W. Wall for 100 couples was probably the smartest affair ever given at White Sulphur Springs.

The drawing room, ballroom, and grill were reserved for the party, and were beautifully decorated. The musicians were hidden behind a screen of palms, asparagus vines, and pink roses, which were also used in the trellises which hid the walls. In addition to the hundred couples who danced, about fifty were invited in to see the ball.

Handsome gauze and ivory fans were distributed during one of the figures, which were alternately led by Mr. Paine and Mr. Sterne.

Miss Mary Custis Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Decatur Axtell, Chief Justice and Mrs. White, Mrs. William James, Mrs. William C. Worthington, Mrs. A. W. Calhoun, Mrs. Frank Ellis, Mrs. Leigh Palmer, and a number of others were present, while the dancers included Mr. and Mrs. John Atkinson Thayer, Mr. and Mrs. Hammond Johnson, Mrs. James H. Preston, Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Leggett, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Haight, George W. Stevens and his house party, including the Misses Helen Stevens, Nan Godwin, Mary Mouldon, and Alice Young, and George Stevens, Jr., and Cecil Stevens, Ruxton Ridgely, Medley Scovil, Hunter Breckinridge, Miss Hilah French, the Misses Kohlsaat, Miss Alice Preston, Miss Margaret Hages, the Misses Alice and Julia Whiting, and many others.

WHITE MOUNTAIN AFFAIRS.

Entertainments at Homes and the Hotels—The Arrivals.

Special to The New York Times.

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Walter G. Oakman of Mount Vernon cottage, entertained last evening for forty guests, and in the afternoon Mrs. Charles Stuart Smith gave a card party at her cottage for thirty-five guests.

Miss Eugenie Warren has arrived at the Mount Pleasant House from Greenwich, and Mr. and Mrs. Graham Vreeland of Frankfort, Ky., motored here to-day. Dr. and Mrs. Harlan Brooks of New York have returned from a trip to the summit of Washington.

A. R. Hawley has joined the golfers at Mount Pleasant.

L. A. Hamilton, E. A. Oliver, Col. Edward Ray, C. H. Hart, and Col. Downing were among those entertaining at the Mount Washington last evening.

Dr. and Mrs. F. S. Saylor of Philadelphia have been at Bretton Woods en route to the Balsams at Dixville Notch, where they will join Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Hales.

Mrs. L. A. De Blois has come up from her Summer home at Squirrel Island, Maine, to spend a fortnight with Mrs. Mary Winch at the Mount Washington Hotel.

Miss Margaret Bourne has left Bretton Woods for her Summer home in Nahant, and Mr. and Mrs. John Adams Thayer have left Plymouth for New York over the ideal tour.

Mrs. Daniel C. Harrington is giving a luncheon at Bethlehem to-morrow in honor of the gala day for the benefit of the Country clubhouse.

Miss Lillian A. Strauss is soon to be joined at the Fabyian House by her father, Gen. A. D. Strauss.

Plans for Pavlowa's Tour.

Max Rabinoff returned yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. after a trip abroad in the interests of the National Opera Company of Canada, of which he is Director General, and the forthcoming Pavlowa tour in America, which he will manage. He said that in her appearances here the Russian danseuse would be accompanied by Novikoff, notwithstanding the cabled reports of the incident in the Palace Theatre, London, which led to a quarrel between them. He said that M. Cechetti, the Russian mime, would also be a member of the company, and that another principal male dancer would be M. Zailich of the Imperial Opera House at Moscow. The répertoire of the Pavlowa organization, he said, would embrace eleven ballets, nine of which are new.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

On account of the length of the performance of "The Doll Girl," it has been decided by Charles Frohman not to present as part of it the Barrie skit, "The Dramatists Get What They Want," as originally intended, reserving it for presentation this Winter as part of a full evening's entertainment, with two other Barrie playlets, "The Will" and "The Little Policeman."

The Shubert production of "Lieber Augustin," with De Wolf Hopper, will have its first performance to-night at Long Branch.

The complete cast for the support of Louis Mann in "Children of To-day" includes Emily Ann Wellman, Maud Turner Gordon, Adoni Fovrieri, Frank R. Stirling, John Hines, Margaret Templeton and Mr. Strange.

There will be no performance by Richard Bennett and his company in "Damaged Goods" at the Fulton Theatre on Aug. 25, 26 and 27, arrangements having been made to present the play in Buffalo at the Fourth International Congress of School Hygiene. On Aug. 28 the run of the piece will be continued at the Fulton Theatre.

Lew Fields and his company in "All Aboard" will move from the roof of the Forty-fourth Street Theatre after the performance next Saturday night to the theatre downstairs, which will allow matinees to be given twice a week while the run of the piece continues.

Kenneth Hunter, last season with William Faversham, has been engaged for an important role in the support of Mrs. Fiske this season in "The High Road."

Rehearsals of the new Hippodrome show, "America," will begin to-day at the big playhouse, the preliminary ones having been held in an armory. The piece opens Aug. 30.

Mlle. Dazie, dancer and pantomimist, will be seen next week at the New Brighton Theatre in the opening of her engagement in J. M. Barrie's "Pantaloon."

WILLIAMS DEFEATS TOUCHARD AT NETS

Davis Cup Player Wins First Important Match in Tennis Championship.

A HARD FIVE-SET MATCH

Foot Faults Rob New York Expert of Chance for Victory—Ranking Players Come Through.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 19.—Richard Norris Williams, 2d, fresh from his visit to England as a member of America's Davis Cup team, almost went down to defeat to-day before Gustave F. Touchard of New York in a five-set match that was the feature of the second day's play in the championship battle, now in full swing, on the Casino courts. A big gallery witnessed this and thirty-three other stirring matches and hung on the result, which was in doubt until almost the last minute of play. Touchard played the game of his life and led at two sets to one and 4—3 and 40—30 in the fifth set. It was at this stage that an incident occurred that has set all Newport by the ears and started a discussion regarding foot faults and their rigid enforcement. Touchard served for what would have given him the commanding lead of 5—3, but was foot-faulted by P. A. Vaile, the New Zealander, who was acting as foot-fault judge and had repeatedly penalized both Touchard and Williams. The next service was a double fault, and the loss of the game followed. Touchard was very much upset by the decision and made little fight thereafter.

The match was a mixture of very good and very bad tennis. Touchard played just the game to bother Williams, while his service and his strokes in general were soft, and he remained in the back of the court most of the time, persistently playing to Williams's formidable but uncertain backhand. When the opportunity offered, however, the New Yorker drove beautifully, these shots carrying plenty of pace. He won the first set easily, at 6—3, and had chances to pull up even in the second. Williams finally won this, at 6—4. Touchard then ran away with the third set, alowing Williams, who made many errors, but one game. The fourth set went to Williams after a struggle, and he got a lead of 2—1 in the fifth. Touchard then started a brilliant streak that stopped only when he led at 4—3. He scored 13 points in succession, nearly all of them earned. In the fifth game he passed Williams's score four times by beautiful drives and did not allow him a point. Williams braced and won the seventh game, and in the eighth came the foot-fault decision which deprived Touchard of the match. Vaile claims that Touchard moved his foot forward, which is a technical violation of the rule, but Touchard denies this.

All the other favorites came through without much difficulty, and but three matches remain to be played to complete the third round. William J. Clothier lost a set to George M. Church, the intercollegiate champion putting his effort into this. In the other three sets he was no match for the former champion. McLoughlin had an easy match with Hoffman Nickerson and won in straight sets.

William M. Johnston of San Francisco was forced to an 8—6 first set score by G. C. Caner of Philadelphia, who played very well, but won the next two without trouble. Wallace Johnson, the other member of the American Davis Cup team, proved entirely too strong for Henry W. Slocum, the champion of twenty-five years ago, losing only seven games in the match. Baron H. Von Lersner could make no impression on Thomas C. Bundy's game and lost in straight sets. John C. Strachan, the young Californian, delighted the gallery with an exhibition of tremendously hard hitting, and some of his forehand shots surpassed in speed the spectacular smashes of Champion McLoughlin. Strachan's opponent was Albert E. Kennedy, Jr., a Philadelphia youngster, and, alhtough he struggled gamely, made no headway, except in the second set, when he got four games. Fred C. Inman of New York put Fred C. Colston of Baltimore out of the running after losing the first set. After that it was largely a matter of which lasted best, and Colston's lack of condition was his undoing. Jerry Weber, the Chicago interscholastic champion, gave Alfred Dabney a great fight in the first set of their match, losing only at 12—10, but the Bostonian then drew away and won the next two sets with lots to spare. Robert Leroy of New York had some trouble to win from Joe Armstrong of Minneapolis, the latter's chop strokes and agility enabling him to win the second set. After that Leroy's long drives were too much for him.

The first championship match of the present tournament will be decided to-morrow, when the national doubles title play is staged between McLoughlin and Bundy, the present champions, and Strachan and Griffin, the challengers. For the first time the spectacle of two California teams battling for this title will be witnessed, and opinion is divided as to the outcome. The youngsters, Strachan and Griffin, show splendid team work and strong individual play, but McLoughlin is playing in great form, while Bundy is but little behind him. The match seems to hinge on the ability of Bundy to stand up under the pounding he is sure to get.

Bundy will play Strachan to-morrow afternoon, and thus another California battle will be on view. McLoughlin and Clothier will probably meet Thursday, as will Williams and William Johnston. The summaries:

NEWPORT FASHIONS SHOWN AT TENNIS

Society There and from Surrounding Resorts Gathers at the Second Day of Play.

STRIKING COSTUMES WORN

Purple and Green Favored and Bright-Colored Parasols to Match the Gowns Are Carried.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 19.—Fine weather brought out a large and brilliant attendance for the second day of the tennis tournament. Besides the many Newport visitors present, Narragansett Pier sent its full quota for the morning game and they remained over for the polo tournament. The Summer colonies of Jamestown, Watch Hill, and Saunderstown were also well represented.

The costumes of the women were varied and beautiful. Parasols matching the costumes were carried, and girdles and sashes matching the hosiery were noticeable. Purple hosiery, white pumps, and purple parasols were much in evidence. Green sashes and girdles also seemed to be favored.

Some of the costumes noted were:

Mrs. John Astor, gown of sky blue figured chiffon voile, draped with a flowing scarf of the same shade; blue hat, partially covered with a chocolate veil; Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas, black satin charmeuse gown, with white chiffon introduced in the waist, and a black hat; Mrs. James J. Brown, blue and white costume; Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., royal purple satin, taupe hat, trimmed with purple osprey; Mrs. Richard Stevens, a panier gown of flowered voile, with a French blue hat, with canary-colored osprey; Mrs. William Manley, gown of gray embroidered chiffon and a black parasol; Mme. Bakhmeteff, oyster white linen coat suit, small white hat, with plumes, black shoes, with high French heels of red; Mrs. James P. Kernochan, black and white striped coat suit, black and white toque, trimmed with a cluster of grapes; Mrs. Suffern Tailer, brown chiffon costume, with a French blue hat; Mrs. Joseph Harriman, gown of Dolly Varden voile banded in blue, a large hat, with black bird of paradise; Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden, costume of cerise and blue flowered satin, with a girdle of blue tied in the back; Miss Florence Tobin, delicate pink gown banded with black velvet, with a lavender hat, trimmed with pink wheat; Miss Louise Scott, coat suit of black charmeuse, with black chiffon and black toque; Mrs. Louise Quentin Jones, embroidered voile coat suit, cream colored hat, with yellow tea roses; Mrs. James B. Haggin, white broadcloth suit, pink hat, with a large rose in front and black cerise parasol; Mrs. Henry S. Redmond, brocaded satin suit of royal purple, with hat, parasol, and stockings to match; Mrs. Stuart Duncan, Nell rose satin suit, with black and white hat, trimmed with white wheat; Miss Edythe Deacon, white crepe de Chine, with small hat covered with yellow and brown dahlias; Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, lavender linen suit, with purple hat trimmed with lilacs and a corsage of orchids to match; Mrs. Slater, a blue panier gown, with lavender sash.

Key Daingerfield, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. William M. Manley, Baltimore, visiting Dr. and Mrs. Henry Barton Jacobs; De Forest C. Cauder, Locust Valley, L. I.; C. W. Hanford, New York, visiting Robert L. Gerry; Mrs. Robert R. Livingston, Miss L. Livingston, and Robert R. Livingston, New York, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer; Miss Sarah G. Chase, Brookline; John B. Thayer and F. M. Thayer, Haverford, Penn., visiting Mrs. A. J. Cassatt; Mrs. G. F. Touchard, New York; Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Welsh, Boston, visiting Mrs. A. Windsor Weld; Herbert Croly, Windsor, N. H., visiting Mr. and Mrs. Norman De R. Whitehouse, and Miss Caramal Carroll, New York, visiting Bishop and Mrs. James H. Darlington, are registered at the Casino.

Miss Edythe Deacon is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Dodge.

Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas entertained a dinner party at her cottage, having the Spanish Minister and Señora Riaño, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Pinchot, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Eustis, Maurice Roche, Francis Roche, Boris Yonine, Mrs. J. R. Mallery, Mrs. Alexander Brown, Herbert M. Harriman, Miss Dorothea Kane, Miss Cecelia May, and Harrison Rhodes.

Herbert C. Pell, Jr., is visiting Mrs. James P. Kernochan.

Mrs. Elisha Dyer entertained a large dinner company at Wayside to-night, afterward going to Mrs. Haggin's dance.

Mrs. George B. De Forest entertained at the Train villa to-day, having the Spanish Minister and Señora Riaño for luncheon.

Because of the heavy rain on Monday night, as the guests at Mrs. James B. Haggin's dance were about ready to enter the tent on the lawn, the dancing took place in the house. Mrs. Haggin invited all her guests again to-night for a dance in the tent. Some of the guests wore masks and dominoes.

After dancing at Mrs. Haggin's until morning, a number of the guests took the orchestra to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. F. Lanier, where they were entertained by Charles Lanier for an hour more of dancing.

Mrs. T. Gerry Townsend, who has been at Pine Lodge, has returned to New York.

Mrs. George Peabody Wetmore was a dinner hostess to-night.

Miss Laura V. Webb of New York arrives to-morrow to visit the Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Shipman.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Walker of New York are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. Francis Clark, who entertained with a dinner for them to-night.

Francis Roche gives a dance at the Newport Golf Club to-morrow, which will be preceded by a number of large dinners, including those of Mrs. Burke Roche and Mrs. Oliver G. Jennings.

Bishop James Henry Darlington of Harrisburg presided this afternoon at the meeting of the Newport County Woman's Suffrage League, where Mrs. Florence Howe Hall made the address.

George Lockhart Rives has been elected a member of the Newport Fish Club in place of J. P. Morgan, who declined election to the membership made vacant by the death of his father. This completes the membership.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas will leave on Monday for a stay of two weeks in the White Mountains.

Mrs. A. J. Cassatt of Philadelphia will give a dance or tea at the Newport Golf Club for Miss Lois Cassatt in Horse Show week.

Miss Marie De Barril, who more than a week ago lost a diamond crown brooch, had the brooch returned to her to-day by a young woman of Newport, who found it on the beach.

Bar Harbor Activities.

Special to The New York Times.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Nicholas Anderson will give a dinner at her Summer home on Wednesday evening.

Dave H. Morris is expected to arrive here this week and has left Newport in his motor boat Alice. The Morris cottage, Bogue Chitto, has been closed this Summer.

W. S. Gurnee has issued invitations for a dinner at his Summer home on the 28th for his birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mansfield Patterson gave a large barn dance last night.

William Rhinelander Stewart will entertain at dinner on Saturday evening at his Summer home on West Street.

Miss Rosetta Betts of New York is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawrence Green.

Luncheons given to-day and yesterday included those of Mrs. W. W. Seeley, Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Mears, Mrs. Sheffield Phelps, Mrs Howard Langham and Mrs. Lea McIlvaine Luquer.

SAYS WE WILL GET CENTRAL AMERICA

Caribbean Islands Also Will Become Our Territory, Russian Editor Thinks.

FORESEES A SECOND CANAL

Latin-Americans Don't Like Us, He Says, After Tour of Republics —Admire Our Civilization.

Even if Secretary of State Bryan's Nicaraguan treaty did not look like itself when the Senate finished with it, it seems to have had considerable effect abroad, and in at least one country that would hardly be suspected of taking an interest in Latin-American affairs. Of such import was that instrument considered that The Novoe Vremya, the leading Russian newspaper, immediately dispatched one of its principad editors to study conditions in Central American republics and their attitude toward the United States. This editor, Vladimir Krymoff, returned to New York yesterday.

The Novoe Vremya, by the way, has lately started an evening edition, according to Mr. Krymoff, and it has proved very successful, the circulation having already jumped beyond that of the morning paper. This, in Mr. Krymoff's opinion, is due to the fact that the evening paper sells for 1 cent and the morning for 3.

"I have spent four weeks in tropical American countries," said Mr. Krymoff at the Plaza yesterday, "and have seen Cuba, the Central American republics, and the island of Jamaica. I have been particularly interested in trying to determine whether those countries are going to be Americanized or not. I have interviewed many persons of note in the various republics, and they express the hope that such a thing will not come to pass. From what I have seen and heard I am of the opinion that at least all the countries of Central America and the Caribbean will eventually become American territory.

"I saw American officials in Panama and I saw American officials in the West Indies. Cuba is supposed to be an independent republic, but to me it seems quite American. I spoke English everywhere. I saw mail boxes bearing the legend 'U. S. Mail.' I found I could buy there everything American. I saw sugar that had been grown in Cuba, sent to the United States to be refined, and then brought back home to be sold.

Jamaica Prefers Our Money.

"In Santiago I could not pay my bills in Cuban money. I had to pay them with American money. Even in Kingston, Jamaica—and Jamaica is an English colony—I found merchants more eager to get American money for their goods than English. They preferred to receive one dollar to four shillings.

"It was in San José, Costa Rica, where the elections were about to be held for a new President. The chances seemed to be favoring Señor Fernandez. I have traveled much on the railways of Central America, and while they are all right for short runs, I would not like to make a long journey on any of them. What has impressed me very forcibly is the fact that not once have I been able to go anywhere in an American ship. Why have you not good steamers carrying your commerce to foreign countries? I came up here on a German boat. To a foreigner who knows what a rich nation you are, and that your people love the sea, and in the past have been skillful seamen, the fact that you have practically no merchant marine is almost unbelievable.

"Naturally, during my trip, I was interested in making inquiries as to the possibilities of business for Russia in those countries. There would be hardly any, it seems to me, except for a little coffee and fruit.

"I have no doubt that the United States will ultimately build a second canal from ocean to ocean, this one across Nicaragua, and for the United States alone. It has surprised me not a little to find that Europe has been so very quiet in the matter of the Nicaragua Canal, which the treaty with Nicaragua contemplates. It is my opinion that with two canals across the Isthmus the United States will have the whole of the American continent in its hands.

"I learned enough to know that the people down there don't like you. This feeling I discovered to be practically universal, the exception being a few politicians who were said to be interested in business with the United States. I talked with one prominent man who told me that while he admired American civilization and American institutions, he did not like the American people. Those persons say that if you get all their business in your hands, then their independence is gone. They realize that American money has been all-powerful in bringing about changes in their countries and their development, but nevertheless they hate the owners of this money.

Costa Rica Has 170 Soldiers.

"Of course, none of them is strong, and their armies are only for laughing at, as it seems to a foreigner. Now, in Costa Rica, while I liked the people very much, I must say that their army appealed to me only as a curiosity. There are 170 soldiers. They have no boots or shoes, and as a fighting machine the organization does not make an impression. They only have good orchestras. They spend $110,000 a year for their music, and this seems to be the most important concern of the country—that the bands shall be good. The bands or the orchestras play every day in the parks. As for big arms, there are about two or three guns, and nothing more.

"Then I found the countries on very bad terms with one another. I discovered that a Costa Rican would not speak to a Guatemalan, and vice versa. Then if you go from Panama to Colombia the authorities of the latter country will not let you leave your steamer, not through fear of infectious disease but because of politics alone.

"Yes, those countries are all very weak and small, but at the same time they are very rich. For its size, I should unhesitatingly pronounce Costa Rica the richest country in the world. There are no really poverty-stricken people there that I could discover. Every peasant seems to be a proprietor.

"What should be very interesting over here is the fact that there is in Russia a tremendous opportunity for American business. We are now experiencing a great boom. New enterprises are springing up. Englishmen have invested a great deal of money in development work, and are profiting largely. Americans now seem to be afraid of us. They are timid about doing business in our country. This is largely because you don't know us. Why, I do not know of more than two or three Americans who are engaged in business in St. Petersburg."

CITY BUYS POWER SITE.

Spooner, Wis., to Supply Manufacturers with Power at Cost.

To provide cheap light and power for its industries the city of Spooner, Wis., has bought forty acres of land nine miles away, on the Namekagen River, for a water power site. Here is one of the best remaining sources of power that are undeveloped in that State, and the purpose of the city officials is to supply the power from the plant at cost to manufacturers that locate in Spooner. According to one estimate, the charge may be as low as one cent per kilowatt. The entire enterprise will be handled as a city affair.

Municipal ownership already has a strong hold in Spooner. The local electric light plant is driven by water from the Yellow River, which flows through the city, and this is owned by the city. The supply of water for domestic purposes comes from a city-owned artesian well. Last of all the city possesses a small opera house of its own.

LOSS OF SUIT STIRS OMAHA.

Municipal Light Plant May Result from Fight with Corporation.

Incensed by the loss of a ten years' suit against the Omaha Electric Light & Power Company to prevent the corporation from selling current for power, citizens of the Nebraska city are seriously agitating a project for the establishment of a municipal plant.

It is not so much the failing to win the long litigation that has so disturbed Omaha as the fact that in confirming the rights of the company the United States Supreme Court asserted that these rights were perpetual.

The decision was the result of an ordinance, passed in 1884, requiring the company to conform to certain rules and regulations. Nothing was said in the ordinance about the life of the franchise. But the Supreme Court now decides that as the company accepted the terms of the City Council and has lived up to them it has gained a perpetual franchise, not only to sell electricity for lighting but also to sell power and heat.

The company's charter expired in 1894 and the city contended that it thereby lost its lighting franchise. The Supreme Court says this is not the case and that the company retains its rights, whether it obtains another charter or not. In this respect the decision has a wide sweep.

But while the Federal Court gave the company a perpetual franchise, it did not make it exclusive. And that is why the project of a city electric-lighting and power plant is receiving support in Omaha from classes of citizens that have hitherto opposed such an extension of the city's activities. Such a plant, it is held, could be built on the Platte or Loup River and the current brought into Omaha at a low cost.

Just a year ago Omaha took over its city water works in the face of great opposition. In the last year there has been a reduction to the consumer of 20 per cent. in the price of water and the Water Department has piled up nearly $200,000 in profits and surplus. The service is generally thought better than ever and for the first time the Missouri River water is made absolutely clear and sparkling. It is now proposed to use the profits of the municipal water works to help build a municipal electric light plant.

WOULD REBUILD MISSIONS.

The Marquis Inclan Will Ask Spain's King to Aid Restoration.

Restoration of the Spanish missions of California to something of their old grandeur is the dream of the Marquis Inclan, who recently visited the Golden State to pave the way for the participation of Spain in the Panama-Pacific Exposition of 1915.

Before going to California he asked that an itinerary be made up for him with a view to tracing the progress of the Spanish pioneers in the New World, especially the extension of missions.

When he reached Monterey he was much in the company of Father Mestres of the old San Carlos Church in that early California capital and to him gave his impressions of his journey through the States. He was greatly stirred by the abundant evidence of the self-sacrifice of the missionaries and the romance of their struggles to convert the heathen. But he was much disturbed as well over the condition into which some of the old missions had fallen, particularly those at Palo, Soledad, and some others that have been permitted to fall into decay.

As he went over documents and relics at Monterey, he expressed a purpose to Father Mestres to ask the King of Spain to take up the work of restoring the missions to the condition in which they were at the time of their greatest prosperity.

OKLAHOMA'S OIL GROWTH.

Production a Million Dollars a Week —Official Predicts Bigger Total.

Oklahoma's oil production now exceeds $1,000,000 a week, according to D. W. Ohern, Director of the State Geological Survey. About 2,000 oil companies are operating in the State and Ohern says there is no sign of a diminution of the output, although drilling has been somewhat checked by the shortage in supplies of casing.

A large amount of work in the oil and gas survey of the State has been mapped out for the Summer and Fall by Director Ohern, who is devoting particular attention to districts that are still undeveloped. He believes there are oil and gas fields yet to be found that are equal to those which are being worked. The United States Geological Survey is co-operating with the State authorities, having made a large allotment of money for the work.

In the last ten years Oklahoma has produced more than 270,000,000 barrels of oil. More than $125,000,000 has been spent in drilling and operating expenses and the producers and pipe line companies are now paying taxes on a valuation of more than $100,000,000 worth of property. In commercial importance the oil industry, with a production of $52,000,000 last year, ranks second in the State to agriculture. More than 25,000 men are employed in the production and marketing of oil.

GIRL RUNS NEBRASKA RANCH

Owns and Manages 10,000-Acre Domain and Makes Money.

Miss Helen Lynch is sole owner of a ten-thousand-acre ranch at Hyannis, Neb., on which are thousands of cattle and a hundred horses and cow ponies. The ranch is known as the "O. H.," and cattle bearing that brand can be seen in the live-stock markets of Omaha, Kansas City, and Chicago.

Ten years ago Miss Lynch was a student in the Omaha High School. Her father suddenly died, leaving the widow and four children little except a small ranch in the sand hills. Miss Lynch at once left school to take charge of the ranch. Aided by the many friends of her father, she prospered, and the ranch steadily grew from the small affair left by him to the ten-thousand-acre domain of to-day. Last year she cut 1,100 tons of hay, worth in the city about $15,000.

Miss Lynch is her own manager, buys her own cattle, and takes them to market. She is an expert horsewoman; she is in the saddle almost constantly, carrying a lariat at the pommel and a revolver in a holster. In rounding up and lassoing cattle she is almost as skillful as any of the cowboys on the ranch, and she is an excellent shot.

DE PEYSTER SEES SPEYER.

French Official Visits Banker to Discuss Frisco's Affairs.

Henri de Peyster of Paris, who is in this country to investigate the bankruptcy of the St. Louis & San Francisco and make a report on the outlook for the bondholders, paid his first visit in this connection to the financial district yesterday to meet James Speyer. It was Mr. Speyer's firm which handled the recent sale of Frisco general 5s, placed in France but a few weeks prior to the receivership proceedings.

Mr. de Peyster is Inspector for the Ministry of Finance, but he explained that he was not here in his official capacity as a representative of the French Government. He was appointed by the President of the French Republic at the request of the Association Nationale des Valeurs Mobilieres to look into Frisco affairs. He has a leave of absence of three months in which to carry out his mission, during which time he plans to visit Washington, to meet the Interstate Commerce Commission, and St. Louis, where he will talk with the receivers.

"The receivership caused a sensation on the other side, where we had bought another $3,000,000 of the general lien 5s just before the announcement," said Mr. de Peyster. "The foreign investors were misled by thinking that the bonds were obligations in the French sense, that is, part of a first mortgage guaranteed issue. So far I have not had opportunity to learn what can be done in the way of a reorganization."

DEATH LIST NOW 40 IN ALASKAN WRECK

Three New Jersey Passengers Among Those Saved When Pacific Steamer Sank.

ELEVEN IN JUNEAU HOSPITAL

Washington Cables Officials in Juneau to Make a Thorough Investigation of the Disaster.

SEATTLE, Aug. 19.—Thirty-two surviving passengers of the steamer State of California, which sank Sunday morning off the Alaskan Coast, are on the way to Seattle on the steamer Northwestern, and eleven are in a hospital in Juneau, with only one of them in danger. There are ten dead bodies of passengers on the Northwestern. Capt. Cann of the State of California will return to the scene of the wreck to-morrow.

The Pacific Coast Steamship Company checked up its passenger lists again to-day and now puts the number of dead at 40. Of these 33 are passengers and 7 members of the crew. The company will send three divers north by the steamer City of Seattle, sailing to-night, to make a search of the hulk and bring out the bodies.

D. C. Perkins, the first wireless operator, who was among the lost, was the son of a wealthy San Francisco family. He took up the study of wireless because of the opportunities it offered for adventure and a chance to see the world.

So quickly did the ship sink after she struck the rock that he did not have a chance to summon aid. but boats from a cannery put out from shore and helped the crew of the wrecked steamer to pick up the people floating among the wreckage. Two gas boats were obtained from the cannery and one was sent to Petersburg for aid, while the other headed toward Juneau, meeting the Jefferson, which proceeded to the scene of the wreck and picked up the survivors.

JUNEAU, Alaska, Aug. 19.—Among the eleven survivors of the wrecked State of California who are being treated in the hospital here are C. D. Shaw of Sydney, Australia, Alvin Vinnedge of Seattle, and Mrs. Belle Drake of The Des Moines Capital. Mrs. Drake is a sister of Mr. Vinnedge.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—A telegram received by relatives here last night from Haines, Alaska, gave word of the safety of Jack Terrass and sister, Clara, of Los Angeles, believed to have been lost on the State of California. The young people stopped over at Haines expecting to take the State of California on its return trip.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Investigation of the wreck of the State of California was ordered to-day by Acting Secretary of Commerce Sweet, who sent orders to officials in Juneau and Seattle of the Steamboat Inspection Service, the Bureau of Navigation, and the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

ORANGE RESIDENTS RESCUED.

Three New Jersey People Passengers on Wrecked Steamship.

Among those rescued from the State of California were Mrs. Henry N. Munn of Llewellyn Park, N. J., daughter-in-law of the late Orson D. Munn, publisher of The Scientific American, and Miss Jean Creveling of East Orange, N. J., Mrs. Munn's traveling companion. A telegram received from Sitka to-day from Mrs. Munn read: "Friends and I are safe."

Lawrnece Ferris, 22-year-old son of M. W. Ferris of 205 Scotland Road, South Orange, was also on board the State of California and late to-day a dispatch was received from Mrs. Charles Wait Hall, his sister, stating that his name appeared among the latest list of survivors.

When his mother received news of the disaster she became ill and is being attended by the family physician.

Mrs. Munn and Miss Creveling started a year ago on a trip around the world and expected to return home next month.

N. F. Brady Succeeds Father.

The late Anthony N. Brady has been succeeded as President of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Brooklyn by his son, Nicholas F. Brady, while another son, J. C. Brady, has been made a Director and Vice President to succeed his brother. It is expected that N. F. Brady will be elected to fill most of the other vacancies left by his father.

ELEVATED BIDS OPENED.

$884,000 Low Offer on Astoria, Woodside and Corona Section.

The Public Service Commission opened bids yesterday for the construction of Section I of Routes Nos. 36 and 37, known as the Astoria, Woodside and Corona Rapid Transit Railroad. These are the lines now partly under construction in Queens Borough, beginning at the Queensboro Bridge and running respectively through Ditmars Avenue, Astoria, and through Queens Boulevard and Roosevelt Avenue to Sycamore Avenue, Corona. Both are to be elevated railroads and are to be jointly operated by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the New York Municipal Railway Corporation. These are the bids received and the amounts as unofficially estimated by the representatives of the different companies:

Snare & Triest Co., $884,000; Thomas J. Buckley Engineering Co., $894,000; Oscar Daniels Company, $991,093; Terry & Tench Co., $992,000; Cooper & Evans, $1,000,000; Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins Corporation, $1,000,000; E. E. Smith Contracting Company, $1,013,201; Richard Carvel, $1,030,000; Mason & Hanger Co., $1,036,000; Degnon Contracting Co., $1,107,000.

The Commission also held hearings yesterday on the form of contracts for the construction of the Jerome Avenue branch of the Lexington Avenue Subway, the remainder of the Pelham Bay Park branch of the Lexington Avenue line and the White Plains Road line which will be a branch of the Lenox Avenue division of the present subway. All these lines will be elevated railroads, with the exception of a part of the Pelham Bay Park branch, which is a subway from 130th Street to a point in Whitlock Avenue between Aldus and Bancroft Streets, and an elevated road from that point to the terminal in Pelham Bay Park.

"ITALIAN SILK" IN COURT.

Use of Term Upheld, Although Silk Does Not Come from Italy.

Supreme Court Justice Lehman, in a decision handed down yesterday in the case of Julius Kayser & Co. against the Italian Silk Underwear Company, ruled that although neither party to the suit was using raw silk from Italy and that, therefore, the term "Italian silk" in no way described the origin of the goods of either party, the plaintiff should have an injunction against the defendant with costs.

The Kayser Company alleged that in 1898 they began the manufacture of "Italian silk underwear," and in 1907 registered this term as part of their trade mark. In 1911 the defendant company was organized, selling under this name underwear, woven in the same manner as the "Italian silk underwear," but of inferior quality, according to the plaintiff.

As to the respective rights of the parties to the suit to use the word "Italian," Justice Lehman says:

> The term "Italian silk" as applied to these goods, is in no way indicative of their place of origin. The similarity of the packing of the goods is too great to leave any doubt in my mind that the defendant deliberately adopted this name and this form of packing for the purpose of gaining some advantage from the plaintiff's reputation. The plaintiff and the public are, therefore, entitled to the protection demanded unless the plaintiff is itself attempting to deceive the public, or unless the plaintiff has attempted without legal right to appropriate to its use a geographical or descriptive term which is not subject to individual appropriation. It is well established that a geographical or descriptive term cannot be appropriated to the exclusion of the rest of the world. Each person has a right to describe his wares, and no person by prior appropriation of a term descriptive of the quality or origin of his goods can deprive competitors of the right to use the same description if applicable to their goods.
> In this case neither party is using raw silk from Italy. Nevertheless, I feel that the term "Italian silk," as applied to the plaintiff's goods is not intended to, nor does it, lead the public to believe that the plaintiff's goods are manufactured from the most expensive kind of raw silk. There is absolutely no proof that these terms are known to the general public, but only to those who deal in raw silk. The word "Italian," though of geographical origin, is, in my opinion, in this case used in a purely fanciful way.

Justice Lehman refused to grant the order for an accounting asked for in connection with the injunction.

Sues Hospital for Husband's Death.

Mrs. Martha Freese bagan a twenty-thousand-dollar suit against Flower Hospital yesterday in the Supreme Court for damages for the death of her husband, Herman Freese. Freese was killed, his widow said, by a Flower Hospital ambulance driven on the wrong side of Fifty-fifth Street, at First Avenue, by a "careless, reckless, incompetent unlicensed chauffeur," who, she said, was "addicted to the excessive use of intoxicating liquors during the hours of his employment and during other times."

Crude Oil Highest in Nine Years.

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Aug. 19.—An advance of five cents in the price of mid-continent crude oil to $1.03 was announced to-day. This is the highest price paid in nine years.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

The Daily Consular and Trade Report notes the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding them may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, care of the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C., giving the number of the item referred to:

11,519. LAMPBLACK, GAS BLACK, AND SPECIALTIES.—An American consular officer reports that a well-known firm of dealers in crude drugs, chemical products, and similar lines desires to get in touch with American producers of lampblack and gas black, and technical and pharmacetutical specialties.

11,520. AUTOMOBILES AND MOTOR BOATS.—Two foreign business men of experience, who claim to be able to give satisfactory references and both speak English, French, Dutch, and German, one of whom was engaged in business in the United States for some years, desire to associate themselves together to represent American manufacturers of low-priced automobiles and motor boats. They inform a consular officer that they will establish headquarters and cover France, Belgium, and Holland.

11,521. CANNED SALMON.—A report from an American consular officer in the United Kingdom states that a local business house wants an agency for good packers of Fraser River and Alaska canned salmon.

11,522. SHOES, LEATHER, AND NOVELTIES.—A manufacturers' agent, whose business connections extend throughout the Australian States and New Zealand, informs an American Consul that he desires to represent American manufacturers in Australia. The lines he can best handle are medium and best grades of women's and men's shoes, (up-to-date shapes are necessary,) glace kid and box calf leather, and anything in the way of useful novelties. To any one wishing to introduce the aforementioned goods in that part of the world the inquirer is prepared to give personal representation.

11,523. RUBBER GOODS.—An American consular officer in France reports that a business man in his district desires to enter into relations with American manufacturers of rubber goods, with a view to obtaining their agency for the country.

11,524. ENVELOPE-MAKING MACHINERY.—A business firm in Germany which sells printing, box-making, envelope, and all kinds of machinery that have to do with the paper industry, informs an American Consul that it is anxious to get into communication with American manufacturers of envelope-making machinery as soon as possible. This firm has been organized for over fourteen years, and is said to have excellent connections with the entire trade. It also has its own repair shop, where machinery is repaired and built over. It desires to find a manufacturer who is able to deliver a first-class envelope-making machine and who is able to turn out such machines rapidly. References are furnished.

11,525. OAK, WALNUT, AND OTHER WOODS.—A report from an American consular officer in a large European city states that a local lumber dealer desires to enter into business relations with American lumber exporters, with a view to representing them in that country. He can give a large order for walnut and oak, but also requires other woods.

11,526. AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS AND MACHINERY.—An American consular officer has forwarded a copy of a letter from a business man calling attention to the increasing demand for agricultural implements and machinery in the Levant. In his opinion there is a good opening for manufacturers of plows, cultivators, harvesting and thrashing machines, cotton planters, fertilizers, distributers, cotton gins, &c., who can combine some business in association for the export trade in the Levant by establishing a branch office or appointing a representative. Copy of the letter in question will be mailed to interested manufacturers by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

11,527. MACHINERY, FURNITURE, MOTOR CARS, OILS, AND AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.—According to the report of an American consular officer, there are opportunities in his district for the sale of cast-iron water tubes, oils, agricultural implements, machinery, typewriters, iron safes, office furniture, and motor cars. A local business man desires to hear from American manufacturers of the foregoing articles. His idea is to exhibit these goods and appoint agents in other important cities. He would give security for the value of the goods placed in his hands, pay the customs duties and other expenses, hire of premises, traveling, advertising, &c. These are the conditions which other foreign manufacturers grant to their dealers in the city in question.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

The Musee Commercial has recently been established in Pointe-a-Pitre, Guadeloupe, aided by a Government subsidy. The object is to develop the commerce of the port. Among the activities of the organization will be furnishing information and maintaining a file of catalogues. American manufacturers seeking to introduce their products in Guadeloupe would do well to contribute to this file.

A ten-story building, nine stories above the sidewalk and one below, is the project under consideration by Honolulu Masons. It is proposed to erect the skyscraper on the present site of the Masonic Lodge Building. The structure as designed calls for the use of Tenino sandstone as the material. The cost will be between $250,000 and $300,000.

A daily motor car service has been inaugurated between Huelva, in Seville Consular district, and Ayamonte, a town on the Portuguese frontier, whence connections may be had for the southern railways of Portugal.

Two experts in the employ of the Kwanto Artificial Fertilizer Manufacturing Company of Tokio have been touring South Manchuria and the northern coast of Shantung Province with a view to the possible introduction of artificial fertilizers.

Sulzberger & Sons to Retire Stock.

Sulzberger & Sons Company has notified holders of its preferred stock that it has established a sinking fund for the retirement of this issue. On or before Jan. 31 in 1914, 1915, and 1916 1 per cent. is to be retired and from 1917 on 2 per cent. each year. The sinking fund is to be used for the purchase of the shares at not exceeding 125 and accrued dividends. New stock certificates are to be issued in exchange for those now outstanding.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Free Entry Sustained on Paper, Pulp, and Scientific Instruments.

In sustaining a protest by the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Mills, Ltd., the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday held that wood pulp and news print paper imported from Canada were duty free under the reciprocity treaty with the Dominion when it was shown that by special grant or agreement of the Canadian Government all restrictions had been removed against the exportation of such wood pulp or paper manufactured from wood cut on Crown lands.

The Collector at Marquette, Mich., assessed the ground wood pulp 1 cent a pound under Paragraph 406, Tariff act of 1909, as wood pulp manufactured from wood cut on Crown land, and the same on the paper under Paragraph 409. The importers asserted that no export duty or other charge was laid on the merchandise by the Canadian Government, and proved to the satisfaction of the board that under a special agreement between the Dominion authorities and the protestant, the latter's products are exempted from the usual tax accruing on wood pulp and paper made from wood taken from Crown lands. Judge Somerville decided.

The New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital won free entry for instruments of various kinds. Collector Mitchel classified them as manufactures of metal, and exacted 45 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 199. The protest took the ground that the instruments were imported by a public institution under Paragraph 650, as scientific apparatus. Judge Hay decided.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

A retailer in Concordia, Kan., has invented a novelty in shoe fasteners which he says has proved practical after severe wearing tests. Six hooks are attached to the quarter and engage with a chain which is sewed at three-quarter-inch intervals to the inside of the button fly. The sewing is so located as not to interfere with the hooks. The cost of this new shoe fastening is said to be less than that of either buttons or laces. It is easily varied to fit, and long wear does not produce an untidy effect.

Another type of the Athena ribbon laced sandal effect is now being shown. From the eyelets in the front the ribbon is carried to a pair of eyelets in the upward extension of the rear of the quarter. The tendency is toward narrow satin ribbons, in order that the ankles may not look clumsy.

The demand for suit coats is now turning to the short lengths. Early orders were placed for thirty-six-inch lengths, but designers saw that they were not suitable for wear with the new skirts, which have the greatest width across the lower part of the hips. Many of the shorter model coats have considerable length at the back. Others reach only a trifle below the waistline.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Favor Co-operation by Creditors.

Commerial organizations are realizing more and more the good that can be accomplished if creditors will co-operate to assist an honest debtor. An interesting case of this kind, in which the National Jewelers' Board of Trade participated, occurred recently. A retail jeweler in the Middle West called at the office of one of his largest creditors, a Western jobber, and said that he was unable to meet his maturing obligations. The creditor, instead of trying to obtain a preference, took the retailer to the office of the board, where his affairs were examined thoroughly. Upon the results obtained the creditors recommended that he be granted an extension under the supervision of the board. This extension was granted, the business was saved and all of the creditors ultimately received 100 cents on the dollar. This instance is said to be only one of many in which full settlement has been obtained from creditors through their co-operation and the efforts of the board.

Where the "Direck" Were.

To those who seldom find anything humorous in business the following letter, received by a prominent New Jersey firm manufacturing wall coverings, may prove enlightening:

> Dear Fren: I get the fillum wood which i by from you airite, but why the dickens you no put in direckshuns. Whats the use the fillum wood when she doan have no direck. i loose to me my customer sure ting you doan treat me rite, is my money no so good to you as the other peoples. i wate 11 days and my customer he holler for my pape hang like the deuce, he want rent the store and no finish no rent. You doan sen no direck pretty quick i sen her back and i order some fillum wood from Ula Bros. Good-by. Your fren,
> ANTONIO S. DUTRO.
> P. S.—Sins i rite i fin the darn direck in the box. Excuse to me.

Automat Patents Valid.

Another gun in the fight to determine the right to use automatic attachments to embroidery machines other than the Groebli in this country has been fired by the Loeb & Schoenfeld Company, holders of the American patent rights to the automat mentioned. A suit has been pending for some time against a local firm which has been using an automatic attachment alleged to infringe the Groebli patents. The Loeb & Schoenfeld Company holds twenty-four patents on the Groebli automat, dating from November, 1897, to June, 1911. Rumors current in the embroidery trade earlier in the year that some of these patents would shortly expire doubtless arose from the decision of the Loeb & Schoenfeld Company about that time to offer the Groebli automat for general sale. The status of these patents is now made known, however, in a notice just issued to the trade by the Loeb & Schoenfeld Company, in which they say they are advised that their patents are valid and that suits will be brought against all persons using machines infringing the patents and against those who have purchased machines from manufacturers not licensed by them.

Better Buying Looked For.

The report in yesterday's TIMES to the effect that the market for commercial paper had grown active aroused considerable optimism in local trade circles. The report came as a surprise to several prominent merchants, who, although they had seen better buying of late than was generally anticipated a month or two ago, had not known that the banks were buying paper to the extent indicated. The opinion prevailed generally among these merchants, however, that with the buying firms getting funds to replenish their depleted stocks, business would continue active during the remainedr of this month and the first two weeks in September, despite the disturbing influence of tariff revision.

Change That Hit Scale Maker.

To show how unjust many retailers are in making claims and returning goods to wholesalers, a local dealer relates his experience soon after the parcel post was put into operation. This dealer made scales, marked with the different zones and price rates, and constructed to weigh packages up to the eleven-pound limit. They sold readily throughout the country, but presently retailers began returning those remaining unsold. When the weight limit was increased to eleven pounds one retailer returned three dozen, his entire purchase. In all, about three hundred of the scales were returned, but the house refused to accept them, and pointed out to each customer that it was not the firm's fault that the weight limit had been increased.

100,000 Smokers Sign Petitions.

The petitions that special cars for smokers be operated on both surface and elevated lines in this city, placed recently in United Cigar stores, is meeting with approval among their customers. According to an official of the company the downtown stores turned in from fifteen to twenty-five sheets on the first day, each containing fifteen signatures. As nearly as could be reckoned more than 100,000 signatures had already been received. Regarding the price-cutting war in Boston with the Liggett drug stores, the same official said that one of the Vice Presidents of the company was there now to look after its interests, and that some reductions had been made to meet the cuts made in the Liggett stores.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

OUTLET DEPARTMENT STORE, INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Outlet Department Store, a New York corporation, at Third Avenue, corner of 107th Street. Judge Mayer appointed Malcolm Sundheimer receiver. Liabilities are said to be $15,000, and assets $5,000.

TERMINAL CONTRACT NO. 27.

For constructing a dockwall and connecting channel for a Barge canal terminal at Frankfort.

Contract plans, Sheets 1-3.

Plans may be seen and detailed specifications, engineer's estimate of quantities, proposal blanks, form of contract and bonds required and other information for proposers may be had at the office of the Superintendent of Public Works at Albany, N. Y., and at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Middle Division at Syracuse, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Western Division at Rochester, N. Y., and at the canal office, Spaulding's Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y.

Copies of detailed plans or drawings may be obtained from the State Engineer and Surveyor at Albany, N. Y., upon payment to him of the cost of producing them.

Monthly estimates will be paid of ninety per centum (90 per cent.) of the work done at the contract price. Every proposal for said work must be accompanied by a money deposit in the form of a draft or certified check upon some good banking institution in the city of Albany or the city of New York, issued by a national or state bank or trust company, in good credit within the State and payable at sight to the Superintendent of Public Works for five per centum (5 per cent.) of the amount of the proposal.

The person whose proposal shall be accepted will be required to execute a contract and furnish bonds within ten days from the date of notice of award delivered to him or them in person or mailed to the address given in the proposal.

Upon execution of the contract and approval of bonds, the certified check or draft will be returned to the proposer unless the same shall have been presented for collection prior to such time, in which case the amount of the deposit will be refunded by the Superintendent of Public Works.

The deposits of bidders other than the one to whom the award of contract shall be made will be returned immediately after the award has been made.

The amount of bond required for faithful performance will be ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, and an additional bond, known as the labor bond, in the sum of ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, will be required as security that the contractor will pay in full at least once in each month all laborers employed by him upon the work specified to be done in the contract.

In the event that more than one surety company is offered as surety on said bonds, co-insurance only will be accepted.

Each proposal must be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Works, Albany, N. Y., and must be endorsed on the envelope with the name of the construction for which the proposal is made.

Award, if made, will be made to the person or persons whose proposal shall be lowest in cost to the State for doing the work, and which shall comply with all provisions required to render it formal. Before any award shall be made the lowest bidder will be required to satisfy the Superintendent of Public Works of his ability to provide suitable equipment and materials for the proper performance of the work.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and readvertise and award the contract in the regular manner if, in the judgment of the undersigned, the interests of the State will be enhanced thereby.

DUNCAN W. PECK,
Superintendent of Public Works.

Investing For Income

When you invest for income you naturally want, over and above everything else, strong security and prompt interest payment. An investment possessing these qualities to a marked degree will inspire your confidence as to permanency of value, thus permitting you to rest easy in mind as to the safety of your principal and interest. There are to-day many issues of conservative investment bonds yielding around 5%, and if you have funds to invest for income, we shall be pleased to make you appropriate suggestions.

Send for Circular 1138 "Diversified Investments."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices Break on Mexican News, Then Recover on Light Trading.

Much more than the loss which was suffered on the Stock Exchange might have been expected on the news from Mexico which greeted the market yesterday morning. There were declines in the first half-hour running to two points and in one or two exceptional cases to more than that following a sharp recession which had occurred in the London market, but at the lower prices there was no pressure at all of stocks. Though trading remained dull for the rest of the session quotations crept upward during the afternoon. In most cases about half of the morning's loss was recovered although in a few stocks more directly concerned with the Mexican news the recovery was much less substantial. The action of the market after the first shock of the early selling was no doubt influenced by the fact that the later advices from Washington put a more hopeful aspect on the situation, serious as it was, than that which was presented in the morning's dispatches from Mexico City. Although the information which came to hand during the day did not give anything like complete reassurance it caused financial judgment to be reserved regarding the ultimate results of the events which led up to yesterday's news.

That was one aspect of the recovery which followed the break. Another, and one to which considerable importance attached in the eyes of traders, was that there was sufficient inherent strength in the market to cause it to rebound rather easily from the unexpected pressure to which it had been subjected. The first rush of selling was not followed up by any more deliberate liquidation and in a number of instances it took but very few purchases to bring fairly substantial recoveries. The crop news was a little better in that further reports of rain came from parts of the drought stricken area. This news was of some avail although it was recognized that much of the damage which has been done is irreparable. The more favorable weather advices to the extent to which they were effective were supplemented in their quality of stock market influence by a reaction in grain prices.

General business must to a considerable extent be affected by the damage to the crops, especially in the sectons where that damage has occurred, but in the absence of any authentic measure of the harm which has been done by the drought there is a disposition in the financial community to reserve judgment as to the extent to which trade will be influenced this Fall. This disposition, moreover, is emphasized by the uncertainty regarding the compensating influence of the fact that the wheat harvest has been proving so eminently satisfactory. Among the larger matters which were arousing interest yesterday little attention was paid to the Washington dispatches telling of the introduction in Congress of a resolution calling for an investigation of the plan for the separation of the Southern Pacific from the Union Pacific. Allegations advanced in support of this resolution recalled similar allegations made under circumstances which made them notorious. The plan which is being followed in the Union Pacific case had the formal approval of the court under whose supervision the decree of the Supreme Court was carried out. That would appear to give it finality before the courts even though not in Congress. Recollection of the outcome of similar efforts which were made in the American Tobacco case caused yesterday's proposal regarding the Union Pacific case to be dismissed lightly.

There were some incidents of the money market which were worthy of note in connection with the recent tendency toward a freer money market position. Loans running until December were made in considerable amount at 5 per cent. by one of the international banking houses, and though the line was clearly drawn between December maturities and over-the-year loans there was a disposition shown to profit by the rates still quoted for the longer maturities. That these are regarded as attractive by a certain number of lenders is indicated by the fact that the last few days some concessions had been made in the rates on loans running until February compared with those running just over the end of the year. Call money was loaned under 2 per cent. yesterday. It is not generally expected that the market will escape some upturn from present rates when the Fall demand for money becomes more pronounced, but there is fortunately absent from the market now the feeling of concern which lately was interfering with the normal working of the credit market.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 1¾@2¼ per cent., with the last loan at 2 per cent. The renewal rate was 2¼ per cent.

Time money rates were 3½@4 per cent. for sixty days, 4¼@4¾ per cent. for ninety days, 4¾@5 per cent. for four months, 5½@5¾ per cent. for five months, and 5¼@5½ per cent. for six months.

Commercial paper was quoted at 6 per cent. for the best names.

Clearing House exchanges, $272,905,117; balances, $12,968,556; Sub-Treasury debit balance, $547,291.

The local banks lost $2,429,000 on their Sub-Treasury transactions this week.

FOREIGN RATES.

Discount rates abroad yesterday were: London, 3⅝@3¾ per cent. for short bills, and 3 13-16 per cent. for three months' bills. Paris, 3¾ per cent., and Berlin, 5 per cent. Money was 4½ per cent. in Berlin, and 2¾ per cent. in London. The Berlin check rate on London was 20 marks 45½ pfennigs. The Paris check rate on London was 25 francs 24½ centimes.

Foreign exchange rates at the points noted were quoted as follows:

CABLE AND SIGHT RATES.

London—Cable, high, $4.8685; low, $4.86¾; last, $4.8685; demand, high, $4.8655; low, $4.8640; last, $4.8655.

Paris—Cable, 5.18¾ plus 3-64; check, 5.18¾ less 1-32.

Berlin—Cable, 95¼ less 1-32; check, 95⅛.

Switzerland—Cable, 5.18¾ less 1-16; check, 5.19⅜ less 1-32.

Holland—Cable, 40.12; check, 40.08.

SIXTY AND NINETY DAY BILLS.

London—Bankers', sixty days, $4.83; ninety days, $4.81¼.

London—Commercial, sixty days, $4.82¾; ninety days, $4.81.

Paris—Commercial, sixty days, 5.22½ less 1-16; ninety days, 5.24⅜ plus 1-32.

Berlin—Commercial, sixty days, 94⅛; ninety days, 93¾.

DOMESTIC MONEY RATES.

SILVER QUOTATIONS.

Bar silver was unchanged in London, at 27¼d, and unchanged in New York, at 59⅛c.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Where Timetables Are Useless.

Among the economies recently effected by the National Railways of Mexico has been the elimination of the familiar folders showing maps of the system and the time of departure of trains. The last timetable issued by the Mexican company was in April. An edition printed in English was distributed throughout the United States for the benefit of Americans who might contemplate a trip through the southern republic. Gradually these folders are being withdrawn. There are two reasons for the company's decision to omit further issues for a while. In the first place, the movement of Americans has been from Mexico to the United States almost entirely in recent months, and in the second place it is hard to make up a timetable when even the officers of the company do not know to-day what trains will be run to-morrow. Those who want to ride on the company's trains are advised to put in an early appearance at the station nearest them and to take the first train going in their direction.

More Government Depositaries.

The unwillingness shown by some of the leading banks in New York City, and in a very few instances in other cities, to retain Government deposits since the decision to charge them 2 per cent. interest has not extended to the great majority of national institutions. With the announcement by the Secretary of the Treasury of his intention to increase by $50,000,000 the amount of Government funds on deposit with the banks and to collect interest on deposits the number of depositaries has more than doubled. From 440 on Feb. 1 the number has already increased to 900, and further applications are pouring in. The action of the Secretary in ordering that all drafts on Government funds be drawn upon the Treasury necessitated an increase in the number of depositary banks. The tendency of pension and other checks to accumulate at this centre was partly responsible for the surrender of Government money by some of the local banks. One of the leading institutions, which would have been compelled to pay interest on an average sum of about $500,000 had it remained a depositary, frequently found the Government a debtor to a large amount at the close of a day's business by reason of the receipt of thousands of checks from interior banks.

Gould Merger Delayed.

B. F. Bush, President of the Missouri Pacific-Iron Mountain, the Denver & Rio Grande, and Western Pacific, said yesterday that no steps were under way at this time for the proposed merger of those lines. It is planned to consolidate them ultimately to obtain greater efficiency of operation at a reduced cost, but the security markets are not such as to encourage the flotation of a new issue, which would be necessary in connection with the consolidation.

A Favorable Corn Estimate.

Mr. Bush, whose biggest road runs through the corn belt, says that from what he has seen of the burned areas and from the opinions of men well qualified to speak on the subject this year's corn crop, from the present outlook, will run within 300,000,000 bushels of last year's. The Government's report, made up as of Aug. 1, estimated that the drought had ruined 300,000,000 bushels since July 1, and that the year's crop would be 452,000,000 bushels under that of last year. Oscar K. Lyle, a crop expert, in whose predictions many investors believe, estimates the five leading corn States alone will produce 536,000,000 bushels less corn than last year.

The Passing of a Landmark.

When the work of dismantling the Assay Office begins the financial community will recall other associations of the ancient building besides those of an historic character which appeal most strongly to the imagination. It will be recalled as one item that it was the first home of the Bank of the United States in New York. The promised destruction of the old building within a short time to make place for a new assay office caused bankers to comment yesterday on the fact that final material evidence of earliest Government financial operations is scheduled to pass away at a time when steps are being taken to remold our financial system. Those who remembered their history drew parallels between the experiment undertaken by Alexander Hamilton and the efforts now being made by the Administration to shape in a new fashion the vast banking machine which grew out of the modest Government institution with a capital of $10,000,000. They recalled what the records had to say of the difficulty Hamilton experienced in persuading Congress to sanction the plan, and compared the monetary troubles of that day with the present, much to the advantage of modern conditions it is needless to say.

Studying the Weather.

At times when Wall Street's attention is focused on the weather and the crops to the exclusion, almost, of many weighty matters likely to affect the future conduct of business and trade, the weekly Government weather reports are examined with far less care than in ordinary seasons. The apparent anomaly of this statement is explained by making reference to the many daily reports from all parts of the country which are sent into the Street by private investigators. So complete is the system employed by grain and cotton brokerage houses and the banks that the Government figures of precipitation and temperatures are used more as a standard of comparison than as a source of information. When the news tickers send out the regular Tuesday statement from Washington followers of the stock and commodities markets know in advance what the report will say.

Trading in Stocks Contracts.

From an opening hour of 120,000 shares yesterday's stock market contracted steadily until in the fourth hour of the session less than 9,500 shares changed hands. From 1:45 o'clock to 2:45 o'clock 3,340 shares were traded in, a total smaller than many single sales of steel on other days of the past week.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

General Weakness in London—Mexican Situation Has Bad Effect on Markets.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Wednesday, Aug. 20.—The Times says in its City article to-day:

"The money market was rather more active yesterday, owing to the payment of large amounts for home railway dividends, but the rates for daily money and fixtures were unaltered.

"Discount quotations were fully maintained, a rumor being current that the Bank of England's share of the week's South African bar gold would be less than expected. The Bank bought a few bars and received £90,000 in sovereigns from Brazil.

"The stock markets were heavy and prices showed an almost general decline at the close. The markets opened dull, owing to intensification of the disappointment at the course of events in the Balkans and in Mexico and to reports of labor troubles, which had an unfavorable effect on home railway stocks. Consols were weakened by the aspect of politics, but other high-class issues were kept steady by investment buying.

"The American department was depressed during most of the day, but showed a slight tendency to recover in the street dealings on the report that the Mexican situation was not quite so hopeless as the morning's news appeared to indicate.

"Business has not been really active since the half year commenced, and very little selling is sufficient to depress prices."

PARIS, Aug. 19.—The Bourse opened depressed and closed quiet to-day.

Mexican issues were weak on the reported rejection of President Wilson's mediation plan.

Three per cent. rentes, 88 francs 50 centimes for the account.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—The Boerse was dull and lower to-day.

One of the depressing factors was fear of trouble between the United States and Mexico.

FARNSWORTH TO CHICAGO.

He Leaves To-day for Bankers' Currency Conference.

Col. Fred E. Farnsworth, Secretary of the American Bankers' Association and of its Currency Commission, will leave for Chicago this afternoon in order to be on hand for the reception of more than 200 bankers from all parts of the United States who have been summoned by the Currency Commission for a discussion of the proposed new currency laws. He will be followed to-morrow by A. Barton Hepburn, Chairman of the commission; Joseph T. Talbert, one of the sixteen members, and William Woodward. Mr. Woodward, who is President of the Hanover National Bank, is going in lieu of Francis L. Hine, President of the Clearing House. Mr. Hine is sailing for Europe for a vacation.

The Currency Commission extended invitations to the heads of the 191 clearing houses and the forty-seven State banking associations of the country. Representing the New York State organization will be its President, R. H. Treman of the Tompkins National Bank of Ithaca, and Vice President J. H. Perkins, head of the National Commercial Bank of Albany.

While no replies to the invitation were requested, Col. Farnsworth said yesterday that he had heard from prominent bankers in every section of the country that they were going to be present at a meeting which is expected to have a strong influence in shaping the new currency bill. In point of numbers the New York representation will be no stronger than that from any other section of the country, and it is expected that the views of the gathering will fairly reflect the attitude of the country's bankers regarding the Owens-Glass measure.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Business was active and the market broad on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. The sales totaled 47,297 shares, with forty-two different issues represented. The reported defiant attitude of President Huerta of Mexico and fresh disquieting advices from abroad regarding the Turkish-Bulgarian situation were responsible for selling which carried prices down sharply in the early dealings. A steadier tone developed in the later trading because of statements of a reassuring character regarding Mexico made at Washington. The early downward movement started with the opening of business at 9:30 o'clock, when on the call losses compared with Monday's closing quotations were registered.

Consolidated Suspends 2 Members.

In the enforcement of discipline on the Consolidated Stock Exchange two members were suspended from trading yesterday. B. Newcomb was barred from the floor for two months and John Sohns for two weeks. It is understood that one suspension was for selling puts and calls for a firm not a member of the Exchange and the other for skylarking.

Safe and Saleable and 7%

Very rarely can obligations of America's great railroad systems be obtained at a price to yield 7%. CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC DEBENTURES, DUE 1932, furnish this opportunity.

They are selling on the New York Stock Exchange at about 80 and interest, yielding over 7%, and the decline from the original offering price of 97½ in 1912 is due exclusively to general liquidation.

Care Must Be Exercised When investigating the merits and the possibilities of Public Utility Securities. The investor should not be anxious for too large a yield, at the sacrifice of safety and marketability. There are many other features surrounding securities of this class. As Engineers and Bankers of a large number of successful Public Service Corporations, our experience and knowledge is valuable to you. Advise with us on your next investment of surplus funds.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Cotton prices reached new high levels for the movement yesterday, and closed near the top with net gains on the day extending from 15 to 24 points. Heavy buying resulted from unfavorable weather reports in the Southwest. Wheat was quiet and weak, and corn declined from ⅝ to ⅞ cents a bushel. Provision quotations were firm, and cottonseed oil moved in irregular fashion.

WHEAT.

Stocks of wheat continued to accumulate yesterday both here and in Europe, the European visible showing a gain of 4,216,000 bushels for the week, compared with a loss last year of 800,000 bushels for the corresponding week. According to Bradstreet's, stocks in America and in and afloat for Europe increased 7,039,000 bushels, bringing the total to 123,055,000 bushels, compared with 96,252,000 bushels last year, when there was a decrease for the week of 1,072,000 bushels. Most of the foreign markets were somewhat lower, but after early declines of ⅛c to ¼c the wheat market rallied, and during the greater part of the day showed a steady undertone, with comparatively little selling pressure.

The developments in corn again played an important part in the wheat market, and when corn began to weaken wheat longs sold more freely, and prices declined 1c a bushel from the top, and, after again rallying, sold at a net loss of ½c to ¾c. The last preliminary official report for sixty-three Governments gave the Spring wheat crop at 509,000,000 bushels, while the Winter wheat crop was estimated in June at 272,000,000 bushels.

In the local cash market No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at 94@94¼c, cost, insurance, and freight, export basis, and 95½c, free on board; No. 1 Northern Spring, 98¾c, free on board

CORN.

The corn market was active and feverish, and after quick price changes within a range of 1⅛ to 2c a bushel the market closed at a net loss of ⅝ to ⅞c. It was apparent that sentiment was less inclined to favor the buying side owing to recent rains and predictions of generally unsettled weather over the West.

Bradstreet's visible supply showed a decrease of 1,827,000 bushels for the week, compared with a decrease of 735,000 last year. In the local cash market export corn was quoted at 83½c, nominal, free on board.

OATS.

There was a moderately active trade in oats and, after an early advance of ⅛ to ¼c for the active positions, prices eased off, with corn closing at a net decline of ½c. Receipts were liberal, and Bradstreet's visible supply increased 3,228,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 209,000 last year.

The local cash market was easy; standard white quoted at 47½ to 48c; No. 2, 48½c; No. 3, 46½ to 47c; No. 4, 46 to 46½c; ordinary clipped white, 46½ to 48c; fancy clipped white, 48½ to 49½c, all elevator.

COTTON.

Unfavorable weather and crop reports caused a sharp advance in the cotton market yesterday. Monday's losses were not only recovered, but prices made new high ground for the movement and closed steady within a point or two of the best, at a net gain of from 15 to 24 points. It looked as if the scattering precipitation reported in the Southwest over Sunday had been followed by renewed clear, warm weather, according to the reports received yesterday morning, while the Western belt forecast was generally fair, and the weekly report of the Weather Bureau said that rain was still needed over most of Texas and Oklahoma.

The market opened steady at an advance of 9 to 10 points, and sold 14 to 16 points net higher during the early trading, and firmed up again during the afternoon, with October contracts selling at 11.29 and December at 11.25, or 22 to 25 points net higher, and 4 to 7 points above the high level reached on Saturday.

Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were 1-16c higher to ¼c lower; generally unchanged. Further withdrawals from the local stock leave the certificated supply here under 17,000 bales, and up to the present time but little cotton is arriving from the South.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was only moderately active and price changes were somewhat irregular. The demand was not aggressive and late in the day the whole list developed heaviness, with final prices 3 points higher to 5 points net lower.

The range of contract prices in the local market to-day was as follows:

COFFEE.

Operations were largely exchanges from near to distant positions, particularly from September to December, at 30 points. Out of total sales of 111,250 bags, 57,500 were switches. The outset was unchanged to 4 points lower, owing to moderate selling on large receipts in Brazil. Prices worked up 3 to 9 points, but just at the close there was a moderate reaction under profit taking, and final prices were net unchanged to 4 points higher. Havre was ¼@½ franc higher, and Hamburg closed unchanged to ½ pfennig lower. In Brazil an easier feeling prevailed, the Rio spot market being weak at 73 reis decline, while Santos spots were 50 reis lower, and futures showed a loss of 25@100 reis. Receipts at these points were 99,000 bags, against 72,000 last week and 71,000 last year. Interior receipts were also liberal, but cost and freight offers remained practically unchanged. The weather in Brazil was favorable, with temperatures normal.

Spot coffee unchanged; Rio 7s, 9¼c.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products was again firmer with a fairly active demand from commission houses, prompted by moderate receipts of live hogs and a firmer tone to the hog market. There was quite a sharp reaction from the early advance, but at the close the market was again firm. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 12,000, estimated for Wednesday $28,000; Kansas City received 11,000 and Omaha 5,800.

Price Levels and Present Investing Opportunity

Purchasers of standard securities do not need to know when prices will go up. All that is necessary is confidence that they will go up.

If you invest money in stocks at current prices, current dividend rates will yield you an income remarkable for the high class of the securities.

You do not have to wait until you have accumulated enough money to pay for standard securities in full. You can invest on the Partial Payment Plan.

You can take advantage of present opportunity by buying now with an initial deposit. You pay the same price as the man who buys outright.

You may buy 5 shares, 33 shares, or 102 shares—ANY AMOUNT to suit YOUR INDIVIDUAL INCOME.

You can buy bonds, too, on the Partial Payment Plan. Send for Booklet 13—Partial Payment Plan.

We recently advertised that present prices in the bond market offered an unusual opportunity to obtain a high income over a period of years. As an example of this we offer, subject to prior sale,

DETROIT RIVER TUNNEL CO.
Terminal and Tunnel First Mtge. 4½s, 1961, to yield about 4.70 per cent.

A first mortgage on an important property of the New York Central system. During 1911 and 1912 these bonds sold at prices yielding about 4.45 per cent.

Bankruptcy Sales

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—In the matter of GREGORY'S RESTAURANT, INC., Bankrupt.

Take notice that, pursuant to an order duly entered in this court on the 14th day of August, 1913, the undersigned, receiver of tht estate of the above-named bankrupt, offers for sale the property described below, and will receive sealed bids therefor at the office of his attorneys, Messrs. Yankauer & Davidson, No. 261 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, on or before Tuesday, the 26th day of August, 1913, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time and place said bids will be opened by the receiver and creditors may attend and pass thereon. Separate bids or blanket bid for two or more of the parcels of property below set forth may be made, each bid to be accompanied by a certified check for ten per sent. of the amount thereof, the balance of the purchase price to be paid to the receiver within two days, the receiver reserving the right to reject any and all bids, and the sale to be made subject to the approval of the court.

The property to be sold consists of the following:

Parcel No. 1. All the right, title, and interest of the receiver and of the bankrupt in and to the unexpired term of about four years of a certain portion of the premises known as the Hotel Aberdeen, (consisting of the kitchen and restaurant,) at Nos. 17-19-21 West 32d Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, together with all the right, title, and interest in and to the sum of $1,200 deposited as security by the bankrupt with the landlord under the provisions of the lease. The rental of the unexpired term is three hundred dollars for the month of September, 1913, and thereafter at the rate of four hundred dollars per month.

The Upper Hudson

The charm of the Upper Hudson, with its pretty villages, its porticoed mansions, its great elm trees and ribbon-like islands, is the most appealing part of the daylight trip to Albany. The traveler who discovers this for himself has as delightful an experience as an English County would afford. The way to enjoy it is from the spacious decks of one of our big daylight steamers. The time to enjoy it is now.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—An extensive area of high barometric pressure which covers the eastern half of the country has given generally fair weather throughout most of the districts east of the Rocky Mountains during the last twenty-four hours. There were some scattered thunder showers on Tuesday in the lower Ohio Valley, Virginia, Tennessee, and the Dakotas, but the rainfall was mostly light. Temperatures have fallen in the lake region and the north and Middle Atlantic States, and are now slightly below seasonal in the Atlantic States.

Scattered thunder showers will occur Wednesday in Tennessee and North Carolina, followed by generally fair weather on Thursday. There will also be local thunder showers Wednesday and Thursday in the Upper Mississippi Valley and the upper lake region; elsewhere in central and eastern districts the weather will be generally fair during the next two days.

The weather will be cool in the Northeast on Wednesday, followed by a slow reaction to warmer on Thursday. In the West and South temperatures will not change much.

Winds along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate to brisk northeast; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate to brisk northeast; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate east.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Wednesday and Thursday; brisk northeast winds Wednesday, becoming moderate southeast Thursday.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Generally fair Wednesday and Thursday; moderate northeast to east winds.

New England—Generally fair Wednesday and Thursday; moderate to brisk northeast winds, diminishing Wednesday.

Western New York—Fair Wednesday. Thursday, fair and warmer; moderate northeast to east winds.

	1912.	1913.		1912.	1913.
3 A. M.	72	75	4 P. M.	69	79
6 A. M.	73	74	6 P. M.	70	77
9 A. M.	77	72	9 P. M.	70	67
12 M.	82	74	11 P. M.	71	68

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 74; for the corresponding date last year it was 75; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 72.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 73; at 8 P. M. it was 68. Maximum temperature, 80 degrees at 3:20 P. M.; minimum, 67 degrees at 9 P. M. Humidity, 61 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 75 per cent at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.12 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.24 inches.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Loyola School Transfers Big Plot Near Park Avenue for Educational Building—St. Hubert Hotel in $250,000 Lease—Large Lease Near Times Square—Good Bronx and Brooklyn Market

A large plot on Eighty-fourth and Eighty-fifth Streets running through the block between Park and Madison Avenues was transferred yesterday by the Loyola School to the Regis High School, a new educational institution to be built under the auspices of the Jesuit Society, which controls the great Loyola school work in the block below. The property transferred includes some old stables, buildings, and garages at 46 to 54 East Eighty-fifth Street and 51 to 61 East Eighty-fourth Street, the frontage being 125 feet on Eighty-fourth Street and 141.8 on Eighty-fifth Street, taking in the entire middle of the block. On Eighty-fifth Street the property adjoins the new building of the South Reformed Church on the southwest corner of Park Avenue.

The property was accumulated several months ago, Williamson W. Fuller and James B. Duke selling the two vacant lots immediately in the rear of the church. The Regis High School has lately been incorporated and the new structure will be in keeping with the series of buildings connected with the Loyola Church and academy which cover the entire block front on the west side of Park Avenue between Eighty-third and Eighty-fourth Streets and embracing all the south side of Eighty-fourth Street except the northeast corner of Madison Avenue.

St. Hubert Hotel in $250,000 Lease.

The Hotel St. Hubert at 120 West Fifty-seventh Street has been leased by Anthony Van Bergen and others to J. E. Peabody and D. C. Babcock of the firm of Eager & Babcock for a term of years at an aggregate rental of $250,000.

The building is a twelve-story fireproof structure on a plot 60 by 100 feet. It will be entirely remodeled by the lessees. Douglas L. Elliman & Co. negotiated the lease.

The Private Dwelling Market.

J. C. Hough & Co. have sold to the Cunard Realty Company, Philip E. Hendrick, President, 311 Convent Avenue, a three-story dwelling on a lot 20 by 100.

Bronx.

The Kovacs Construction Company has resold a plot 173.6 by 94 on the southeast corner of Concord Avenue and 151st Street to a client of Kurz & Uren. The M. Morgenthau Jr. Company negotiated the transaction.

J. J. Beaman has sold to Mrs. J. Leavy, 853 Westchester Avenue, a three-family house on a lot 20 by 75 feet.

Charles Buermann & Company sold to Mrs. Rose Fells of Brooklyn, a plot 75 by 100 on the south side of Southern Boulevard, 125 feet south of Jennings Street. The buyer will improve with a moving-picture theatre.

Brooklyn.

Tutino & Cerny have sold for Mary Stutz to a client for investment, the two-story and basement brick two-family dwelling on a plot 20 by 80, known as 5,103 Sixth Avenue.

Charles E. Rickerson sold 1,406 Dean Street, between Brooklyn and Kingston Avenues, a three-story and English basement frame dwelling, on a plot 30 by 100, for the Wells Fargo Express Company, to John Nystrom for occupancy. Haskins & Ketcham were associated in the deal.

B. J. Sforza has leased for Charles Gahren to George McCarthy and Walter D. Allen for three years the moving picture theatre at the southeast corner of Fourteenth Avenue and Sixtieth Street.

Long Island.

The Windsor Land and Improvement Company has sold at Valley Stream to K. M. La Point a plot 60 by 131 feet, Rockaway Parkway and Halberson Street; to A. Laiblad a plot 100 by 100 feet, Grove Avenue and Thompson Street; to H. F. F. Brinks a plot 40 by 85, Argyle Street; to C. E. Shields a plot 60 by 85 feet, Chester Street; to S. Sternberg a plot 40 by 100, Grove Avenue; to J. Arenson a plot 40 by 100 feet, Berry Street; to C. Moran a plot 40 by 100 feet, Cottage Street.

Four plots at East Hampton were sold at public auction in the Vesey Street Salesroom yesterday by Joseph P. Day. The largest plot, 165 by 373, adjoining the corner of Cottage Avenue, was secured by Dr. F. L. Stanton for $750. The other three parcels, each 142 by about 373, were bought by Edmund J. Bowen, I. O. Farber and Bert M. Osborne for $410, $350, and $390, respectively.

$168,000 Lease Near Times Square.

The five-story building at 114 and 116 West Forty-seventh Street, having a frontage of 32.6 feet, has been leased to the Burnham Company for a long term of years for an aggregate rental of $168,000. Milton Natkins was the broker in the transaction.

Italian Newspaper Moves Uptown.

Spear & Co. have rented for Raymond & Raisman the store and basement in the building now under construction, at 145 and 147 West Twenty-eighth Street, to L'Araldo Italiano Publishing Company, publishers of L'Araldo Italiano newspaper, for twenty-one years. The newspaper plant has been located for twenty years in the vicinity of the Civic and Court House centre, and its old quarters there have been taken by the city for the new improvements.

Leases.

Edgar A. Manning, in conjunction with J. Metcalfe Thomas, has leased for a term of years 147 West Fifty-seventh Street for the Metcalfe estate to the K. E. Hanley Company, dressmakers.

Unger & Watson, Inc., have leased for a term of years the private dwelling 613 Lexington Avenue for Bartholomew F. O'Brien to Mme. Marie, as a dressmaking establishment.

George W. Brettell has leased to Ritchie & Cornell, clothiers, the store at 2,258 Third Avenue for a term of five years.

Realty Sales.

Plans have been filed in Brooklyn to make extensive alterations to St. Stephen's Lutheran Church, on the southeast corner of Twenty-eighth Street and Newkirk Avenue, Flatbush. William H. Ludwig is the architect, and the cost is estimated at $20,000.

At the stand of Joseph P. Day to-day in the Exchange Salesroom, 14 Vesey Street, there will be offered at public auction 879 East 165th Street, a two-story frame two-family dwelling, and 210 and 212 Eldridge Street, between Stanton and Rivington Streets, two six-story tenements on a plot 45 by 87.6 feet.

EDUCATION NOTES.

A. Emerson Palmer, Secretary to the Board of Education, has been passing his Summer vacation with his wife in his country home at Wintertown, N. Y. Mr. Palmer was born there. He began his career as water boy on the old Midland Railroad, now the New York, Ontario & Western. He has been Secretary to the Board of Education since February, 1898. He was employed on a New York newspaper when the Greater New York Charter went into effect. He was assigned by his paper to edit the charter matter for publication. He found that among the officers was a Secretary to the Board of Education, and he decided to apply for that place. He saw the late Henry W. Maxwell and Edward Swanstrom of Brooklyn, who were members of the Board of Education at that time, and through their efforts was appointed Secretary for six months, without opposition. At the expiration of the six months there was no new election for Secretary, and Mr. Palmer continued to hold the office. When the late Miles O'Brien became President of the board it was planned to elect a successor to Mr. Palmer without forewarning him. Former Judge George M. Van Hoesen, a member of the board, let the secret out, however, to Mr. Palmer only a short time before the board meeting was held. Mr. Palmer hurried down town and got out an injunction temporarily restraining the board from electing a Secretary. The papers were served on the President just before the meeting began, and there was no election of Secretary. Since that time Mr. Palmer has continued to hold the office, never having been reappointed. It would seem as if he would continue to be Secretary until old age compels him to retire.

SHE WANTED TO DIE AS LAROCQUE DID

Veronica Bishop Motored to Port Jefferson, but 'Phone Warning Got There First.

HIS FIANCEE, SHE SAID

Village Officials Out to Prevent Suicide — Larocque Not Betrothed, Sister Asserts.

Heralded by telephone messages from unknown sources to several officials of Port Jefferson, L. I., a young woman, who later gave her name as Veronica Bishop of 48 West Forty-ninth Street, started forth in an automobile from this city Monday night for the avowed purpose of committing suicide from the Darling Pier in that quiet village.

One of these messages reached Justice Jacob S. Dreyer, who was informed in a masculine voice over the telephone that the fiancée of Louis E. Larocque, the wealthy clubman, who drowned himself off the Darling Pier at midnight two weeks ago after an automobile ride through the adjacent towns, was determined to duplicate his deed. Justice Dreyer's informant urged him to be on watch for the appearance of an automobile containing a single woman passenger in the vicinity of the dock and to place her under restraint.

Justice Dreyer notified the police of Port Jefferson and learned that they also received the same mysterious tip.

As a result a majority of Port Jefferson's officials with many interested citizens were on hand when just before midnight an automobile owned by the Abcedo Automobile Company of 124 West Fiftieth Street drew up to the pier and a single woman passenger prepared to alight.

The woman was immediately confronted by Justice Dreyer and the various peace officers of Port Jefferson.

"I suppose that Mr. Talbot telephoned to you to stop me," she exclaimed with proper melodramatic emphasis. "He is the only one who knew that I was coming here to-night."

Justice Dreyer bade the chauffeur take the woman to Walker's Hotel, where he subjected her to a rigid cross-examination in the women's parlor.

"My name is Veronica Bishop, and I am the Secretary of the Anglo-Danish Institute at 48 West Forty-ninth Street. I was engaged to be married to Louis E. Larocque, and I determined to end my life at the same spot that Louis did. There is nothing left for me to live for; I am heartbroken."

The girl showed Justice Dreyer a diamond-studded watch and a long chain, which she said was a gift from Larocque. She also had a number of newspaper clippings relating the facts of Larocque's suicide. She also produced a revolver of 32 calibre, wrapped in a man's handkerchief. The handkerchief bore the initial "L."

"It was Louis's," she observed. "I came prepared to end my life, even if there was any interference."

Justice Dreyer ordered the detention of the chauffeur, Joseph Winckler, and got into communication with District Attorney Green of Suffolk County. After a long conference the latter official declared that there was no charge upon which the woman could be detained and ordered her release in the morning, together with the chauffeur. The pair were about to depart when an automobile containing two passengers drew up in front of the hotel. One of the passengers, a veiled woman, remained seated in the automobile, and the man alighted. He introduced himself to Justice Dreyer as Frank Talbot of 149 East Fifty-first Street, and acknowledged that he was the person who had notified the Justice by telephone of the alleged intended suicide. Miss Bishop then dismissed her own automobile and climbed into the one occupied by Talbot and his unknown woman companion. The car started off, and neither Talbot nor Miss Bishop could be found here last night.

Mrs. Henry C. Tinker, sister of Louis E. Larocque, whose home at Port Jefferson the dead man visited immediately before killing himself, declared last night that her brother had not been engaged nor had she ever heard of any woman named Veronica Bishop.

"I don't even know this man Talbot," she asserted.

George F. Vingut, brother of Harry Vingut, the son-in-law of Mayor Gaynor, who was an intimate friend of Larocque and whose home the latter also visited on the night that he drowned himself, said last night that the story told by Miss Bishop was absolutely without basis of fact.

"It is the most curious fabrication I ever heard," declared Mr. Vingut. "I don't know any girl named Veronica Bishop and I never heard Mr. Larocque mention such a woman. He had been in Europe for more than a year and during the last three months of his life after his return from abroad he had lived at the Southampton Club, where his life was an open book. Every one knew when he got up in the morning and when he went to bed at night, and we all knew how he spent his time in between. I was with him almost constantly the last three days before his death, and we were not separated very much from the time that he returned from Europe. I would know of his engagement sooner I dare say than any member of his family. There is nothing to these claims of this Bishop woman."

Louis E. Larocque was the son of Joseph Larocque, a distinguished lawyer and former member of the firm of Shipman, Larocque & Choate of 40 Wall Street. He was a member of many clubs in and about New York and was well known in Long Island social circles.

Widowed Mothers' Fund Needs Aid.

The Widowed Mothers' Fund is in urgent need of $3,000, which must be raised within one month to provide for current contingencies. The smallest sums will be welcomed, and persons of all creeds and conditions are appealed to. The fund was established to care for poor mothers bereft of the breadwinner, and has been the means of assisting many helpless women with young families at critical times. Remittances may be sent to Mrs. William Einstein, President, 190 Bowery.

HENRY G. MOORE RELEASED.

Alimony Dodger Freed from Hackensack Jail on $50,000 Bond.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Aug. 19.—Henry G. Moore of Philadelphia, New York, and Rutherford, and known as the alimony dodger, was released from the Bergen County Jail here this afternoon, where he had been confined since July 12. A bond for $50,000, issued by the Illinois Security Company of New York, was furnished and caused his release, but not until after a heated argument, which lasted more than an hour, between Under Sheriff Robert N. Heath and Joseph E. R. Kunzmann of the bonding company and Moore's counsel, Bernard Hess of New York.

Heath finally said he would not release Moore until the papers had been gone over carefully by his counsel, uther A. Campbell. At 4:25 o'clock word reached the Under Sheriff that the papers were all right, and Moore was discharged. An automobile belonging to Moore, in which were seated Hess and Kunzmann, was waiting outside for him, and at once whizzed away when Moore got into it. Under the present bond he can leave the State if he so wishes to do.

Moore is 63 years old, and is the son of the late Andrew Moore of Philadelphia, who amassed a fortune in the distilling business. H. G. Moore married in 1883 and separated from his wife in 1892. It was not, however, until ten years later that she obtained a divorce in Pennsylvania, with $4,000 a year alimony, which it is said she has never received.

Moore is said to receive a spendthrift trust income of $3,000 a month, and owes his wife back alimony amounting to $32,000.

BANK'S LOSS IS $212,000.

Still No Trace of Missing Treasurer of Newark Institution.

When Special Deputy Commissioner L. R. Vredenburg, who, with a corps of examiners, has been going over the books of the Roseville Trust Company in Newark, which was closed last week, makes his report to-day at Trenton it will probably show a shortage of $212,000.

Mr. Vredenburg said yesterday that there would probably be losses on paper in the bank, and these would have to be added to the $212,000 before the final accounting.

The detectives who are seeking Raymond E. Smith, the missing Secretary Treasurer, have failed to get any trace of him. Two complaints have been lodged against him, and a $1,000 reward has been offered by the Directors of the trust company for his arrest. Circulars requesting Smith's arrest have been sent broadcast.

Wilfred C. Roszel, the receiver appointed by Judge Rellstab in involuntary bankruptcy proceedings, instituted in the Federal Court against the missing bank officer, found bank books showing that Smith had deposited money in banks in other cities. The receiver came across the books while searching Smith's apartments at Central Avenue and Seventh Street, Newark. One of the books showed $500 deposited in the Danielsville, Penn., National Bank. The receiver has notified the bank not to make any payments on the account. Banks in other States have also been notified.

CONVICT TOOK TRIP ALONE.

Went From Wingdale to Great Meadow Without a Guard.

COMSTOCK, N. Y., Aug. 19.—A man alighted from an afternoon train at the station here to-day and walked briskly up the road leading to Great Meadow Prison. The guard at the prison gate recognized him and he was admitted.

The convict had been transferred earlier in the Summer with other prisoners to Wingdale, the abandoned site of the proposed new prison, to harvest the crops. He wrote Warden Homer that he would like to return to Comstock, and suggested that he make the trip without the customary guard.

The Warden obtained permission from Supt. Riley of the State Prison Department, and the man was told to make the trip to-day. He changed cars twice—at Chatham and Albany—and reported at the prison as he had promised to do.

Officials said it was the first time in prison history that a transfer had been made without a guard.

FINED FOR HIS PRESENTS.

Chicago Manufacturer Must Pay $300 to Uncle Sam.

Julius Weinberg, a window-shade manufacturer of 1,459 Milwaukee Avenue, Chicago, who was arrested for failing to declare eight cheap watches and three raincoats, which he brought over with him as a second-cabin passenger on the Mauretania, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Mayer in the Criminal Branch of the United States District Court, and pleaded guilty to an indictment charging a violation of the Customs laws.

Weinberg was fined $300, which he paid. His excuse was that he did not think the articles, intended for presents for his friends, and worth $80, were dutiable.

STOKES A CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR AGAIN

Ex-Governor of New Jersey Willing to Run "if the People Want Him."

PLATFORM UP TO VOTERS

But He Will Issue a Statement Telling How the Republicans Stand on Progressive Measures.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 19.—Saying that he is not personally ambitious, but that he deems it his duty to see if it is the wish of the rank and file of the party that he should lead its fortunes, ex-Gov. Edward Casper Stokes announced himself to-day as a candidate for the Republican Gubernatorial nomination. His statement follows:

"I have had a large number of requests in person, by letter, by petition, and by resolution to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. I have decided to ascertain how far these requests represent real substantial public sentiment on this question, and to that end I shall submit my name as a candidate for the nomination for Governor to the Republican primaries in accordance with the laws of the State.

"My attitude toward this honor must by this time be well understood. I have not sought it. I have been Governor of this State, and for me a second term awakens no personal ambition. The only incentive I could have would be one of civic duty. If the people think I can be of service in this emergency I am bound to consider their wishes. Those wishes must first be expressed at the primary. If the voters think some one else can serve them better or as well, I shall be entirely content. If they feel that I should be their candidate, and so express themselves at the primary, I shall make the best fight I can for the principles and policies of the party from the day of the nomination to the day of election.

"As I am, therefore, a receptive and not a self-seeking candidate, I shall enter into no disputes or discussions with any one as to the merits of my candidacy. That question I leave entirely to the people to decide. Politics is not a game, but a serious duty, involving responsibility and trust.

"I am not an enthusiast over the modern custom that prevails of 'proclaiming my platform to the world.' The people should make the platform themselves. The Geran law provides the time and place when they shall do it through their accredited representatives. I shall, however, in the near future issue a statement outlining the work of the party on progressive measures and declaring in general what I think the attitude of the party should be on progressive policies and party organization. The voters have a right to know what I think the Republican Party stands for and what it ought to stand for, and what I shall insist it must stand for if I should be chosen to lead its fortunes.

"This statement is meant in no wise to interfere with the ambitions of any other candidate or candidates, nor is it to be regarded as a criticism of them if they prefer to take active means to press their claims, and if any one of them should win he will find in me a loyal supporter."

GYPSIES ROB THREE GIRLS.

Comrade Defends Them, but They Are Banished from Callicoon.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTICELLO, Aug. 19.—A large band of gypsies, camping at Hortonville, near Callicoon, Sullivan County, held up Anna Molusky, Charlotte Marettae, and Anna Golden of New York City yesterday and robbed them of their bags, containing over $25 in money and several pieces of jewelry. The young women returned to Callicoon and swore out warrants for three members of the band.

The village policeman, with twelve deputies went to the camp and arrested the offenders. Fifty gypsies and half the population of Callicoon went to the courtroom, so it was necessary to hold the trial in the opera house. One of the gypsies took charge of the case for the defendants, and showed knowledge of law. He cross-examined the witnesses like any attorney. The gypsies were forced to pay the costs and leave the village.

This is the same band that terrorized the Summer colony at Orange Lake, near Newburg, where it held up a storekeeper and stole most of his goods. Under Sheriff Lozier chased the gypsies over the county line.

An Acknowledgment.

THE TIMES acknowledges receipt of $1 from "Cash" to aid Elizabeth Heath, an 18-year-old girl, who, out of work, penniless, and without a home, attempted suicide by poison in Stuyvesant Park.

BRADLEY CO. DEFENSE.

Employe Accepted Accident Risk, It Says in Damage Suit.

The defense of the Bradley Contracting Company to the damage suits brought against it for deaths and injuries resulting from the cave-in on April 5 of the Lexington Avenue Subway at Fifty-eighth Street was divulged yesterday when the company took the stand in the $20,000 suit brought by James Bambrick of 444 West Fifty-seventh Street, both of whose legs were broken, and contended that the accident was "due to and was part of a risk, or risks, obvious, apparent, necessary, and inherent in the nature of his employment and which were assumed by accepting, undertaking, and continuing in the employment."

This plea recalled yesterday the controversy between the Coroners' office and the Public Service Commission after the accident, in which the Coroner asserted he was barred from the shaft so that evidence of negligence might be concealed and representatives of the Public Service Commission stated that the accident was unavoidable and that men who entered upon such works were like soldiers and must be prepared "to die if necessary" on account of the hazardous nature of the work.

Supreme Court Justice Giegerich reserved decision on the completeness of this as a defense to Bambrick's suit, which will serve as a test case for other actions based on the same catastrophe.

Justice Giegerich appointed Henry Brandes guardian of his infant son, Isidore, for the purposes of another $20,000 suit against the Bradley Company for injuries sustained by the boy through the falling of a pile of rails on one of his feet along the line of the Lexington Avenue Subway. The boy's foot was amputated after the accident.

William B. Bradley, the subway builder, whose name the company bears, was also named as defendant in a $2,000 suit brought by Mrs. Mattie L. Carroll, widow of Joseph D. Carroll of the Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Horse Company. The amount sued for represents property in a house at Teaneck, N. J., occupied by Mr. Carroll and bought by Mr. Bradley. Mrs. Carroll complained that Bradley took possession without legal right to various personal property in the house and its outbuildings, including chickens, arm chairs, a sofa, buffalo robes, a cow, a croquet set, punching bag, pool table, carpets, trunks, and a large quantity of cigarettes, cigars, wines, whiskies, liquors, sardines, olives, preserves, cherries, and coap.

SAVES MAN, WIFE, AND CAT.

Fireman Was of Company 13 and the Cat Was Black.

When Hook and Ladder Company 13 arrived at a smoky fire in the five-story brick tenement at 1,063 Park Avenue late yesterday afternoon, Herbert Mumford, an employe of the Metropolitan Club, was hanging from a fourth-story window, with his wife. The firemen ran up an extension ladder, and Capt. Tierney carried Mrs. Mumford down. He returned to get Mumford, who still clung to the window sill, and as he did so, a large black cat leaped on to his shoulders. Capt. Tierney carried both to the street.

The fire started in the hall way on the second floor of the house, and was discovered by Peter Atilella, keeper of a fruit stand on the ground floor. It drove many tenants to the rear fire escapes, and burned so briskly that two alarms were sent in. Police reserves from the East Eighty-sixth Street Station assisted many frightened women to make their way down the fire escapes. John Meyers, owner of the building, estimated his loss at $5,000.

COOK HURLS HOT FAT OVER FOUR PERSONS

Goes Insane in Staten Island House and Scalds Visitors to the Kitchen.

BURNS 3 WOMEN AND CHILD

Escapes From the House and Eludes Close Search of the Island by the Police.

Driven insane, it is believed, by the heat of the past few days, Amelia Delcher, 45 years old, employed as cook by Mrs. E. A. Ludwig of 192 Ward Avenue, Stapleton, S. I., yesterday afternoon threw the contents of a pan of boiling fat over four persons, and so badly scalded them that they are all in a serious condition now at the S. R. Smith Infirmary at New Brighton.

Those in the hospital are Mrs. M. Kloch of 70 Sands Street, Stapleton; Mrs. Hugh Haulselt of 167 Arlington Avenue, Mariner Harbor; Irving Ludwig, 1 year old, and Jennie Ulanish, 18 years old. Jennie is employed as maid in the house.

Mrs. Ludwig invited Mrs. Kloch and Mrs. Haulselt to her house for the afternoon and evening. Shortly before dinner time Mrs. Kloch picked up little Irving in her arms and went downstairs to the kitchen where the cook was busily engaged in preparing the meal. The cook was standing near the stove as Mrs. Kloch entered the room. Without a word of warning, Mrs. Kloch says, the woman picked up a pan of hot fat and threw a good part of its contents over them. The screams of the woman and child were heard by Mrs. Haulselt and the maid, and they rushed downstairs to the kitchen. Here they found the cook still with the pan in her hand, and as they entered the room she threw what remained in the pan at them, scalding them severely about the head, hands, face and body.

Mrs. Ludwig, who was on the upper floor of the house, ran down stairs, but by the time she reached the kitchen, the cook had put on her coat and fled from the house. Mrs. Ludwig quickly telephoned for a doctor and then sent word to the police for an ambulance.

The latter arrived while a physician was doing what he could to alleviate the suffering of the victims. The little boy was perhaps the most seriously scalded. The physicians at the hospital expect all will recover.

The police sent out a general alarm for the cook. All the ferries and railroad stations were watched all night, but no trace of the woman was found. Mrs. Ludwig said last night that she had had the cook in her employ for several months, and that she was a good worker. She said the woman suffered greatly from the heat on Sunday and Monday, and this, she believed, affected her mind.

New Cuban Consul General Here.

BROKEN SKULL, NOT APHASIA

Coroner's Physician Furnishes New Explanation of Cornell's Death.

William Cornell, who died on Sunday in Bellevue Hospital, where the doctors had diagnosed his case as aphasia, really died of a double fracture of the skull, and was probably a victim of murder, according to the autopsy performed by Acting Coroner's Physician McAllister.

Cornell, who was 45 years old, and lived at 160 Bleecker Street, staggered into the hospital on Aug. 8. From that time until his death he had only one lucid interval, which was too brief to permit of his being questioned. Both Dr. J. J. Shea in charge of Ward 24, where he was first treated, and Dr. Michael Thorton of the psychopathic ward, to which he was removed a few days after his admission to the hospital, insisted yesterday that, aside from slight bruises behind the left ear, there had been nothing outward to indicate the fracture the autopsy revealed. In the psychopathic ward, Dr. Thornton said, the patient showed remarkable improvement, and a few hours before his final collapse he had been up and about.

Dr. McAllister thought the fracture of such a nature that it ought easily to have been revealed to any surgeon examining him. It extended from ear to ear, and to the vault of the skull, such a fracture as would have been caused by a violent blow on the head. The report of the autopsy was no sooner made than the police began an inquiry. Their first search was for Mrs. Cornell.

"PAT CROWE" TRIES POETRY

Washington Judge Sets Him Free and Tells Him to Leave Town.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—"Pat" Crowe, the kidnapper of Edward Cudahy, Jr., who was arrested here on a charge of vagrancy, was released to-day on his promise to leave town. He started for Chicago to-day.

Before the remission of his sentence Crowe had written a letter to Judge Pugh of the Police Court, asking that the decision under which he was imprisoned be reversed.

In his letter Crowe told Judge Pugh that he confidently expected to be canonized in about 200 years. For hundreds of years, he said, his ancestors had been famous teachers in the Church.

He ended his letter with this verse:

Not void of all ambition,
Not dead to every wrong,
And I do not wish to be alone.
I would rather be where vultures rave,
And fulfill my earthly mission,
Ere I find the quiet grave.

BOYS TELL OF WHIPPINGS.

Frenchtown School Does Not Get Clean Bill of Health.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 19.—Probation Officer Charles H. Edmond reported to-day to Judge Gnichtel on his investigation of the Fairview Training School for Boys at Frenchtown, Mercer County. While he relieved Henry O. Kight, Director of of the school, of the specific charge of atrocious assault and battery on Harry Sparks, an inmate from Camden, he said Kight disregarded the warning of the court that he should not strike the boys.

The report contains interviews with all of the Mercer County wards in the school, each of the boys saying that young Sparks was injured by falling down a hill. They said, however, that Kight freely used a horsewhip when inflicting punishment.

POLES STAMPEDE COWS.

Eight Persons Hurt in Fight at East New York Dairy.

Eight persons, one of them a woman, Mrs. Regina Wank, who risked her life to save her husband from drink-crazed Poles who had given him a terrible beating, were injured last night in a battle which took place at the dairy stables of Louis Wank, Berriman Street and Wortman Avenue, East New York.

The question of who should unload two wagon loads of grain, used as fodder for cows, brought on the fight. Ignatz Weiss and Ignatz Nachowitz, who had brought the grain from Williamsburg, demurred when ordered by Wank to unload it. They demanded that they be paid off. One of the men grabbed an ax and struck Wank. The blow glanced. The wound was not serious. Wank and workmen who went to his aid made a hard fight against the angry men and others of the workmen who sided with them.

In the midst of the battle the infuriated workmen set free seventy cows and stampeded them. Bellowing and with horns clashing they bolted through the stables and grounds and into the fields, and it was not until long after the battle that workmen and mounted police were able to round them up.

Wank and his men received the worst of the fight. Bleeding from a wound in the head Wank fled to his home, a furious Pole in pursuit. A blow on the back of the head with a club knocked him down just as he reached the kitchen door. His wife threw the door open, holding her infant in her arms. She thrust it in the arms of an older child, grasped her husband, and dragged him over the threshold.

Mounted Policemen Mandt, Kelly, and Therkatz dashed up, and, using their clubs on the fighters, brought the battle to an end. Drs. O'Leary and Miller of Bradford Street Hospital were kept busy two hours treating the injured.

DROWNED SAVING ANOTHER.

James Drew Loses His Life in Trying to Rescue a Girl Friend.

After a long struggle to keep the head of a young girl above the waters of Jamaica Bay early yesterday afternoon, James Drew, 21 years old, of Eighteenth Street and Gravesend Avenue, Brooklyn, became exhausted just before help arrived and drowned. His body was recovered five minutes after it had disappeared beneath the surface of the water.

Drew was a member of the Syndicate Boat Club, at Grassy Point, Broad Channel. He was spending his vacation at the clubhouse. At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, accompanied by his fiancée, Miss Olive Wagner, whose parents have a cottage at Broad Channel, and Gertrude Goedel, 16, of 289 Bleecker Street, Brooklyn, he went in bathing.

Miss Goedel, a strong swimmer, ventured out beyond Drew and Miss Wagner. Her strength suddenly failed her, and she called for help. It took Drew several minutes to reach her side, and she had disappeared twice before the young man could catch her. The girl grasped at her rescuer and held him so tightly that he could not swim with her.

Miss Nettie Casey and William Campbell saw the struggle from the shore, and both put out, Campbell in a boat. The latter reached the pair first and pulled the drowning girl into the boat, but as he turned back Drew had gone down. Campbell recovered the body after diving into the water several times.

Horse's Kick Breaks Man's Skull.

Patrolman John Fitzgibbon, driver of the patrol wagon of the Bedford Avenue Station, in Brooklyn, was in a stall in the precinct stable early last evening petting his horse, Racoon, when suddenly the animal reared, knocked him down, and kicked him in the head. The blow was so powerful that it broke the man's skull, and he was taken dying to his home at 135 Bedford Avenue. Fitzgibbon is 54 years old.

Are You Seeing the Sights?
Don't fail to come to the Boulevard. Famous for over twenty years, it is still the most famous Hungarian Restaurant in America. A piquant Hungarian dinner with our coffee—a real treat—charming music, by our own Hungarian Orchestra—and over all an atmosphere of geniality and comfort. All these with a cordial welcome you will find at
CAFE BOULEVARD
Second Avenue and Tenth Street
Guests will find the main dining room off the open air balcony a cool place for dancing. Music is furnished by the famous Hungarian Orchestra.

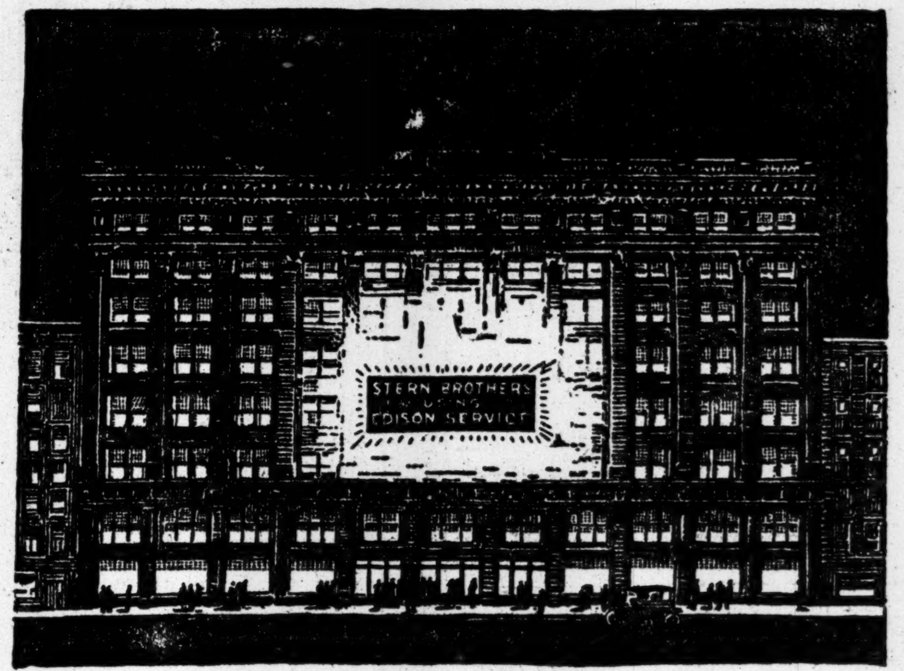
Stern Brothers New Store



Messrs Stern Brothers will use Edison Service exclusively for their great establishment on 42d and 43d Streets and Sixth Avenue
The electrical equipment will consist of nearly eighty thousand lamps of twenty candle power, or their equivalent in electric motors
Messrs Stern Brothers operated a private electrical plant in their enormous buildings on 23d and 22d Streets
Their decision therefore to adopt "the Edison Way" in this latest structure, is significant of the relative economy and satisfaction of the two methods
Last year, 97% of all large buildings erected in Manhattan adopted Edison Service
